PARIS, Aug. 3.—The Matin today begins publication of a remarkable document showing that as early as the Spring of 1917 a movement by no less a personage than the King of Spain was almost initiated to bring the great war to an end.

Conversations between the King of Spain, who spoke as "a Bourbon, a soldier and a friend of France," and Colonel Devigne, French Military Attaché at Madrid, are quoted.

Colonel Devigne's dispatch, containing an account of the conversations was lost in a Paris taxicab in 1917, and the Colonel was court-martialed, but acquitted. The dispatch was afterward recovered.

The Matin article says:

"Strange threads of intrigue ran through the World War that dyed the world with blood. Some of them have been revealed—in part—others scarcely less important are still unknown. The time has come to draw aside the veil of secrecy and reveal the mysterious interplay in which the enemy Governments were engaged.

"Not only does it involve the great ones of the earth, but it bears a tragic message to many hearts now dark in mourning. For it proves that early in 1917 peace—destined, alas, to be postponed for eighteen more months of slaughter—was so near that at moments it seemed almost to hang on one man, one single thread.

"The centre of the war's intrigues was Austria. It is not surprising, for it was Germany that was the soul of the enemy coalition, the soul of aggression, soul of war. Austria was but a satellite, and while Germany inspired fear or hatred, Austria was still regarded in certain quarters with something like sympathy.

"'French public opinion,' said President Poincaré in March, 1917, to Prince Sixtus of Bourbon, 'is generally favorable to Austria, and M. Deschanel keeps asking me whether we cannot make peace with her.'

"'We in England,' said Mr. Lloyd George to the same Prince, 'have an old sentiment of friendship for Austria. If she would leave Germany we would readily take her stand. I believe I can say the same for France. Only Italy is bitter.'

Plan to Detach Austria.

"It was, then, in the Spring of 1917 that began the first great intrigue for peace—it was planned to detach Austria-Hungary from Germany with a view to a separate peace. It seemed all the easier, because Austria, exhausted and war-weary, had thrice begged to open negotiations. Three times Prince Sixtus had crossed the Swiss frontier to meet messengers from Vienna and twice had penetrated Austria itself. Each time he had confidential interviews with Emperor Karl and Count Czernin, and returned with autograph letters from both to President Poincaré."

The Matin then gives the substance of these letters, showing that Emperor Karl was finally unwilling to accede to the demands of Italy. The Matin concludes:

"On this account negotiations languished. In fact, no answer was sent to the Emperor's last letter. Prince Sixtus rejoined his battery on the Yser and abandoned forever his rôle of intermediary.

"But above the international horizon there already was appearing another lofty and dignified figure, prepared to undertake the rôle of mediator. This figure was not that of a Prince, but of a King—the King of Spain.

Documents Lost in Paris Taxi.

"At a most critical period of the war, in the Spring of 1917, "inner circles" in Paris were shaken to their foundations by the mysterious loss, in a taxicab, it was said, of certain documents of fabulous importance.

"The censorship at that time was so strict that hardly a whisper of this affair found its way into the newspapers, but among those in the know the wildest rumors were current.

"It was suggested that crowned heads were involved, that the lost documents contained secrets which—if they fell into enemy hands—might wreck the French Government, then in the midst of its fight against treachery and "defeatism"; that the whole issue of the war, of allied solidarity, of victory or ruin, depended upon their recovery.

"They were recovered—how, is one of the untold stories of the French secret service. The Allies were saved from disaster, but the carefully-woven fabric of high political action to which the documents bore witness was ruined hopelessly. Clever as were the French secret agents, they were unable to guarantee that no hostile eye had seen what was

Robbers Steal an Airplane; Leave It Stripped 4 Miles Off

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The police are hunting for two men who entered a hangar at Checkerboard Field, Maywood, yesterday and flew away with an airplane.

The hangars at Maywood are not well guarded, and when the robbers visited them at daybreak they had no difficulty in getting away.

Following an all-day search, partly from the air, the machine was discovered four miles from the hangars stripped of instruments valued at several hundred dollars.

NEW RAIL TARIFFS DUE THIS MONTH

A. P. Thom Announces Passenger Fare Change on Aug. 20 and Freight on Aug. 25.

$1,580,000,000 GAIN IS SEEN

W. Jett Lauck Says Family Budget Should Not Suffer—Harrison Sees Future Saving.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The railroads expect to put the increased passenger fares into effect Aug. 20 and the increased freight rates in effect Aug. 25. This was announced tonight following a consultation held today by A. P. Thom, general counsel of the Railway Executives, with the Rate Committee of their organization.

The Rate Committee consulted the statistical experts of the Interstate Commerce Commission and of the Bureau of Economics and it is hoped to have the new tariffs ready for presentation to the commission five days in advance of the two dates mentioned. Under the law, five days' notice to the commission and the public is necessary before a new rate is established.

Unofficial and hurried estimates made by the Bureau of Economics today placed the sum which the railroads hope to realize from the increased rates at $1,580,000,000. This calculation, it is emphasized, is not official, and must be regarded as tentative. Railway officials reiterated today that the establishment of the new Mountain-Pacific group of railways had thrown their previous figures into a state of turmoil.

The railway executives will now begin to file their supplementary applications for the new rates with the State commissions. Permission for intrastate rates must be obtained from the State commissions. The Interstate Commerce Commission has already authorized the interstate rates.

Fear H. C. L. May Reflect New Rates.

Further fear was expressed here today that the new freight rates will reflect themselves in manifold degree in the high cost of living. A prediction made by former Director General Walker D. Hines, that the manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer would each try to add a new burden, because of the increase, was recalled. Speaking to the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors in St. Louis, Mr. Hines had said that an increase for the railroads of $500,000,000 "would mean an increase to the public of $1,000,000,000, or $1,500,000,000, in other words four to five times as much as the increase to the railways."

Mr. Hines's conclusion at that time was that in the interest of the general consuming public there should be exceeding caution about making an increase in transportation rates.

One of the chief causes of worry in Washington is that any profiteering on account of the rates would be attached to the commodities used in daily life, such as flour, clothes, furniture and the like, which would drive straight to the pocketbook of every consumer. Some days ago, it was rumored that the railroad employes were even preparing to ask the President to call a special session of Congress to pass new and stringent anti-profiteering laws. This rumor could not be confirmed.

In line with that first rumor the statement was made here today that the railway employes were preparing to ask further increases in pay. The man who made this statement, a Government official in touch with railroad matters and one who has had practical experience in railroad supervision said that a member of one of the railroad unions declared to him that, where the men had received a 21 per cent. pay increase,

LEADERS FOR CALL OF SARATOGA ROLL ON THE CANDIDATES

Eulogies and Acclamation for Gov. Smith Are Planned, but No Designation.

LUNN IS READY TO FIGHT

McAdoo and Others Boomed for Senatorship, but Leaders Seek an Up-State Man.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 2.—On the ground that it would be nothing but designations in disguise, Mayor George R. Lunn of Schenectady, active but unfavored candidate for the nomination for United States Senator, threatens to make a fight on the floor of the unofficial Democratic Convention, which will meet here tomorrow, in the event that it should go through the formality of calling the roll of counties with a view of sounding sentiment on candidates among the enrolled Democrats throughout the State.

That is precisely what the Democratic leaders who are shaping the course of the convention propose to do. After permanent organization has been effected tomorrow evening, unless there is a change in the program, there will be two speeches eulogizing Governor Alfred E. Smith, who is the unopposed candidate for renomination to his present office. One will be made by ex-Governor Martin H. Glynn, another by ex-Judge D-Cady Herrick, both of Albany. Then, either by roll call or by acclamation, the convention will voice its approval of Governor Smith as a candidate for a second term.

At a subsequent session on Wednesday forenoon it is proposed to call the roll of counties and give the delegates an opportunity of stating whom they would like to see nominated for each of the elective State offices, from Lieutenant Governor to State Engineer, for United States Senator and Judges of the Court of Appeals. There will be no balloting on candidates, although it is certain that for some offices more than one candidate will be proposed, nor will there be adopted any resolution recommending a slate to th eenrolled Democrats who will participate in the primaries.

This omission, it was declared here tonight by Democratic leaders, will make all the difference in the world between the action of the Democratic Convention and the Republican Convention which met here last week.

Leaders Want Woman on Ticket.

The leaders have decided that there should be a woman on the State ticket unless the women delegates veto the plan. Mrs. James N. Smith of Buffalo is mentioned for Lieutenant Governor, and Miss Harriet May Mills of Syracuse for Secretary of State.

Charles F. Murphy insisted tonight that he was in ignorance with regard to what the convention tomorrow would do or leave undone.

"How can I know," he said. "I am just one out of 450 delegates. Now I really don't know anything. That's honest."

Mr. Murphy, however, passed the whole day, except for the time he spent at the race track, in talks with leaders from up-State or in conferences with men of his own political set.

Mayor Lunn voiced his oppposition to the program in these words:

"Some people have said that I am spoiling for a fight. Nothing could be further from the truth. I am not looking for a fight, but I think I recognize a fight when I see it coming down the street, and one is on the way.

"I am utterly opposed to any action by this convention that would be violative of the letter or spirit of the direct primary law. I will oppose any program contemplating camouflaged designation and will fight any such proposal on the floor of the convention, if necessary. What they propose to do, if I have been correctly informed, is just that."

Mayor Lunn was asked if he would be

Chicago Sees Signs of High Living's End; Pawnbrokers There Say Their Loans Show It

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—With high priced jobs growing scarcer every day, the era of high, wide and easy spending by the wage earning public is nearing an end, according to men who make salary loans to wage earners, and who claim that their business, better than any other, reflects the financial position of the every-day citizen—the wage earner with a steady job and the salaried man with a limited income.

For the last two years, and particularly for the last year, some of the personal loan specialist say, they have been keeping their shops open chiefly because they had to pay the rent. Everybody had money and nobody wanted any. Old accounts were paid up and new ones were not opened. But within the last month all this has changed.

"It looks to me," said Arthur L. Weinschenk today, "as though the crest of popular extravagance was about passed. No business is so accurate a gauge of the average man's prosperity as that of lending money in small amounts. During the past year our loans and those of nearly every other like concern in the city have sunk to half of their usual number. The wage earners who used to be our best clients have had more cash than they needed. But during the past month business has been getting better every day, until the total of borrowers is back to normal.

Managers of other loan establishments confirmed this statement. Robert B. Umberger gave this as a reason for the great increase in applications for loans during the past two months:

"Employment at high wages is not so easy to find; Liberty bonds are largely sold; bonuses are spent and people are getting back to the realization that you cannot get rich without working."

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 3.—The Government's bill for the restoration of order in Ireland was sent to the printers last night after its formal introduction and first reading in the House of Commons.

The Daily Chronicle political correspondent says that the tribunals which are to be set up in Ireland for the trial of all crimes and offenses under the Defense of the Realm act will be courts-martial, with the corollary that in capital cases there will be power to make a modification in the court so as to bring in another element in addition to the military.

"Whether and when this power will be exercised," he adds, "presumably will be a matter of discretion with the authorities.

"Of this modification of the first draft of the bill—and it justifies the Prime Minister's description of the bill as drastic, being in effect a substitution of courts-martial for the ordinary courts—the important point is that power is taken for making further regulations under the act when enacted, and it is understood that such powers would be taken when or as required by the King-in-Council.

"The powers of the military are thus to be increased, the Government having confidence in General Macready. As has been foreshadowed, the chief provisions which were to have been enacted by the Criminal Inquiries bill are now to be embodied in this Restoration of Order bill.

"The closure motion necessary to put the bill through in the Commons on Thursday and Friday will be taken as a first order of business on Thursday, and there is indicated an intention on the part of the Irish Nationalists, labor members and Independent Liberals to oppose this closure motion. It is not likely, however, that progress can be seriously impeded. The Labor Party will move rejection of the bill."

DUBLIN, Aug. 2.—Cardinal Logue, in an archdiocesan letter, remarks that "from recent occurrences it appears that even the House of God is not spared from sacrilegious outrages and desecration by the shedding of human blood within its sacred precincts," and he therefore forbids any one "subject to my jurisidiction" to take part in political meetings or processions during the forthcoming Feast of the Assumption on Aug. 15, as they "often lead to riot, confusion, ill-will and unchristian conduct."

"From day to day things are going from bad to worse, destruction of life, destruction of property, repression and retaliation, sacking of towns by armed forces of the Crown, and, to complete our misery, outbursts of sectarian strife, resulting in the loss of many useful lives," is another statement in the Cardinal's letter.

Lynch Breaks with de Valera.

LONDON, Aug. 2 (Associated Press.)—Diarmid Lynch, Sinn Fein Member of the House of Commons for the Southeast Division of Cork and Food Controller of the "Republican Government," who went to America some months ago, is reported to have resigned as Member of the "Republican Parliament" on the ground of differences of opinion between President de Valera and leaders of the Irish Party in the United States.

Mr. Lynch has sent a long explanatory letter to the Speaker of the "Republican Parliament."

It is predicted in Irish political circles that his resignation will lead to important developments in the Sinn Fein ranks.

Eamon de Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," who was thought on Saturday to have been planning to sail on the Baltic with Archbishop Mannix and run a British gantlet, has left his hotel here without giving a forwarding address.

This was learned today when an unsuccessful effort was made to reach him in connection with a dispatch from London, stating that differences he had had with Diarmid Lynch had caused the Convicted Men Established Communist Labor Party—3 Women to be Tried Separately.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—William Bross Lloyd, millionaire of Winetka, a Chicago suburb, sergeant-at-arms of the Communist Labor Party Convention held here last September, was found guilty tonight of conspiracy to overthrow the Government of the United States, by a jury in Judge Hebel's branch of the Criminal Court after a trial lasting eighty-five days. He was fined $3,000 and given a term of from one to five years in the State Penitentiary at Joliet.

At the same time nineteen other members of the Communist Labor Party were also found guilty, fined and sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment. Included in these is Ludwig Lore of New York, editor of Class Struggle. He helped draft the Constitution of the Communist Labor Party.

Lore was sentenced to prison, and as in several other cases the term was left by the jury to Judge Hebel, who will pronounce sentence later.

The Sentences.

Those found guilty, with their sentences, follow:

WILLIAM BROSS LLOYD, Sergeant-at-Arms at the Communist Labor Party Convention; one to five years in prison and $3,000 fine.

L. E. KATTERFELD, Brighton, Kan.; national organizer and drafter of the party's platform; prison and $2,000 fine.

MAX BEDACHT, San Francisco, member of the National Executive Committee and Platform Committee; prison and $1,000 fine.

JACK CARNEY, Duluth, Minn., member of the National Executive Committee, editor and publisher of Truth; prison and $1,000 fine.

PERRY SHIPMAN, Rock Island, Ill., member of the State Committee; one year in the county jail.

L. K. ENGLAND, Moline, Ill., member of the State Committee; prison.

LUDWIG LORE, New York, editor of Class Struggle, who helped to draft the constitution; prison.

Dr. KARL SANDBERG, Chicago, organizer and delegate to the National Convention; one year in the county jail.

Dr. OSCAR J. BROWN, De Kalb, Ill., organizer, delegate to the National Convention and member of the Platform Committee; one year in the county jail.

NIEL J. CHRISTENSEN, delegate to the National Convention and member of the International Relations Committee; one year in the county jail.

EDGAR OWENS, Moline, Ill., State Secretary; helped to draft the constitution; prison.

SAMUEL ASH, Chicago, lawyer, one of the organizers; one year in prison.

JAMES A. MEISINGER, Chicago, member of the County Executive Committee; one year in prison.

SAMUEL F. HANKIN; one year in prison.

EDWIN FIRTH, Indianapolis, Ind., national delegate and organizer; one year in the county jail.

JOHN VOGEL, member of the County Committee; one year in the county jail and $2,000 fine.

ARTHUR PROCTOR, Chicago, owner of the Clarion Book Store, 204 North Clark Street, meeting place of radicals, member of the County Committee; prison and $2,000 fine.

NEILS KJAR, Chicago, member of the National Executive Committee and county Propaganda Committee; prison.

MORRIS A. STOLAR, Chicago, member of the County Executive Committee; one year in prison.

CHARLES KRUMBEIN, Chicago, member of the County Executive Committee; one year in prison.

All Freed on Bail.

All of the men convicted were permitted their liberty on bail pending an appeal.

The jury, which was out nearly nine hours, began deliberations after a closing plea by Special Prosecutor Frank Comerford, which consumed one and one-half days. He finished his address by reciting "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Mr. Comerford told the jury that, like Francis Scott Key, who watched all night to see if the flag stilled waved, the people throughout the entire country were waiting their verdict to see if our flag is still flying.

"Take our Constitution and send it to the junk pile and adopt the Moscow manifesto," he said. "Take the statues of Washington and Lincoln out of the parks and erect shafts to Lenin and Trotzky. Go to the churches and take the Christ off the cross. Put in his place Judas.

"These men are being tried under an act of our State Legislature. The reason for this law is that our legislators believed that an ounce of prevention is worth ten Haymarket riots. If you think the defendants are just 'bugs' I want to tell you they are the kind of men who make blood run through the streets."

McClay Hoyne, State's Attorney, declared war on all "Reds" in Cook County on Jan. 1. Raids were made on meeting places of the radicals and 161 were arrested. Thirty-nine were members of the Communist Labor Party, eighty-seven belonged to the Communist Party, and thirty-five were I. W. W.'s. All were indicted. Twenty members of the Communist Labor Party were put on trial first. Several were granted separate trials and turned State's evidence.

Selection of the jury began on May 10 and fifty-two days were spent in the PARIS, Aug. 2.—"The attitude of the German military party toward the Russo-Polish business is simply that of expectant fishers in troubled waters," said today a high allied office just returned from Berlin after spending more than a year in Poland, the Baltic Provinces and East Prussia. "No one who has anything to do with them can imagine that they have any real sympathy for Bolshevism or want to see Germany go Red, but as matters stand they have nothing to lose by the stormy weather on the eastern frontier and perhaps everything to gain."

There is still a very prevalent idea in France that the German militarists and Bolsheviki are hand in glove. The French have never got over the belief that Ludendorff sent Lenin into Russia to make a revolution and that, therefore, the extremes of Bolshevism and Junkerism must always meet. In reality both Lenin's passage across Germany during the war and more recent intrigues between the Germans and Reds—which undoubtedly have taken place—represent nothing but the "fishing in troubled waters" to which the officer referred.

I have received documents showing the existence of a German militarist plot in Upper Silesia with details as to organization of different corps—nominally temporary volunteers, citizens' guard, security police, &c.—and large concealed stores of arms and material. The substance of these documents will be embodied in a later dispatch. It is enough to say now that the purpose of the plot was twofold—first, to retain Upper Silesia against the Poles either by terrorizing the Polish population and so produce a plebiscite vote in Germany's favor, or, if that was impossible, to seize the country by force of arms, and, second, to maintain a strong reactionary and military nucleus with a view to subsequent action at a favorable moment in Germany.

Owing to the Polish collapse before the Bolshevist action by the plotters which it was intended should be launched at the end of June, has been postponed. They are waiting to see what will happen, but their organization is as strong as ever and they have plans ready to suit various eventualities.

This movement is exactly paralleled by similar organizations in East Prussia. In fact, the two movements are nothing but different sides of the same coin.

Allied observers declared that it is positively impossible to compute the real number of German troops in this area. In addition to the Reichswehr, whose presence is more or less legitimate, there are the different so-called volunteer forces referred to above. It is known that there are also large numbers of men in so-called demobilization depots which, in reality, would be better named remobilization depots.

In addition—and it is here where the Allies are at sea—there are what is called colonization societies for putting demobilized soldiers back on the land. With the help and connivance of the great landed proprietors very large numbers of ex-soldiers have thus found a refuge. That arms and munitions for them have been hidden is not doubted, and that schemes have been prepared for their rapid assembly and formation into units is held to be equally certain.

Estimates of their number vary from 75,000 to 150,000. They include ex-members of the von der Goltz Iron Division, which retook Riga from the Bolsheviki

ALLIES UNREADY FOR POLISH CRISIS

Parallel Drawn Between Situation Now and at Time of German Drive in 1918.

GERMANY'S STAND IN DOUBT

Entente Europe at Mental, Moral and Military Disadvantage in Face of Peril.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The French newspapers are publishing reports from America indicating that in that country a very grave view is taken of the Russian advance in Poland. This view corresponds with the opinion of American observers in Europe.

It has long been difficult for them to understand why the allied powers could continue to ignore the menace of Russia. They regard the present situation as furnishing a sinister parallel to that which existed at the time of the German offensive in the Spring of 1918. The condition today is not less serious because of the intermingling of industrial and social with military considerations.

In 1918 the Germans took advantage of the confusion of counsel and leadership among the Allies. Each was intent on its own interest, the British upon defending the Channel ports and the French upon saving Paris. At that time Lloyd George, President Wilson and others succeeded in bringing about unity under Foch's command only barely in time to stop the Germans.

The various members of the alliance seem in the face of the present emergency unable to adopt a similar line of action to stop Russia. Indeed America has been much more prompt to see the danger and measure it accurately.

The allied powers have been deeply preoccupied with problems of immediate concern and pressure, which have made themselves felt daily and hourly upon the Governments. Russia was always there, but its threat was in general rather than in definite terms. No two Premiers could agree on a course of action. In fact, Russia up to now has been a sealed book. There was no such thing as fact about Russia. No two witnesses would come back from Russia with the same testimony.

Anglo-French Differences of View.

Behind all this lay an irreconcilable difference of viewpoint between the two dominant Allies. England must think of sea power and her empire in the Orient. France's interest lay in Russo-German relations and the milliards which old Russia owes to French lenders. Thus lacking a basis of fact as to conditions in Russia under Soviet autocracy and lacking identity of interest upon which to form a policy England and France have been trying, to conserve their respective interests in matters nearer at hand—matters that have at every moment placed in imminent peril the good relations between the two because of the inherent differences of interest.

As against Britain's need of preserving her widely diversified political and commercial interests French opinion and the Government have been concentrated on two prime objects—first, to compel payment by Germany of the bill for damages, and, second, to obtain future security against Germany. For some months, for example, Lloyd George has been seeking to establish a relationship with Germany which would permit resumption of trade between that country and England. The latter relieved of her old fear of ruin by German competition, is anxious to get back her best single customer, for that is what Germany was before the war. France has been very fearful lest in this attempt England might compromise the amount or safety of the indemnity or strengthen Germany in some future effort against France.

It is not blaming either Lloyd George or Millerand to say that both have

RISING IN REAR OF REDS

Report in Berlin That Russians Are Recruiting Socialists in East Prussia for Army.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 3.—The Polish and Bolshevist armistice delegates met Friday evening at Kobryn, on the railroad east of Brest-Litovsk, and the negotiations began Saturday morning, Karl Radek representing the Bolsheviki, says a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Berlin.

It is stated that the Bolsheviki began by demanding the surrender of Brest-Litovsk, which already was in their hands.

Up to yesterday afternoon nothing had arrived in official British or Polish quarters in London to indicate definitely whether the Russian and Polish armistice emissaries had actually come into contact.

The British Foreign Office is pressing all its representatives in that part of the world for any scrap of news as to what is going on, but no result has been obtained.

Recruiting in East Prussia.

Recruiting for the Red army is beginning to make itself felt in East Prussia, and membership in one of the Socialist parties is the condition of admittance, according to an Allenstein (Prussia) dispatch to the Neue Berliner Zeitung quoted by The London Times this morning.

Bolshevist cavalry, which was in Lomza Sunday, says the Neue Berliner Zeitung, has been driven back, but there are large Bolshevist forces at Graievo.

The German correspondent describes the appearance of Bolshevist cavalry on the German frontier, which, he says, was nowhere greatly violated. Officers, he adds, repeatedly assured the population that the frontier would be respected and that they had no idea of violating German territory.

The Russians, according to the correspondent, pay for everything with Soviet notes and treat the population well. The Bolshevist cavalry is reported to be well equipped, with pre-revolutionary discipline prevailing.

Hot fighting along the river Narew, in the region northeast of Warsaw, is reported in Sunday's official Soviet communiqué, received by wireless from Moscow.

A crossing of the river at one point by the Bolsheviki is announced, and progress against the Poles further to the southeast, in the Bielsk region, is claimed. The Soviet cavalry also is reported pressing in northeast of Lemberg.

The statement reads:

"In the Lomza region fighting is continuing for the fords of the river Narew. West of Bialystok the Soviet troops have crossed the Narew and are continuing the pursuit of the enemy. West of Bielsk our troops debouched at the line of the river Nuretz (Nurzac), forcing it at several points.

"In the region of Brody our cavalry has advanced as a result of fighting north of Busk. [Busk is forty-five miles northeast of Lemberg.]

"In the Chertkoff region our advance is continuing."

Don Cossacks on German Frontier.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Illustrating the swift dramatic change in the international situation is the fact that for all practical purposes, even if only temporarily, there is now a common frontier between Germany and Soviet Russia for the length of 120 miles, that is to say, territory between Vladislavoff and Friedrichshoff on the East Prussian border, is in the hands of the Bolsheviki.

At various points on the Polish side of the line are Russian posts consisting of Don Cossack cavalry whose officers have assured the frontier dwellers there is no intention of crossing into Germany. The Russian soldiers are well armed and clothed partly in uniforms of the old armies and partly in field gray.

Up to last night the fighting continued, and the Poles, doing better, retook Lomza from a Bolshevist squadron.

At Warsaw the new chief of the Polish General Staff stated that the position was serious, but it was now believed the Poles would be able to hold up the Bolshevist advance. He added that the fight must go on to the bitter end.

BERLIN, Aug. 2 (Associated Press).—The stiffening of the Polish resistance is ascribed by the Tageblatt's correspondent to the arrival at the front of the first contingent of the new volunteer forces. The Polish retreat has slowed down on the River Pisza, which rises in the Mazurian Lakes and flows into the Narew near Novgorod.

A mass of Bolshevist infantry in the vicinity of Lomza is reported to be moving on Warsaw, supported in the centre by General Budenny's cavalry. The Poles have obtained some successes south of Brody after hard fighting.

The Polish lines of retreat from Lomza, Pultusk, Ostroff and Skobel have become completely blocked, adds the dispatch, causing large quantities of materials and many prisoners to fall into the hands of the Bolsheviki.

A special dispatch to the Neue Berliner Zeitung states that allied troops which retired from the Polish frontier of East Prussia when it was reached by the Soviet forces have established their camp at Allenstein. The report asserts that the Interallied Commission in this region is apparently at a loss as to how to proceed, being taken unawares by the swift advance of the Russian forces, which forced them to withdraw the Entente troops in order to avoid a clash. The commission is said to be now awaiting orders, but is unable to communicate with the Entente Governments.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 2.—A special dispatch to the National Tidende from Warsaw says it is reported from Lubling that a great insurrection has broken out in West Ukraine behind the Bolshevist front, compelling the Bolsheviki to withdraw two divisions from the Polish front in order to fight the rebels. Peasant Leader Machno occupied Ekterinoslav and is in touch with Wrangel's army.

National Tidende advices from Warsaw say Premier Witos daily receives numerous peasant deputations from all the provinces urging general call to the colors of all citizens up to 40 years of age, and assuring him that they can guarantee maintenance of order in the country.

The first battalions of the volunteer army have been successfully engaged, having repelled all enemy attacks in the sector of the front intrusted to them.

The Central Committee of the Polish Social Democratic Party has resolved to do its utmost to repel invasion and defend the independence of Poland.

The Bolsheviki in the occupied districts of Galicia are said to be forcibly enrolling in their army all men from 18 to 60 years of age.

WARSAW, Aug. 1 (Associated Press).—Doubt was expressed today in diplomatic circles here as to whether an agreement for an armistice would come out of the negotiations between the Polish and Soviet emissaries at Baranovitchi. It was thought that the Soviet authorities were likely to insist upon terms too severe for the Poles to accept.

The Polish delegates carried with them into the Russian lines a portable wireless outfit, which they intended to use for communication with Warsaw.

WASHINGTON WANTS TO BE CONSULTED

Holds Our Interest in Poland's Fate Vital, but Wilson's Hands Are Tied.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Although officials of the Government decline to make any statement on the subject, informal exchanges appear to have taken place between representatives of the United States and European countries concerning the conference between the Allies and the Soviet Government. It is understood that the United States will take the position that any conference that contemplates changing the terms of the treaty of Versailles should include representatives of the United States as principals or observers.

This attitude is based on two considerations. One is that as a Government, associated with other sections in the World War, the United States should be consulted on modification of the terms. The Government contends that it is still a party to these matters because the armistice is still in operation as far as the United States Government is concerned, and discussions growing out of the armistice terms affect the United States. The other consideration is that anything savoring of any agreement with the Soviet Government that may lead to recognition, or change the boundaries of Poland, is of vital importance to America.

President Wilson is set in his determination that there shall be no recognition of the Soviet, believing that it does not represent the will of a majority of the people. The United States Government also holds that the Bolshevist Government has no right to dispose of Russian territory as it sees fit.

Officials in Washington are discouraged over the outlook for material aid to Poland and the elements in Soviet-ridden Russia and adjacent territories, once part of the Czar's domain, that are anxious to throw off the Bolshevist yoke. They see no signs of military assistance from Great Britain, France and Italy. These countries are not likely, it is believed, to go to the aid of the Russian and Polish people with armies sufficient to defeat the Bolsheviki.

It is felt here, however, that a large majority of the people of the United States are indifferent to the dangers that threaten this country by the spread of Bolshevism. It seems to be impossible to arouse America to a realization of what Bolshevism means.

Serious concern is felt here in regard to the prevailing conditions. The President, from all accounts, is determined to combat all effort of the Bolsheviki to make it appear that they control Russia, but the desire on his part to help the Russians who are anxious to establish a stable and representative Government is likely to fail of realization, mainly because of the indifference in this country.

The danger of Bolshevism is becoming acute in Europe, and officials here believe that the United States should be prepared to combat it actively. The best means of combating it, according to one opinion, was to refuse recognition of the Soviet Government and prevent that Government from forcing the Poles to accept terms of peace that would weaken the Polish nation. Incident to this there is distrust of any promises that the Soviet Government may make to the Poles.

WITOS MESSAGE TO WILSON.

Says President Is Nearer and Dearer Than Ever to Polish Hearts.

WARSAW, Aug. 1.—The Foreign Office gives out the following message sent by the new Polish Premier, M. Witos, to President Wilson:

"Mr. President: Having assumed the office of Prime Minister of Poland, at this momentous hour I hasten to renew to your Excellency the expression of the Polish Government's deep and sincere gratitude for America's generous help and continuous sympathy extended to this country.

"Poland, for her part, not only has American welfare and American interests strongly at heart, but the entire Polish people consider Polish-American friendship to be one of the greatest assets in the future prosperity of both countries.

"Let me add, Mr. President, that you, having been the most stanch promoter and defender of Polish independence, are at this hour of our country's greatest need nearer and dearer than ever to every Polish heart.

(Signed) "WITOS."

LITHUANIANS DRIVE BOLSHEVIKI BACK

Reds Seize Count Tyskevicius as Hostage—Execute Many Citizens of Vilna.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 2.—A special dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende from Kovno says that in spite of all the promises and declarations made to Lithuania, the Bolsheviki continue their terrorism here, apparently in accordance with direct instructions from Moscow.

Numerous arrests and executions occur every day, the chief of the Lithuanian Political Department states. All shops have been closed, the proprietors arrested and the shops looted. Count Stanislaus Tyskevicius has been taken as hostage under menace of execution if Lithuania refuses to place at the disposal of the Bolsheviki railway material for transporting material to Grodno. The Lithuanian Government refused and the Count was taken off to a Bolshevist concentration camp.

The Bolsheviki are also continuously crossing the demarkation line in order to use the main roads for transports, so that the Lithuanians were finally obliged to drive them back by force of arms and blow up bridges.

The President of the Soviet revolutionary court-martial states officially that death sentences were pronounced in the period from May 2 to June 26, of which 273 were for desertion, thirty-five for counterrevolutionary attempts, thirty-eight for treason and forty-five for mutiny.

BOLSHEVIST ENVOYS AGAIN IN LONDON

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Up to tonight no reply has been received from Moscow to the allied note sent on Tuesday last setting forth certain stipulations with regard to the proposed conference with Kameneff and Krassin, who have now arrived in London.

Meanwhile the Bolshevist offensive continues, and in official circles it is considered likely that the Bolsheviki will continue their attack until they hold the strongest position possible, including perhaps Warsaw, with a view to gaining betters terms at the conference. Weight is added to this suggestion by the fact that no time limit for a reply was stipulated in the allied note.

On account of the difficult situation, the question of resuming negotiations with the Bolshevist envoys has had to be reconsidered. In their last note to the Soviet Government it was clearly stated by the British Government that resumption of negotiations would be conditional upon the conclusion of an armistice with Poland. As the Red armies are still fighting against the Poles, the opinion held in diplomatic circles is that, for the present at any rate, there will be no further discussions with the Bolshevist delegates. The position was considered at a special Cabinet meeting today.

Queen Can't Pay 'American' Prices.

PARIS, July 12.—The Queen of Rumania taught luxury-buying folk a lesson recently when she entered an antique shop. She picked up an amber statuette and asked the price. "One hundred and twenty pounds," was the reply. 'That's too much for me," said the Queen. Her daughter, Princess Elizabeth, who was with the Queen, added: "They must think we are Americans."

ALLIES UNREADY FOR POLISH CRISIS

done their best to safeguard their respective interests, and in so far as has been consistent with this main purpose they have both exercised the utmost care and patience in a mutual attempt to preserve the Anglo-French entente, which is the king pin of the alliance. If it were a matter between Lloyd George and Millerand alone all fears of a break might be dismissed. They are both friendly men engaged in the same profession of politics, and each would make sacrifices to help the other in maintaining himself under attack from the Parliaments which await their return to their capitals to ask embarrassing questions, but it is these Parliaments and the people and press still behind them, naturally partial to their own particular interests and prejudices, that may at any time cause the long overstrained ties of friendship to snap.

That such conditions should exist—and what is true of the two big allies is true of the small ones, only they cannot help themselves and a break would be less dangerous—is not surprising. It is only ordinary human nature that France should have her eye on her interests and Britain her eye on hers, just as it was that Haig in 1918 thought first of the Channel ports and Petain of Paris. But in 1918 it was possible because of the outstanding and spectacular menace to the common interests, and—if an American may be permitted to say so—because of the insistence of the United States, with a detached and disinterested viewpoint, to compel the temporary setting aside of self-interest and adoption of a plan of unity.

Allies Have Relied on America.

With Russia at the gates of Warsaw it is not too soon to say that from the time that America withdrew from Europe there has been a steady decline in allied unity and a constant drift among the Entente powers toward separatism. There is a circumstance in this connection which has not yet been emphasized because of those international sensibilities which cub frankness of comment. America has been tremendously potent in the war and treaty making. When she pulled out, her retirement was so gradual it seemed even doubtful whether she had definitely and finally retired. Instead of redressing the balance of Europe as between the Allies themselves and as between victorious and defeated nations, the Entente has continued to reckon on the full power of the country which gave its full power for the war itself. President Wilson has not the power to extend help to compel enforcement of the Versailles Treaty, and his successor may not have the will to do so. But there is in Europe today less spirit of conciliation and deeper determination to make any and all settlements in terms of victory than there ever has been.

It is not intended here to criticise anti-German feeling on the score of fairness to the Germans. They undoubtedly deserve all they are getting. The vice of allied management is its lack of broad view and unity of leadership.

The Governments of Western Europe have had no big, comprehensive program. Lenin and Trotzky have. It was a program of world-wide destruction. It was evil and it was definite. They organized the greatest army in the world, well armed, well fed and well led. They cultivated friendly relations with all elements estranged from the Entente. They have doubtless watched Germany ceaselessly for a moment favorable to surmounting the strongest natural barrier to their westward progress. They never seriously feared Poland. They knew what this new and unseasoned State was made of. But they certainly expected no such windfall as came to them in the Polish military adventure.

Who was it that sent a boy with a switch against the red giant? Everybody is denying it, and I notice that in some quarters a certain share of responsibility is being laid at America's door. There is not one atom of foundation for the charge. America helped Poland in every way she could to set up and maintain a stable government. We were profoundly gratified at her initial success. When, however, about fifteen months ago Poland began to show an aggressive militaristic spirit and begged us for arms and equipment I remember distinctly the position taken by our military advisers. They opposed the suggestion most energetically and deprecated the effect on the Poles of French military instruction. It was always American opinion that Poland could exercise the greatest measure of protection against the Bolshevist advance by making a success of its efforts in self-rule.

What will Lenine and Trotzky do in Poland? The best opinion I can gather here is that they will go to Warsaw and there make the biggest show possible of armed strength. After duly impressing Poland with the Bolshevist strength they will address the Poles in terms of fraternity. It would be better for them to bridge over than march through Poland. They would hardly undertake to march much further westward than Warsaw. After all, the distance from Moscow to Paris is the same for Lenine as from Paris to Moscow was for Napoleon. And war is only one of the games that Lenine knows how to play.

Warsaw Way Station to Berlin.

Warsaw is a way sation on the road to Berlin. It may be it is in Germany that Bolshevism hopes to recruit new forces necessary to carry its movement forward. The wisest counselors of the Entente in Berlin have always advised that it was the Left and not the Right from which danger was to be feared. The Junkers were arrogant and offensive, but the Spartacides were dangerous. For maintaining this thesis Major General Malcolm, the British military representative in Berlin, is now being castigated in the Paris press.

If the Bolshevist movement goes on unchecked Berlin will shortly become the centre of interest. Germany's normal instinct is against Bolshevism. She has figured in back of everybody's head as the real breakwater against the oncoming tide. Winston Churchill's plea for voluntary resistance by Germany as a means of reinstating herself in the family of civilized nations may have been a Lloyd George kite, but it has not flown well. All the same it is imaginable that leadership might appear in Germany—at least one name could be connected with such leadership, that of Hindenburg—that would rally a very large element in that country against Russian Bolshevism. Such leadership and the following it would command could not pretend to answer any call from civilization as represented by the Entente. Nor could it appear to the best advantage in such a character. Spontaneous rising of Germans to whom Bolshevism was hateful would better serve improved relationship with the Entente than any pre-arranged co-operation. It is too early for Hindenburg to serve under Foch for any cause whatever, and neither would have it.

It is impossible to know whether Germany either could or would make a stand if Russian Bolshevism joined hands with German Spartacism. The Germans would be far less wicked than we have all been thinking them if they put away temptation to reduce Europe to the common level of destruction from which all might struggle up on an equality and in accordance with their individual and national powers of recovery.

No one is fully capable of measuring in advance the strength of Bolshevism in one form or another in Germany. But the appearance in Warsaw of a victorious Russian army and the process of Bolshevist infiltration from this vantage point into Germany would be a severe test on a country morally and commercially ostracised. Whatever forces of law and order may still exist in Germany the potency of their appeal to desperate elements is weakened by the obvious answer that Germans cannot look to the West with any prospect of friendliness, whereas Germany, by apparently and temporarily yielding to Bolshevism, might possibly become the reorganizer and exploiter of Russia—possibly form a German Empire, which would more than compensate for the loss of mid-Europe, Bagdad, Africa and all the rest.

The German offensive broke down when it seemed strongest in 1918. Perhaps Russia, too, may overplay her hand. Short of that it seems difficult to discern how Bolshevism can be completely disposed of either by war or diplomacy. We have dealt with it as England has dealt with the Sinn Fein, absent mindedly and left handedly. For months it has been the great question confronting Western Europe, but the Allies have been too busy apportioning indemnities not yet collected to take serious notice.

At Spa the chief achievement was the disarmament of Germany which may prove to be the deciding factor in giving Bolshevism a clear channel to the West. There is only one other ready military machine apart from Trotzky's army. It is Foch's army on the Rhine. It is a beautiful mechanism and Foch could control Germany as against France by pushing electric buttons and never have to leave his office in the Hotel des Invalides. But the Bolshevist advance accompanied by a German revolution would be an entirely different thing.

It would be idle to deny that armed and organized Bolshevism supported by uncounted Oriental hordes and appealing to great elements in the Western European populations finds the Allies as unready as if it were a new movement. Unless it breaks down by its own weight Entente Europe may be compelled to meet the peril for which she is mentally, economically and militarily unprepared.

SEES BOLSHEVISM CRUMBLING WITHIN

General Terentsky, Who Escaped from Russia, Tells of Red Regime's Weakness.

LOOKS FOR REVOLT SOON

Thinks It Will Begin Among Soldiers Drafted for Labor and Spread to Mass of Workers.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The following article, written specially for THE NEW YORK TIMES by Lieut. Gen. Zankevitch Terentsky, gives a measured opinion from inside knowledge of the strength of Bolshevist-held Russia and the possibilities which may result from negotiation with the Allies.

General Terentsky was at one time Russian Military Attaché in Vienna. During the war he held a command at the front, and after the Kerensky revolution was sent to France to command the Russian troops here. He remained in France till the Fall of last year, when he was summoned by Admiral Kolchak to become his chief of staff. He arrived too late to redeem the error of that unfortunate campaign and only escaped death with his leader by disguising himself and posing as a Bolshevist workman.

During many weeks he spent with the Bolsheviki before he escaped through Siberia he learned much from his fellows as to how the Bolsheviki are regarded by the Russian people, and from other evidence from friends in Russia has been able to form a studied estimate of their strength and weakness. Though he was a soldier of the Czarist régime and fought under Kolchak, he is far from being a reactionary, and his article shows careful arrangement of facts and deductions. He writes:

"The conversations which have been going on in London between Krassin and Lloyd George appear likely to lead to a change in the attitude of the Entente Governments toward that of Moscow and toward reconciliation. The considerations which have brought about this result are in the first place the urgent necessity of improving economic conditions in Europe which has been deprived of the Russian market, and in the second place the erroneous idea that the abnormal Soviet Government is more and more stabilizing itself and consolidating its power.

Soviet Government Unstable.

"Both ideas are falsely founded. Knowing, as I do, the attitude of the Russian people toward the Bolsheviki, I can state confidently that the Soviet Government is in no sense solid and stable, nor is it likely to become more so. Statistics which have been many times published and are admitted by the Soviets themselves show that of 120,000,000 people in Russia there are only half a million Communists, and in spite of the most intense Communist propaganda, and the great advantage which the members of that community enjoy, their number is in no way increasing. This fact is sufficient proof that the people generally are not in sympathy with the Communist program. It is only 4 per cent. of the people who make what is called Soviet Russia.

"Under the present Government the workers are a privileged class, but in spite of the very large sums paid to them they are not able to meet the high cost of living, which increases always in proportion to wages. Not even the best paid can do more than supply the barest needs of life. It was for this reason that they began to leave the factories and abandon work altogether. Their argument was a sensible one—'If we can't get enough to eat by working, why work?' The Soviet Government's reply was a series of decrees to transform the workers into serfs by imposing the most severe penalties on any who should quit work. As a result of these measures the greatest discontent began among the workers.

"It will be asked why, then, do they put up with the Soviets? During my enforced association with them after the death of Admiral Kalchak I had often occasion to put the same question to workmen. The answer I got was always the same: 'We don't believe in Kolchak nor in Denikin, nor in Socialists nor in the Bolsheviki. They have all done the same thing, caused ruin to the country. The Bolsheviki are as bad as any others, but in following them we hope that civil war will end, and that is one evil the less.'

"In order further to consolidate their position as governors of the nation the Bolsheviki tried before the drive against Poland to transform part of their Red army into an army of workers. It is an inevitable step, if they wish to increase production and redeem the country from its present state of absolute disorganization and want, and they will be sure to return to it after peace. But in it there is a very great element of danger. These workmen are escaping the iron discipline of the army, and their discontent is not likely to be less than that of the great mass of unorganized workers. Sooner or later, it is inevitable that from among them will come the first strong revolt against Bolshevist rule.

Situation of the Peasants.

"Among the peasants the situation is somewhat different. The land of former proprietors has been given them, but owing to the scarcity of horses and implements they are able to produce only a little, which in neighboring large towns they sell at enormous prices. An almost comic part of their attitude is that they are saving up money earned this way to buy the land that has been given to them when a 'real government will be set up.' To the general discontent the Bolsheviki have added that of the peasants by an enormous amount of requisitioning, which has reduced the number of horses by 80 per cent.

"The state of the middle classes is the worst and in many ways the most hopeless. Having lost all rights and been completely ruined by the Bolsheviki, it is natural enough that they should entertain for them nothing but hate. But their power to revolt is limited, for their whole interest and occupation is in getting enough, or rather far less than enough, to eat.

"With so many enemies among the mass of people, the only way by which the Bolsheviki can maintain their authority is by terror, and for that reason they are forced to keep always two-thirds of the Red army in the interior of the country. This to some extent explains the comparative ease of the first Polish advance. How long that system of terror can continue to restrain the people from revolt it is impossible to gauge accurately, but so immense is the spirit of revolt against it that sooner or later it is bound to fall and the revolt will begin among the army workers who have been drafted out of the Red army. Psychologically, it is impossible that the Soviet Government can last much longer. Its solidity is a myth. All that it has accomplished is to sow envy and hate. Sooner or later it will reap the fruit.

"Almost entirely the Bolshevist motive in sending Krassin to London was to strengthen their internal position. They know well that it will take long years of labor under settled conditions before Russia can be again in a position to contribute the produce of her soil and mines to help in the re-establishment of Europe. They themselves, indeed, estimate that it will take eight years to put things in order and begin production on any large scale. Their side of the London conversations was, therefore, almost entirely bluff, from which they hoped to gain recognition. Such a result would be of incalculable benefit in strengthening their position, for, as I have pointed out, while they are now tolerated as the de facto government, they would then have the appearance of right and authority, which they would use to extend their mastery over the people.

"It would be wrong, too, to think that there can be any evolution of the Bolshevist form of Government. It is too rigid a thing, and any evolution it will undergo must be renunciation of its own doctrines and methods. Of ending it there is only one hope—that the terrible misery should lead to a revolt among the organized workers which would spread to the Red army. That is a hope not idle to entertain, and it will strengthen it if the allied Governments will refuse to treat with the Bosheviki and thus enable them to dangle before the eyes of the starving people the prospect of better times through their endeavors."

GERMANS IN PLOT ON EASTERN BORDER

By WALTER DURANTY.

in co-operation with the Baltic German Landswehr in the Spring of last year, and also of Ehrhardt's naval brigade, which attacked Riga with Bermont last Fall, and later took part in the Kapp revolution in Berlin. Their leaders are Ehrhadrt, Major Fletcher—who headed the Baltic Landswehr—and other reactionaries. In Silesia are Luttwitz, Colonel Bauer—one of Ludendorff's chief henchmen—and the old militarist gang.

In Silesia the plot was first anti-Polish and second to put through another reactionary coup. In East Prussia there was an additional object, to march once more on Riga and win back the Baltic for Germany. Now both parties are standing ready, prepared to turn either against the Poles or the Bolshevik as occasion offers.

The advance of the German troops up to the frontier in the region of Allenstein is the first move in their game. What will follow depends on what happens in Poland. If the Bolsheviki overrun the country or the Poles themselves go Red there will be some strong trumps in the German hand. Meanwhile there are four points worth considering:

First—That the German leaders and the troops under their command represent the element that by tradition, interest, training and position is most utterly and bitterly opposed to Bolshevism in Germany.

Second—They hate the Poles only less than they hate the Reds and the "corridor" of Danzig is at once an economic hindrance and a terrible thorn in the flesh of their national pride.

Third—They are on good terms with Lithuania, which is getting very restive under Russian attempts to establish Soviet rule there, and have in Latvia a strong German element in the shape of the Baltic Landwehr, which has been incorporated under a different name, but as a single unit in the Lettish Army.

Fourth (and most important)—These Germans are the only troops anywhere in the region both able and willing to fight the Bolsheviki. If they play their game cleverly they may score a big success. Of course anything of the kind is in rank contradiction of the Peace Treaty, but the German militarists feel the Allies should worry about that, not they.

SENDS MEN TO BORDER, VIOLATING TREATY

Germany Acts, Failing to Receive Allied Answer to Request for Permission.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Germany believes that the hesitations of the Allies should not interfere with her interests. Herr Gosport, German Chargé d'Affaires at Paris, handed to Premier Millerand today a note stating that owing to the arrival of Russian troops at the border of Allenstein, which recently voted to remain German, Berlin had authorized the dispatch of troops to the frontier line on the other side of which Trotzky's troopers are ranging.

On July 21 Germany asked the Allies for permission to send extra troops to her eastern boundaries to enforce respect for her frontiers. The Allies have not yet decided what answer to make. Yesterday the Germans sent a note asking that the reply be hurried. Today they notify the Allies that they have taken the step. They add that they will bring the troops back should the Allies insist. It should be noted that the Italian troops which constituted the Allies' plebiscite force in this part of Allenstein were withdrawn from the line several days ago, leaving the frontier unprotected.

An interesting feature of the situation is that the German note of July 2 was addressed to the Committee of Ambassadors. This committee has now declared itself on a vacation without replying to the German request.

It would seem that it would be difficult to condemn the Germans' action so long as they remain on Allenstein territory, and since it would seem that they were entitled to a prompt reply to their first request in view of the conditions. Nevertheless there is French criticism of their action without permission. The semi-official Temps tonight says:

"The sending of German troops to the frontier of Allenstein where they are in contact with the Bolsheviki is an event whose gravity is apparent as soon as one looks at the map. The frontier of Allenstein is only eleven kilometers from the station of Lava on the railroad from Danzig to Warsaw. It is forty-five kilometers from the city of Lomza and 125 kilometers from Warsaw. Also thereby contact between the Germans and Bolsheviki is established on a long front, whereas more to the east, in the region north of Suwalki, contact is established only across Lithuania."

The Germans have unquestionably violated the treaty in their action, but they did so only after asking allied permission and receiving no reply.

NEW RAIL TARIFFS DUE THIS MONTH

the railroads were not entitled to more than a 14 per cent. increase in freight rates.

Lauck Wages Limit as to Prices.

W. Jett Lauck, the economist, gave out a statement today saying that the new rates should not have an appreciable effect upon the family purse. It was Mr. Lauck who presented statistics on behalf of the employes recently to the Railroad Labor Board.

"What the public ought to know," he said today, "is that there would have been no occasion for such a large advance in railroad rates provided the railroads had been and were now efficiently and economically managed, and provided the 'water' were squeezed out of railroad securities, and provided the railroads were not themselves the victim of the profiteers in railway equipment, steel and iron products, lumber, coal and oil, to the extent of $400,000,000 or $500,000,000 per year, as shown by our investigation.

"Still, there is no occasion for alarm in the prospect of an addition of $1,500,000,000 to the annual transportation bill of the country, provided this item is not multiplied four or five times before it is presented to the people for payment.

"For instance, by no possible computation can the increased freight rates be made to justify an increase of 1 cent per pound in the price of meat to the consumer, an increase of 5 cents per pair in the price of shoes, an increase of 10 cents in the price of a suit of clothes, or an increase of one-fourth of 1 cent in the price of a loaf of bread.

"An added annual charge of $15 per capita, or $75 per family, seems large, but as a matter of fact the increase in railroad rates will not mean that much as a direct charge to the individual or to the family. A substantial part of the revenues of the railroads comes from freight on imports and in that case the increase will be paid entirely by purchasers of those exports in other countries. There is also the very considerable item of the freight on materials and produce of all kinds bought by the Federal, State and municipal Governments, which is paid through taxation.

"Coal is one commodity the price of which will be directly and appreciably increased by the advance in freight rates, the increase ranging from 75 cents to $1.35 per ton, but even that does not make a very great difference in the annual budget of the family.

"The increase in freight rates should have no appreciable effect on the prices of the vast majority of things which the ordinary consumer purchases. This is so for the reason that in the case of almost all ordinary commodities the cost of transportation at present is such a negligible item in their selling price that an increase of even 40 per cent. in freight rates would be an unimportant addition.

Household Budget Increase Slight.

"This fact is brought out clearly when an analysis is made of the selling prices of almost any commodity in relation to the cost of transportation of such commodity," said Mr. Lauck. "Thus, in the average household budget meat constitutes one of the most important items of expenditure, the average family consuming about 400 pounds of meat per year.

"The average wholesale price of meat in Eastern cities in 1919 was about 21 cents per pound and the average retail price about twice this much. At the same time the freight rate per pound for a haul of 1,000 miles, which is well above the average haul, was less than seven-tenths of 1 cent.

"Even when liberal allowance is made for the other transportation costs entering into the final price of meat, such as the hauling of the cattle to the slaughterhouse or the hauling of feed for the cattle, it seems clear that the total transportation cost in a pound of meat is at present not over 2 cents.

"A 40 per cent. increase in freights, therefore, would add less than 1 cent per pound to transportation costs, and, at the maximum, should add no more than the same amount to the retail selling price."

Harrison Sees Saving in Near Future.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (Associated Press).—Fairfax Harrison, President of the Southern Railway System, issued a formal statement tonight saying the ultimate effect of the Government's new rate plan should be to leave to the carriers of the country the opportunity for "a constant and progressive reduction of rates, accompanied by an enlargement of service."

"The tremendous increase of railroad rates authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission," said President Harrison in his statement, "seems to complete the cycle of Government management of the railroad industry. It was necessary to carry the scale of expenses set up by the Railroad Administration, but it must cause great concern as to its economic consequences.

"It now remains for private management to resume the practice of competitive efficiency and self-reliant initiative which distinguished the American railroads during so many years, and to justify the preference of the American people for that form of administration by making possible, not only the success of individual companies and the prosperity of their loyal employes, but a constant and progressive reduction of rates, accompanied by an enlargement of service to the public, such as may be traced through the old-fashioned railroad statistics.

BANKERS PRAISE RATE ACTION.

Business Interests Look for Improved Service by Railroads.

In railroad and banking circles yesterday the new schedule of railroad rates was generally approved and various phases of the situation attracted particular attention, chief among these being the action of the commission in granting less of an increase to the Southern carriers than had been asked for and the expectation of further action by the State commissions to allow for increases in intrastate rates which will even them up with the rates as allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Other points which attracted attention were the volume of new equipment orders which will be placed immediately by the carriers, the affect that increases in commutation rates will have on the volume of passenger traffic, and, lastly, what form the future financing of railroad requirements will take.

In conservative quarters the commission's action in allowing the Southern carriers only a 25 per cent. increase was interpreted to mean that the commissioners in studying the situation did not lose sight of the enormous increase in the volume of freight and passenger traffic enjoyed by the carriers in that territory since 1912. In that period passenger traffic almost doubled, while there was a heavy increase as well in the freight department.

In addition it was pointed out that a great deal of the new traffic which has gone to the Southern roads has gone to them to stay, while there has been a steady improvement shown in the earnings statements of a majority of these Southern lines in recent months. In some quarters attention was directed to the preferential freight rates to South Atlantic ports, as inaugurated during the war and still in force. These diverted a large volume of traffic from the Great Lakes district to the South, and the opinion was expressed yesterday that the commission had considered such facts in reaching the increase finally allowed to the Southern roads.

On the question of bringing intrastate rates up to the new level established by the Interstate Commerce Commission's ruling on Saturday, there were conflicting beliefs expressed. By some it is asserted that individual States are striving to re-establish pre-war rates within their borders, and, while the law provides that the Interstate Commerce Commission may suspend such rates if they prove discriminatory, there would be a delay before the matter was properly adjusted that would cost the carriers affected a lot of money.

On the other hand, it was declared, the railroads have already taken steps to petition the different State commissions for immediate increases in intrastate rates to meet the advances announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the feeling was general in many quarters that the majority of the States would grant such increases. This belief was based on the preponderant evidence that shippers and the general public have as a whole subscribed to the idea of immediate advance in railroad rates.

Regarding the placing of orders for new equipment on a large scale by the railroad companies, the opinion was expressed in conservative circles yesterday that probably the carriers would concentrate almost all of their immediate efforts to rehabiliate existing equipment to the highest possible degree of efficiency.

New orders will probably be placed, it was said by those concerned in railroad equipment, for delivery next Summer and Fall, but there was some doubt expressed that the volume of business would be as heavy as at first predicted. In support of this it was pointed out that for some time past many of the big systems have been sending their locomotives to their own or outside works for repairs rather than ordering a large number of new ones. The same was said to be true to a certain extent of freight cars.

Railroad heads reiterated yesterday that it was too soon to estimate what the increases in specific rates on individual lines will be under the new ruling. The work of unsnarling the tariffs and writing new ones which will comply with the rulings of the Interstate Commerce Commission has begun in earnest and in some instances it is expected that the completed rates will be sent to the commission for approval within the month.

These early returns, in the opinion of railroad men, will be exceptions to the general rule. At the same time every effort will be made to have the new tariffs ready by Sept. 1, when the roads have to depend on earnings and no longer will have the Government guarantee behind them.

Robert S. Lovett, Chairman of the Union Pacific System, in commenting on the commission's ruling, said that "the increased rates came in the nick of time and will go a long way in reestablishing railroad credit, provided the various State Railroad Commissions do not whittle them away."

C. W. Huntington, President of the Virginian Railway said: "Efficient railroad service is indispensable to the industrial commercal and civic welfare of the country, and the rate increase is in recognition of obvious conditions with which the public is acquainted.

"As to its sufficiency, I believe the figures have been drawn as carefully as they could have been drawn in advance. Tight money, of course, remains a chief obstacle to financing, but the rate increase will no doubt improve the credit of railroads with the banks."

James H. Post, who is a Director in many sugar companies, and President of the National Sugar Refining Company of New Jersey, said that "the rate increase should be reflected in an increased measure of prosperity for the railroads."

"The public, of course, has to pay the larger wages that have been granted to railroad employes," added Mr. Post. "Unfortunately every article is transported several times, as a rule, in raw and manufactured form, and the new rates will be reflected in prices, adding to the already burdensome cost of living. The ultimate consumer has to shoulder increased costs.

"When sugar has to pay higher rates for transportation, the grocer naturally passes them on to the consumer. I should say in the sugar business it would be safe to estimate that labor and taxes together get 90 per cent., directly or indirectly, of what is taken in. We can only make a fair profit in sugar refining by doing a large volume of business."

F. F. Fitzpatrick, President of the Railway Steel Spring Company, commenting on the increase, said: "The award is constructive. The new rates should allow the railroads to carry out their plans for the purchase of additional equipment, make possible the movement of a large amount of business, and have healthy effect on the general situation, especially the congestion at the steel mills."

SOME LINES NOT AFFECTED.

Long Island Rates to be Fixed by State Commissions Alone.

"In answer to many questions that have been received by this office as to what effect the recent order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, granting increase in passenger and freight rates, will have upon the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commissions of New York State, I desire emphatically to say that the order will have no effect," said Acting Public Service Commissioner Alfred M. Barrett yesterday.

Mr. Barrett explained that the two New York commissions will have exclusive jurisdiction over purely intrastate rates. It is provided by the new Federal Transportation Act, however, that if the intrastate rates fixed by a State commission should be unduly discriminatory or prejudicial to interstate commerce in general, the carriers may then appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a hearing.

While the Public Service Commission of the First District will continue to exercise its authority to protect local interests, it desires, Mr. Barrett said, to co-operate with the Federal Commission wherever possible, to the end that there be no conflict of authority.

Most of the inquiries received by the local commission, added Mr. Barrett, have applied to the Long Island Railroad, which operates in both the First and Second Public Service districts. Therefore the Second District Commission will sit with the Commissioners here to decide on the company's application for rate increases so far as it affects territory in that district. The valuation of the railroad property also will be made in both districts, the two commissions co-operating.

"The Long Island Railroad is different from most railroads of the country," he concluded, "in that it gets its largest revenue from the passenger traffic instead of from freight. As its lines are wholly within the State of New York and its only interstate business is the amount of freight passing from or to other States, the effect of the Interstate Commerce Commission's order will be limited to the extent of this interstate freight business. On all intrastate traffic, both freight and passenger business, its rates must be fixed by the Public Service Commissions of New York State."

STOCKS SHOW BRIEF GAIN.

Early Buying on Rate Announcement Followed by Reaction.

The favorable action of the Interstate Commerce Commission in granting the railroads about 90 per cent. of the rate increases asked resulted in a sharp advance at the opening of the stock market yesterday. First prices showed some of the leading railroad issues up two to four points from Saturday's closing quotations, and in the industrial department even greater gains were recorded. This pronounced strength lasted only about fifteen minutes, and after that the market turned downward and, except for very brief intervals, continued to decline.

As shown by THE TIMES averages, the twenty-five leading railroad stocks, either at the opening or in the first few minutes, scored an average advance of 1.82, while twenty-five selected industrials were up during the same period 2.39. In the subsequent decline all of these gains were lost and in the case of the industrials nearly as much more. At the low point of the day the railroad stocks were down .07 and the industrials 2.01, and at the close the railroads had recovered only enough to show a net gain on the day of .11, while the industrials were down for a net loss of 1.66.

According to competent observers, the initial advance was due to the wide publicity the railroad rate increase had received and the consequent deluging of brokers' offices before the opening yesterday with buying orders, mostly in relatively small lots, for execution as soon as the market got started. After this buying power had exhausted itself, it was explained, the market first lapsed into dullness and then turned very weak, as what were deemed unfavorable news reports began to be received from abroad, especially as to the Russo-Polish situation.

In the following table is shown a list of the leading industrial stocks, with their low and last prices and the net changes on the day:

B. & O. to Spend $20,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 2.—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company has decided to expend $20,000,000 for new equipment, it was announced today by George M. Shriver, senior Vice President. The company has arranged to expend more than $10,000,000 for the overhauling of every car that is worth repairing and about $10,000,000 for new locomotives and freight cars. These are to be purchased through a loan negotiated with the National Railways Service Corporation.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, July 31, 1920, on shipments sold out, ranged from 16 cents to 25 cents per pound and averaged 20.91 cents per pound.—Advt.

COX MAIL SHOWS BACKING ON LEAGUE

Half of His Letters, He Says, Are from Republicans Who Protest Harding's Stand.

DEMOCRATS URGE THE ISSUE

Governor Declines to Intervene in Texas Primaries or Any State Fights.

EXPECTS SUFFRAGE VICTORY

Nominee Predicts Ratification in Tennessee — Preparing for Notification Throng.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Masses of mail which are reaching the State House at Columbus and his home at Trails End, near Dayton, Governor James M. Cox said tonight, might be divided into two general classes. About 50 per cent. of the communications were from Democrats who wrote that they were glad that Senator Harding, in his speech of acceptance, had frankly rejected the League of Nations in any form and come out for a separate peace with Germany, a position which, the writers held, made his position untenable with the American people.

The other 50 per cent., in a general way, the Governor said, were from Republicans in many parts of the country, who said that they could not for various reasons, support the Republican nominee, after analyzing his speech. They were expressive of a nation-wide condition, Governor Cox felt, that the independent Republican voters who had followed the whole course of the League of Nation fight were thorough disgusted with the stand now taken.

Governor Cox said that he had not been able to go over all the mail, but that his secretaries had been at work and had surveyed enough of it to gain the trend of thought which was being expressed.

Expects Clear Statement on League.

As to the various issues of the campaign, Governor Cox said that of course he could go into no detail about his position prior to the delivery of his formal speech of acceptance on Saturday. At that time, however, he will make known beyond any doubt which are or are not, in his mind, the leading issues of the campaign. The country will know exactly where Governor Cox stands in regard to the League of Nations, and his feeling as to the prominence which it should have in the campaign.

There has been discussion among observers here concerning the interview given in Washington recently by George White, the new Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in which White was quoted as expressing the belief that progressivism and not the League of Nations would be the great issue of the campaign. As to this statement, Governor Cox had no comment to make and refused to be brought into any discussion.

Governor Cox, so far as can be learned, has not been in communication with Chairman White since the latter went East to take charge of the organization of campaign plans. There has been no discussion of issues between Cox and White since that time.

The Governor's position in regard to all discussion of campaign issues has been that as leader of the party he will make his position known in unequivocal terms when the time comes for him to deliver his address of acceptance. This has been completed and will be given to the public on Saturday next, when the notification exercises are to be held in the Fair Grounds in Dayton.

Preparing for Great Crowd.

Reports which are coming to the Committee of Arrangements for the notification, of which J. Sprigg McMahon is chairman, are that a great assemblage may be expected on Saturday. Unusual enthusiasm has been shown throughout Ohio and requests for reservations at hotels and in the Fair Grounds have been pouring in for many days. Mr. McMahon predicts that the demonstration for Governor Cox will be attended by the largest crowd which ever collected in the State for a political meeting of any kind. Bryan always got big crowds when he came to Ohio as a nominee, but there is said to be every indication that the best which Bryan ever got in the shape of a demonstration will be outdone.

Governor Cox saw few visitors of prominence today. He went for a long horseback ride in the morning and then motored to town, where he met the Committee on Arrangements for the notification in his offices in the Dayton News Building. Then he made a trip to the Fair Grounds, which are to be the scene of the notification exercises, with the committee members.

Two phases of the political situation were discussed by the Governor today. He had been requested by both sides in Texas, where former Senator Joseph W. Bailey is fighting the Wilson Administration forces in the primary, to lend a helping hand. But Governor Cox issued this statement:

It is neither my province nor desire to interfere in any way with the Texas situation. It is a matter entirely with the Democrats of that State. That has been my attitude from the start."

Not to Interfere in New York.

Governor Cox said that the statement marked his general policy as to all State rights. In this event there will be no interference on the part of the Governor in the differences which may arise in New York State. The fight which is being made there by Mayor George R. Lunn to capture the nomination for United States Senator has been attracting widespread interest and there has been some speculation as to whether Governor Cox as the new leader of the party would take any part in it. It now appears that he will keep hands off and let the State fight in New York be adjusted by the men directly interested.

Governor Cox expressed the belief that the Tennessee Legislature would act favorably on the ratification of the Woman Suffrage amendment. The Democratic legislators are being urged to give support to the amendment and the feeling here is that nationwide suffrage for women will be a reality before Election Day.

The Governor expects to get as much rest as possible prior to the notification exercises on Saturday. National Chairman White is to arrive in Dayton within a day or two and will then confer with him at length in regard to campaign plans. Mr. White is to be Field Marshal of the arrangements and will have his hands full, as the Governor insists upon a campaign which will start in the latter part of the month and take him into all the States with the exception of some in the South.

He is disposed to make a hard fight in New York State, and will devote many days to campaigning there. Confidence in the ability of the party to carry New York as well as Ohio and other States which have been classed as "pivotal" has been gaining rapidly here, as a result of the reports received.

Governor Cox is planning to remain in Dayton until the meeting of the Democratic State Committee at Columbus, where he is to deliver an address on Aug. 17. If this program is carried out, he will not go to the Roosevelt notification exercises at Hyde Park on Aug. 9. Mr. Roosevelt is expected to attend the State Committee meeting in Columbus, and the long period of campaigning probably will be opened there, with both nominees and other prominent figures in the party in attendance.

ROOSEVELT VISITS CITY HEADQUARTERS

The Democratic Nominee for Vice President Poses for "Movies" on Balcony.

The Democratic national campaign for the election of Cox and Roosevelt got under way yesterday, when George White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, took possession of the headquarters in the Grand Central Palace on Lexington Avenue and announced that from now until election day things would be humming. Mr. White put in a busy day arranging details of the work to be done, meeting callers and conferring with Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Vice Presidential nominee, who returned from his Maine vacation.

Mr. White left Washington Sunday night without having called upon President Wilson during his stay there, but he declared there was nothing significant in that, as he had no reason to call upon the President.

"I did not see the President," said Mr. White, "but I saw Secretary Tumulty and paid my respects through him to the President. Governor Cox already has seen the President and that was all that was necessary. I am at the head of the Democratic machinery. I was very busy, but if there had been anything particular to see him about I would have made a point of calling."

The Chairman made it plain that he was not worrying over the League of Nations matter at all and was not concerned as to the various constructions put upon his remarks in Washington, where he was reported as saying the League was "a secondary issue," and that there had been "no iron-clad agreement" entered into between the President and Governor Cox in discussing the treaty.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi is Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of the National Committee. He said, after looking over the headquarters and conferring with Chairman White yesterday, that he already had received over 150 letters requesting Governor Cox to appear in various parts of the country. Dozens of volunteer speakers already have offered their services to the committee, and it will be Senator Harrison's task to select the best of them.

Senator Harrison conferred with Mr. Roosevelt regarding his itinerary, and it was agreed that the former Assistant Secretary of the Navy should plunge into his coast-to-coast campaign tour immediately after his notification, which will be held at Hyde Park, N. Y., next Monday. On Aug. 11 Mr. Roosevelt will make his first speech of the campaign in Chicago. From there he will journey to California, speaking in many cities which have not yet been dethermined upon.

Governor Cox will leave about the same time on his Eastern trip and, leaving the Atlantic Coast cities, will swing West, going as far as the Pacific Coast about the time Mr. Roosevelt is coming East. The Cox notification ceremonies will take place at Dayton, Ohio, next Saturday. Senator Harrison and Chairman White will leave on Thursday for Dayton, where they will have a conference with Governor Cox and decide upon the cities in which the Presidential nominee is to speak. Sentaor Harrison announced that a Western speakers' headquarters would be established in Chicago.

After making an inspection of the new headquarters, Mr. Roosevelt created a diversion by posing for motion pictures on the balcony in the Grand Central Palace building. Chairman White also posed in the attitude of signing a check.

"I guess I can do this in the movies even if we haven't received any money yet," said Mr. White with a laugh.

Mr. Roosevelt also made a number of "canned" campaign speeches in a talking machine. The records will be used throughout the campaign.

Among the callers at Democratic headquarters were Senator Robert L. Gerry of Rhode Island, who went over the New England situation with the chairman, and fifteen members of the Negro Democratic National Committee, headed by Oscar H. Water of New York. The committeemen, hailing from different States, wished Mr. Roosevelt success in his campaign.

Republican national headquarters in West Forty-fourth Street also showed signs of activity yesterday, when National Chairman Will H. Hays returned from Marion, Ohio, the home of Senator Harding. Mr. Hays conferred at length with John M. Morehead, Republican National Committeeman for North Carolina, and F. A. Linney, the Republican State Chairman. They brought glowing reports of conditions in North Carolina. Mr. Morehead declared that the Republicans expected to carry twenty-four counties in the State.

Among other callers were Senator William M. Calder of New York, Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, Governor R. Livingston Beeckman of Rhode Island, and former Representative Thomas W. Miller of Delaware, one of the managers of the General Wood preconvention campaign.

HITCHCOCK IS NAMED FOR LEAGUE DEBATE

Cox Selects Him to Oppose Speaker at Winona Lake to be Chosen by Harding.

GOVERNOR TO FORCE FIGHT

Nebraskan Says He Will Make League the Issue and Put Republicans on the Defensive.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Senator Hitchcock, who lead the Administration for the treaty and the League in the Senate, has been selected by Governor Cox to defend the League in a debate at Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 9, with a Republican speaker to be named by Senator Harding. The Senator, who has toured the West since the San Francisco Convention, returned to Washington today to prepare data for the debate.

In an interview Mr. Hitchcock said that Governor Cox stood for constructive reservations to the peace treaty which would not be destructive and that the election of Cox meant ratification of the peace treaty. Governor Cox, Mr. Hitchcock asserted, would take the initiative in the treaty fight and would force the Republican to take the defensive. In his opinion Governor Cox, upon becoming the nominee for President, became the actual leader of the Democratic Party.

Says Cox's Stand Is Known.

"There is no doubt about Governor Cox's attitude on the league. Cox will disabuse the country of the idea that the Democrats demand the ratification of the treaty without the dotting of an 'i' or the crossing of a 't.' Such is not even the position assumed by President Wilson. He approved five of the reservations proposed by me to clarify the meaning of certain features in the league covenant. Cox probably holds the same view.

"There is a vast difference between the situation of the President and Governor Cox. The President was always on the defensive. He could not take the initiative. This is all changed. The Democrats will put Harding on the defensive. The Democrats will propose ratification of the treaty with such reservations as will not destroy it. None of us believe reservations are necessary, but we will accept them to obtain ratification. This undoubtedly is the viewpoint of Governor Cox. It is the same as heretofore maintained by myself and others on the Democratic side.

"The gist of the present situation simply is this: The election of Cox means ratification of the treaty and the success of Harding means no ratification. In this way the league comes as a paramount issue before the people."

"I think that Cox's election should mean that the Democrats will regain control of the Senate. In any event, there should be sufficient votes for ratification of the treaty with reservations. Ratification will result if Cox is elected, no matter whether the Democrats get the Senate or not. With Cox as President favoring reservations which were approved by President Wilson there will be enough votes in the Senate to carry out a program of reservations. I feel sure there will be no destructive reservations, but merely ones that will make meanings clear.

"I believe that the President expects Cox to assume actual leadership of the party. I do not imagine that the President looks for anything else. There has been only one exception to this rule of which I know, and that was when Taft was nominated and Roosevelt insisted on retaining leadership of the Republican Party. Mr. Wilson certainly does not want to be held responsible for what Cox says and does. He wants Cox to become responsible for every feature of the coming campaign.

Speculate on the Republican Choice.

Democrats are looking forward with great interest to the announcement of the name of the Republican spokesman to debate with Mr. Hitchcock. They are asking whether he will be a representative of the "bitter enders," such as Borah or Johnson, or whether it will be Senator Lodge or some member of the Republican reservationist group.

Representative James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, who was a large factor in the San Francisco convention, made a tour of the Western States following the convention. He visited most of the Coast States and went intimately into the political situation. He stopped in Washington on his way home and predicted that Cox would carry California, Utah, Montana and Idaho.

"After visiting California, Oregon, Washington, Wyoming, Montana and other Western States, I am confident that Cox will carry nearly all of the States carried by President Wilson four years ago. Where a year ago the Republicans confidently claimed all of the West, they now admit that it is a 'horse race' in that section of the country. Westerners regard Senator Harding as the candidate of Penrose and believe the 'Old Guard' were so confident of winning that they concluded to risk one who had always proved true to them. The independent Westerner is asking what the Senator has ever done to justify his selection. They say that instead of a platform, the Republicans at Chicago constructed a fence and on the fence placed a straddler. Knowing Cox's record, they expected him to knock the Republican candidate off the fence before the campaign is over.

"Democrats admit that prior to the Republican convention the Republicans seemed to have the better chance, but since the convention Western Democrats have become optimistic, while gloom has settled over the camp of the Republicans. I feel confident that Cox will carry Montana, Utah, Idaho, California and that the Democrats have the best of the fight in Wyoming, Washington and Colorado."

SEES BIG FUTURE IN RUMANIA'S TRADE

Member of Finance Commission Says Country Looks to U. S. for Machinery.

Unlimited opportunities are open in Rumania to Americans who are willing to do business on a long-term basis and study the customs of that country, according to Michel N. Constantinesco of the Rumanian Finance Mission now in the United States in the interest of stablizing the national currency of the nation. In return for agricultural and industrial machinery, which are badly needed at present, Rumania has to offer petrol and valuable minerals, he said.

"Rumania at present is engaged in the task of retiring the alien currency it inherited with the new territory which forms part of the country," M. Constantinesco declared. "There are several million dollars in Bessarabian rubles, German marks and Austro-Hungarian kronen in circulation in Rumania, all of which the Government hopes to retire by September or October in favor of our own national currency. To do this our people have passed a budget of 6,000,000 lei. We are trying to stablize the lei, which has depreciated as a result of the war.

"Rumania is in need of outside aid in restoring the country to normal, but outside capital is not attracted because of the present low rate of the lei. Rumania has a wealth of raw material, skilled and willing labor and buildings in which to house her industries, but she lacks machinery with which to start. Transportation difficulties are seriously affecting the national life of the country. If Rumania only had the means of moving the vast quantities of petrol and minerals to the outside world her financial rehabilitation would be greatly hastened.

"A happy solution of some of our problems, in my opinion, would be a combination of American and Rumanian business men working together. Long term credits are required to enable Rumania to purchase agricultural implements and industrial machinery in this country. The former are greatly needed, as the majority of the population are farmers. Rumanians, in seeking a country in which to buy, look to the United States first. They were happy when they were able to place a substantial order for locomotives with Samuel Vauclain of the Baldwin Works recently. American business men who are willing to follow his method of dealing will find a ready market for their products."

Regarding the political situation, M. Constantinesco said that Bolshevism would make but little headway in Rumania, as the people were chiefly farmers who did not favor Soviet teachings.

HARDING MEN AIM ATTACKS ON WHITE

Believing Cox Silent for the Present, They Seek to Heckle the Democratic Chairman.

TELL OF REPUBLICAN UNITY

Claim Support of Irish Voters, While Harding Hears Syrians and Greeks Favor Him.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Confident that Governor Cox will not break his silence until after his speech of acceptance, Republican strategists of the Harding front porch, in their effort to keep the Democratic Party on the defensive throughout the campaign, are now directing their attacks against George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

They realize that Mr. White, having been elected Chairman less than two weeks ago, is under the handicap of taking charge of a Presidential campaign already begun, it appears to be the Republican strategy to cause him as much embarrassment as possible in his new position before the organization of the Democratic National Headquarters is perfected.

Senator Harding's statement of last Friday attacking Mr. White's characterization as "buncombe," the Republican promises to limit campaign contributions to $1,000 was offset, it is felt, by publication the same day of a declaration by Fred W. Upham, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, that Republicans might contribute more than $1,000 if they chose. Today Senator Harding's advisers pounded upon another of Mr. White's newspaper interviews, and the following unsigned statement was issued from the Senator's headquarters:

"Chairman White of the Democratic National Committee, has undertaken to answer some questions recently addressed to Governor Cox. His statement is chiefly a complaint because both Senator Hiram Johnson and former President Taft have expressed approval of Senator Harding's position. It is easy to understand how such evidences of Republican unity are displeasing to Mr. White, but it was not anticipated that he would thus early in the campaign make such frank acknowledgment.

Declare Republicans United.

"Inasmuch as Mr. White has thus publicly and handsomely acclaimed that all elements of Republicans are approving Senator Harding's attitude, it may be added that he has sensed the situation with admirable perspicacity. Republicans of all sections and groups are solidly in favor of Senator Harding's attitude. This is proved by thousands of letters and telegrams from every State, among which the numbers from States commonly Democratic are no less than amazing. A large percentage are, moreover, from men who describe themselves as having heretofore been Democrats.

"Chairman White has made a correct discovery that the Republican Party is completely unified. Republicans are quite as satisfied in noting the complete accord of the President and the nominee chosen by the Democratic Party."

On his return to Chicago from Cincinnati, where he had addressed a meeting of Friends of Irish Freedom, Representative William E. Mason of Illinois stopped over in Marion to see Senator Harding and to deliver a political parable.

"Friends of Ireland, of course, have to be for Harding," said Mr. Mason, "because they know what Article 8 of the league covenant means—it would hitch Ireland to England forever and bind us to help keep it there; and Governor Cox has pledged himself to support the Wilson program.

"I notice that the Governor refuses to answer questions Senator Harding has asked about his pledges to Wilson as to foreign policies. No wonder he can't answer, because he would ruin himself whichever way he declares.

"Illinois will go all of 200,000 Republican. Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky will go Republican, and the victory in the Electoral College will be the most overwhelming since Grant's."

Pleased with Farm Views.

Millard Myers, editor of the American Co-operative Journal of Chicago, spent some time with Senator Harding today. He is intimately connected with the co-operative movement in the agricultural communities of the Middle West and expressed his great satisfaction with the attitude of the Senator toward the farm and its problems. He was particularly anxious that if possible the Senator should either address the forthcoming convention of the co-operative societies in Chicago, or receive and address from the front porch a delegation of the leading co-operators, who would come to Marion.

Another of the day's callers hopeful of arranging a speaking engagement for Senator Harding was Mayor Charles Jewett of Indianapolis. He plans a "Marion County Day," when citizens of Marion County, Ohio, and Marion County, Ind., which includes Indianapolis, will meet around the Harding front porch.

Reading of the death of former Governor Frank Hanley of Indiana, who called upon him two weeks ago, Senator Harding sent the following telegram to Mrs. Hanley:

> I have learned with unspeakable distress of the fatal accident to your husband, whom I highly esteem. Please know how deeply I sympathize with you in your great sorrow. Family, State and nation have suffered a distinct loss.

Told of Syrian Support.

P. A. Bonaheen and Mrs. Bonaheen of Columbus, Ohio, called on Senator and Mrs. Harding today, and Mrs. Harding posed for a photograph with her callers. Mr. Bonaheen is an importer and both he and his wife are natives of Syria, though they have lived here many years. They told Senator Harding that almost all the Syrian, Greek and Italian-Americans were for him.

A poll of the grand stand and bleachers at the Washington Park baseball field, Los Angeles, last week gave Harding 1,314 votes, Cox 690, Johnson 12 and La Follette 6. This is the third large poll recently taken in Los Angeles and all have resulted in about the same proportionate preference for Senator Harding.

C. S. Hatfield of Bowling Green, Ohio, manager of the Senatorial candidacy of Walter F. Brown, came to Marion today with Mrs. Hatfield and took luncheon in the Harding home.

"Whatever else may happen," said Mr. Hatfield, "all the Republicans are for Harding, and they are determined that he shall win. They are anxious that State and country tickets shall be made up with a view to strengthening the Presidential ticket and insuring victory all along the line."

HUGO DETERMINED TO RUN.

Feels Obligation, It Is Said, to 40,000 Who Pledged Support.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 2.—"I am a candidate for Governor and I plan to enter the primaries for the Republican nomination," declared Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State, upon leaving for Albany this afternoon, after passing the week-end at home.

Mr. Hugo devoted the forenoon to consultation with local politicians, many of them supporters at the Saratoga Convention, and it is known that several advised him to withdraw from the contest. He reiterated his determination, expressed immediately following the choice of Judge Miller at Saratoga, to stay in the fight to the finish. Some friends of Mr. Hugo in his home city are still hopeful that he may reconsider his determination before Aug. 17, when designation must be made.

Petitions from 40,000 Republicans held by the Secretary at Albany promising support of his candidacy are believed to play an important part in his decision. Mr. Hugo feels that he owes a duty to these supporters.

BIDS WOMEN AID HARDING.

Mrs. Arthur Livermore Emphasizes Need for Co-operation.

Mrs. Arthur Livermore, member of the Republican National Committee, who attended the Harding notification ceremony at Marion, Ohio, told the Monday Forum of the Women's State Republican Executive Committee at the Hotel Vanderbilt yesterday that the success of the campaign depended largely upon them.

"You have it in your hands to win," said Mrs. Livermore. "You have new ideas, new methods in politics and I cannot impress upon you too strongly the part you have to play in the coming campaign. You must co-operate with the men and have confidence in your own ability. The greatest work of the campaign will be the overcoming of the intertia and indifference of those who have a vote."

Miss Helen Varick Boswell, who presided, urged the women to stand by the Republican organization, after explaining the necessity for "that machinery, which is organization." Miss Rosalie Loew Whitney, who was a member of the Platform Committee at the recent unofficial Republican State Convention at Saratoga, explained various points in the platform.

LEADERS FOR CALL OF SARATOGA ROLL

satisfied if the convention should recommend him as a candidate for United States Senator.

"No, Sir," was the reply. "If they do anything of the kind I will oppose it with all my might. I propose to make my fight in the primaries and cannot approve of any action in this convention that will give one candidate or set of candidates an advantage over any other candidate or set of candidates."

Wants to Emphasize the League.

Mayor Lunn said that he would make his fight in the primaries on the League of Nations issue and the program embodied in the Democratic national platform.

"That is the paramount issue," he said, "and it would spell defeat for us to forget it. I sincerely trust that our party will not lower itself to the extent of making its fight this year on the rum issue.

"Rum is no longer an issue. No one can hold out any promise of liberalization of the Volstead act beyond the dead line established in the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court. Under this decision Congress will not have the power to enact any legislation which would sanction the manufacture or sale of beverages that are intoxicating. Even if a pledge of 2.75 beer susceptible of fulfillment could be made, it would not attract any votes, for in 2.75 there is no thrill for the true wet."

Mayor Lunn was asked if he had found among incoming delegates enough sentiment against going through with the proposed roll call of counties to justify him in making a fight in the convention.

"If they will vote as they talk, there is; but then one never knows," he replied. "But I will make my fight regardless of that."

Leaders Confer on Roll Call.

Inquiry among delegates and leaders from up-State districts who have been arriving disclosed a decided sentiment against designations by the convention and a real determination to fight any such proposal to the last ditch. Among those who came here in that frame of mind was ex-Lieut.-Gov. Thomas F. Conway, fortified in the stand he has taken by the backing of some forty delegates from northern counties who have taken united action in caucus on the question.

Mr. Conway, however, said that it was his opinion that there could be no sound objection to calling the roll of counties for the purpose of feeling out sentiment as long as there was no attempt at making up a slate in the convention.

The question of whether there should be a roll call or not has been the subject of conferences today in which W. W. Farley, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee; National Committeeman Norman E. Mack, Charles F. Murphy, John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader of Kings; Borough President Maurice Connolly of Queens, William H. Kelly, head of the Democratic organization in Onondaga County, and other leaders participated.

Murphy at first was a little dubious regarding the wisdom of having a roll call, but finally gave in when strong representations were made to him by some of the others that to call the roll could do no harm and would add life and interest to the convention.

"The delegates," said Chairman Farley, "have come here for the purpose of getting some helpful information with regard to the sentiment throughout the State on the subject of candidates. They should have that information before they go home. Nothing would be easier than to make up a slate behind closed doors, if we cared to resort to that method. We propose to do nothing of the kind, however. We are not going to foreclose the opportunities of any candidate.

"We only want to know what is in the minds of Democrats in different sections of the State, and now that they are all represented is the time to find out. We will never have such a representative gathering again this side of election day."

Primary Plank to be Strongest.

Governor Smith, in his cottage at the United States Hotel, talked with leaders and delegates from all parts of the State, discussing among other things the proposed roll call of counties. A majority of those with whom he discussed the matter agreed with him that they could se no harm in it.

"Are you still determined to have a plank in the platform reaffirming the party's attitude in favor of retaining direct primaries?" the Governor was asked after his conferences.

"The direct primaries plank will be the strongest plank in our platform," he replied.

John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader of Kings, was one of those favoring action by the convention to feel out sentiment.

"It would be sheer cowardice on our part not to go through with this," said Mr. McCooey. "We have nothing to be afraid of. The distinction between our line of action and that of the Republicans will be clear at a glance. The Republicans adopted a resolution recommending a slate and virtually reading out of the party any one not abiding by the action of their convention. We propose to do nothing of that sort. We will take no ballot on candidates. Under the circumstances there will be no winner or loser in the convention, and all will be free to go into the primaries."

Tammany Sees Gain in Primary.

Talks with Democratic leaders from up-State are clearly indicative of a marked feeling among them in favor of restoring the State convention as a nominating medium, but, nevertheless, the proposed direct primary plank will not be a sham, but a sincere expression of the party will, in the sense that the majority of the delegates will be wholeheartedly for it. Tammany and its allies in the counties that comprise New York City are strongly in favor of retaining on the statute books the present direct primary law, because it constitutes an almost insurmountable obstacle to real anti-Tammany fusion in municipal elections in New York City. This was demonstrated in the election of Mayor Hylan three years ago.

The most perplexing question before the Democratic leaders who have assembled here for the convention has to do with the selection of a candidate for United States Senator. There is a general feeling among the leaders that with the right man running the Democrats could elect a Senator this Fall. The problem they all admit is to find a man of proper calibre who is "geographically right." With the head of the State ticket from New York City the leaders, who still cling to the old formula, do not appear to be able to spell victory out of the nomination for United States Senator of a city man.

Henry Morgenthau, who has the support of Democrats in Dutchess County and undoubtedly would have strong backing among Wilson Democrats throughout the State, if he resided somewhere except in New York City, would command consideration among the leaders. Now, when Mr. Morgenthau's name is mentioned, while admitting that he would be a good man for the nomination, they shake their heads and say, "We must have a man from up-State."

The up-State field has been thoroughly surveyed by Governor Smith and other Democratic leaders here and yet the man to meet the emergency has not been found. Lieut. Gov. Harry C. Walker has been thought of as a candidate for this nomination, but Governor Smith is said to be exceedingly anxious to have him as a running mate on the State ticket. Friends of the Lieutenant Governor declare that Mr. Walker, while not unmindful of the honor and elevation involved in a nomination for the Senate, is willing to bow to the party's wishes and become a candidate for reelection to his present office.

Tonight it is stated on good authority that when the roll of counties is called tomorrow his name will be presented as the choice of the Broome County delegation for United States Senator, and that his prospects of getting a majority expression from the convention in support of his home delegation is promising.

Ex-Supreme Court Justice James A. Betts of Ulster County came to Saratoga tonight as the custodian of a Senatorial boom for William G. McAdoo.

"I believe," said Mr. Betts, "that if this conference—for it is not a convention—is willing to do the right thing, it will suggest the name of William G. McAdoo for United States Senator."

There was a group of Tammany men in the immediate vicinity, but there was no cheering.

"Have you any intimation that Mr. McAdoo would accept?" was asked.

"No," said Mr. Betts.

"Have you any idea how the leaders here would take to your suggestion?"

"I have talked to some, and I will talk to others," said Mr. Betts, not intimating, however, what the result had been of such talk as he had already had.

"Will you suggest the name of Mr. McAdoo in the convention?" was asked.

"I may," he answered.

To Pick Candidates from Cities.

Many of Murphy's talks today undoubtedly had to do with candidates and slate making which, while "off the record" will be one of the inevitable incidental employments of the leaders while here. The Democrats in the making of their slate propose, if this can be done without hamstringing the untrammeled will of the voters in the primaries, to give as many places as possible on their ticket to residents of the large cities. This is regarded as good policy, especially in view of the fact that the Republicans neglected such localities and went to the rural districts in search of candidates. Syracuse was the only big city in the State that was called upon to supply a Republican candidate, except New York City, which furnished the candidate for the comparatively minor office of Secretary of State.

Adjt. Gen. James W. Barry, who besides being a resident of Brooklyn is a member of the American Legion, in all probability will be drafted for a place on the ticket, possibly as a candidate for State Controller, in the event that it should be found desirable to place a soldier on the slate. Brooklyn got nothing from the Republicans, and local pride is a factor that enters heavily into election results in that part of the City of New York.

Members of the New York-New Jersey Port and Development Commission have come here to advocate the inclusion of a plank in the platform declaring for an arrangement with New Jersey for the establishment of a port authority, to which it is proposed to intrust the future development of the Port of New York. The Republican Convention adopted such a plank. The creation of this port author has been opposed by Mayor Hylan of New York.

A proposal that will be embodied in the platform will pledge the party, if placed in power, to provide a plan for development of the water power of the State under State auspices.

The convention will begin its opening session at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning when Frank H. Mott of Chautauqua will deliver his "keynote" speech and the standing committees of the convention will be appointed. This session will adjourn in time to permit delegates and leaders to go to the race track in the afternoon.

The program calls for another session tomorrow night, when ex-Mayor John K. Sague of Poughkeepsie will be installed as permanent Chairman and upon assuming the gavel will deliver an address to the convention. The rest of the night session will be devoted to eulogies of Governor Smith and a demonstration for the Governor.

Wednesday's program calls a county roll call to ascertain the sentiment of candidates for other places on the ticket, the adoption of the platform and adjournment sine die.

FAVOR NAMING WOMAN ON THE STATE TICKET

Mrs. Smith for Lieutenant Governor and Miss Mills for Secretary of State Are Talked Of.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 2.—The Democratic leaders gathered here in advance of the unofficial State convention tomorrow practically decided today that there should be a woman candidate on the State ticket.

This decision will stand unless the women delegates upset it, just as they did at the Democratic State Convention two years ago, when it was left to them to suggest a woman candidate and they were unable to agree.

A different method is proposed this year, and instead of leaving it to the women to name a woman, the men intend to select a woman who they believe will add strength to the ticket. Already there have been expressions of dissent from women delegates here. It is expected that there will be a conference of women delegates on the matter after the majority of them gather tomorrow.

So far two women have received serious consideration for a place on the ticket. One of these is Miss Harriet May Mills of Syracuse, who has been suggested as a candidate for Secretary of State. Miss Mills was one of the delegates at large to the Democratic National Convention, and is a strong suffragist, having been President of the New York State Woman Suffrage Association. She has the support of William M. Kelly, the Onondaga County leader, who said that he believed the nomination of Miss Mills would help the ticket not only in Syracuse but throughout the State.

The other woman mentioned is Mrs. James N. Smith of Buffalo, wife of a former Sheriff of Erie County, and prominent in women's organizations there. Mrs. Smith has been put forward tentatively for Lieutenant Governor in the expectation that Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker will be selected as the candidate for United States Senator. She is understood to have the backing of National Committeeman Norman E. Mack.

The plan of placing a woman on the ticket is frankly one of political expediency. The Democratic leaders believe that their policy of giving more recognition to women in the way of electing them as delegates has borne fruit, and that the placing of a woman on the State ticket will help them capitalize the disaffection among Republican women over the designation of United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., by the Republican convention.

This view is held by some of the women delegates. Mrs. Lillian R. Sire of Manhattan declared that she believed the nomination of the right kind of a woman candidate would help the whole ticket very much.

"The Democrats have been much more generous than the Republicans in the recognition of women," she said, "and the women know it. The selection of a woman candidate would emphasize this fact. Many women are still undecided as to which party they will join, and many of them will join the party which they believe to be the most sincere in welcoming women into full participation in politics."

Miss Mary B. Shea, executive woman Chairman of Bronx County, expressed opposition to the nomination of a woman.

"This is an important year in politics," she said, "and I believe that it would be well to stick to the men who have the experience. There are many women well qualified to hold State office, but there is too much at stake now to risk experimenting. The nomination of a woman candidate can wait until another year."

Democratic members of the Saratoga County League of Women Voters have organized a Hostesses' Committee, with headquarters in the Grand Union Hotel, to welcome women delegates and visitors to the convention. Mrs. R. W. Durant is the Chairman, and Miss Katherine Starbuck, Mrs. J. J. Dayton and Mrs. John T. Patten Vice Chairmen. They have arranged a women's meeting for tomorrow night at the home of George Foster Peabody. Miss Mills is expected to speak.

The League of Women Voters social welfare program will be submitted to the Resolutions Committee for incorporation in the platform by Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, Chairman of the State organization, who performed the same office at the Republican convention.

FARMERS ON STRIKE; NO POTATOES LOADED

Eastern Long Island Producers Reported Discouraged by Low Prices.

FEED CABBAGE TO HOGS

Declare They Cannot Afford to Raise "Spuds" at $1.50 a Bushel —Consumer Pays $3.

Discouraged because of the low prices offered for their produce, Eastern Long Island farmers are reported to have gone on a strike. No potatoes were loaded yesterday for shipment in the highly productive territory in the vicinity of Riverhead, while cabbages and string beans, the retail prices of which have not been reduced, are being fed to the hogs by the farmers. The retail price of potatoes has decreased, especially in the chain stores. Potatoes are one of the very few commodities that have reflected the decline in the wholesale market.

Buyers at Riverhead were offering only $1.50 a bushel for potatoes yesterday and they were not anxious for them at that price, fearing that they might rot before they could be resold. Just at this time potatoes are plentiful in New York, and the prices last week "dropped severely under liberal offerings," to quote from the Federal Market Bureau bulletin. Eastern Long Island farmers professed to believe that the low prices are temporary, caused by the influx of potatoes from New Jersey and the west shore of Long Island. Many of them expressed the belief that prices would shoot upward again soon and said they preferred to take a chance of the crop spoiling on their hands rather than sell at prices they consider below cost of production.

It was reported that the housewives in the centre of the potato belt in Eastern Long Island were paying $3 a bushel yesterday for potatoes. This is at the rate of 5 cents a pound—which is about the same price they are offered at in New York in all of the chain stores.

"If I should load this morning, the best I could offer the farmer would be $1.25 a bushel," said a buyer at Riverhead yesterday morning. "I would be taking a chance even then. The weather is bad for shipping and the potatoes are green.

"The principal factor in the situation is the low price. It is much too low to let the farmers out with a profit, and they are determined to wait for a rise. No one can blame them, in view of the enormous profits the retailers are making. City consumers are not the only ones who are being victimized, either. Potatoes that can be bought in Riverhead for $1.25 a bushel are being sold in retail stores here for $3 a bushel—this right in the heart of the potato belt.

"Furthermore, cabbage is retailing at from 8 to 10 cents a head here, while farmers are offered so little by the dealers that they refuse to sell and are feeding the finest grades of cabbage to their pigs."

Wholesale prices at the farmers' markets here continue at the low levels reached some days ago. With few exceptions the consumers are not given the benefit of the reduced wholesale prices. It is generally conceded among market officials that it is the small produce dealer, the one the Flying Squadron of the Department of Justice has hesitated about having before the Grand Jury for the reason it was feared they would be "laughed out of court," who is responsible for the situation as regards vegetables. Most of the vegetables reach the consumer through the small dealer who handles produce exclusively.

The Brooklyn Retail Grocers' Association announced yesterday that steps would be taken at the next meeting to curb profiteering, which, they say, is confined almost exclusively to the dealers who handle nothing but produce and fruits. It was asserted that the grocers who handle produce are giving the consumers the benefit of the lower prices.

WILL APPEAL TO PRESIDENT.

Chicago Postal Clerks Seek Official Investigation of Their Treatment.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Pierce E. Butler, President of the Chicago Postal Clerks' Union, and Harry W. Starr, Assistant City Prosecutor and a former postal clerk, were on their way to Washington today to appeal to President Wilson to provide a court of appeals to act on what the clerks term "unfair treatment and too much department authority." They also will try to enlist the aid of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and national union officials in their behalf.

The delegation's trip to Washington is the result of charges of "unbecoming conduct" sent from Washington against ten local clerks who directed a publicity campaign for "higher pay and better working conditions" in the Chicago Post Office. The men were ordered to show cause within five days why they should not lose their positions. Postal clerks declare the charges and accompanying order unjust because no provision has been made for a formal hearing.

Shoe Factories Close in Wage Clash.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 2.—Rejecting new wage price lists offered by the Shoe Workers' Union, twenty cut-sole, top-lift and tap manufacturers failed to open their shops today. Six hundred employes are affected. The new price lists are said to call for wage increases ranging from $14 to $18 weekly. The factories have been employing only a third of their normal forces during the last month.

HOW KING ALFONSO STROVE FOR PEACE

written in these pages. When crowns and governments are at stake the vaguest suspicion of danger is sufficient. The plan that might have ended war in 1917 must perforce be abandoned and the carnage must continue until the resistless weight of America's millions can turn the scale in the allied favor.

"The Matin is now in a position to publish the first and most important of these documents.

"It consists of a conversation between the King of Spain and one of the principal French military-diplomatic representatives. The King sets forth clearly and with astounding frankness his views about the great war, and hammers home the point that even should the contemplated allied offensive—the conversation took place on March 2, 1917—be successful, many months must elapse and much blood be shed before final victory can be secured.

Alfonso Favors France.

"The King's whole argument is a piece of special pleading addressed to France. Its motive and purpose is to save Austria—the House of Hapsburg—from the fall toward which it was already reeling. The King's plan is that he should act as mediator between Austria and the Allies, should separate the Dual Empire from Germany and enable it to conclude a separate peace on fairly favorable terms. Not only would this be a stunning blow to Germany's prestige—and consequently to German civil and military morale—but it would involve the isolation of Germany and would expose her southern flank to attack.

"Throughout the conversation it is evident that behind the King's sympathy for France—which there seems no reason to doubt—is his solicitude for Austria. Russia—the monstrous, half-civilized, corrupt Slav octopus—he evidently distrusts and fears. England he seems to dislike. But France and Austria he sees as natural allies, whose coalition ought to be completed by Italy and Spain. For that end he is working, and every word that falls from his lips is spoken with that object."

Colonel Devigne's document runs:

Conversation with the King.

"The King, more and more interested in the general situation, by the forthcoming offensives, and the decisive turn which the war appears about to take, is daily more preoccupied by the rôle which he himself might play.

"I decided that it was desirable to learn his opinion of events and to discuss with him the military situation, and the various projects of mediation that he has in mind, in order to get a proper appreciation of the advantages and disadvantages that they entail for the allied cause.

"He anticipated my wishes. On March 1 I informed his secretary, M. Emilio de Torres, of my intention of requesting an audience.

"The King, having learned this, did not give me time to carry my intention into effect, but summoned me to the palace, on the morning of March 2.

"Our conversation was very long; it lasted nearly two hours. I submit the exactest possible résumé of the essential parts of it.

King's Opinion of Military Situation.

"'Two or three months ago the German Staff, full of confidence, was examining the following projects of which several could be executed simultaneously:

"'1. Crush the Russian extreme right, south of Riga, in order to march on Petrograd—a politico-military manoeuvre which might be dangerous as a result of troubles, perhaps even of a revolutionary nature, which Germanophile elements, Israelite or Court party, might cause in the capital.

"'2. March on Odessa, whose fall might have impressive consequences, and lay hands on South Russia in order to organize its methodical exploitation and develop agriculture on a large scale.

"'3. Take advantage of Greek complicity to strike a blow at the army of General Sarrail by use of the Bulgarian Army, more or less strongly reinforced.

"'4. Launch the Austrian Army against Italy.

"'5. Strike chief on west front, violating Swiss neutrality.'

"The King, confirming the information that he had given me in February, again assured me that this last manoeuvre had been absolutely decided, that it was to form the complement of the manoeuvre carried out by the Germans in Belgium at the beginning of hostilities.

"'The violation of Belgium had enabled them to turn our fortified eastern frontier in a week,' he said, adding: 'The violation of Switzerland ought by analogy to permit the outflanking and capture of the defensive positions organised by us during the last thirty months.

"'The German Staff was already looking forward to the rush on Lyons and the struggle in the rear of the French armies, a certain prelude of final triumph.

Why Germans Plans Were Halted.

"'None of these projects has yet been put into execution. * * *

"'The offensive of General Radko Dimitrieff promptly disorganized the manoeuvre which the Germans were planning against Riga and Petrograd.

"'The internment of the Greek Army in the Peloponnese, far behind the rear of Sarrail, rendered the Bulgarian attacks as improbable as it would have been hazardous and gave the French forces at Saloniki full field for manoeuvre.

"'The snow renders any operations in the Trentino highly difficult for some time yet, and it is possible,' adds the King, 'that other considerations may delay them still further.

"'Finally—and this is the factor which dominates the past three months—the attitude of the Swiss Government has rendered the violation of Switzerland impossible, and thus prevented the outflanking of the French right wing, by which the German staff expected to win the war.

"'The Germans, puzzled, asked themselves what they should do; they wait, they hesitate—they are prowling about their cage. * * *

"'Hindenburg, fascinated by the probable results of the Swiss manoeuvre, had for once abandoned his idea of seeking a politico-military solution on the Russian front and had reinforced his western front to the utmost possible degree.

"'Is he now thinking of a new manoeuvre against Petrograd? One can easily ask that.

"'The crushing of Italy, leading to a separate peace, is also very tempting.

"'But Italy is a dangerous hors d'oeuvre, if not difficult to swallow.

"'A mass attack by the Trentino and the region of the north will absorb enormous reserves which the German army will have to supply to the Austrian army, and will lead automatically to a formidable counterstroke on all fronts.

"'The Germans are waiting * * * but they won't wait long—at most a few weeks. Wherever the battle blazes up, whichever side takes the initiative of attack, the coming Spring will see the most frightful slaughter recorded in history.

Criticises England, Belgium and Italy.

"'I can form an approximate idea,' said the King, 'of what the French, English, Italian and Russian armies represent in active force.

"'According to what you tell me, I can realize the accumulation of material means that you are prepared to wield on all fronts; it seems to me gigantic and surpasses everything that the imagination of neutrals far from the battlefield can conceive.

"'I have a clear, and I believe exact, idea of the magnificent courage that the Allies, eager to end the war, will display, and I feel their firm will to conquer.

"'You will be victorious.

"'In six months Germany and Austria will be beaten. Will they be definitely crushed? I do not think so.

"'The Allies are perhaps a little optimistic, and take their wishes for realities; they confuse the effort already accomplished with the effort still required.

"'Set in its egoism and unpreparedness, the British Empire had difficulty in putting fifty or sixty thousand men at France's disposal in 1914.

"'Since then England has accomplished a splendid effort—simply splendid when you compare it to the nothing of her beginning. But all that doesn't place on the western front the 3,000,000 of English that ought to be there.

"'Belgium is the victim of German barbarity, but also of her own unpreparedness and of her passion for comfort. We all deplore her shocking martyrdom, and it is glorious that France has been able to get 150,000 men from the ruins of Belgium. But all that doesn't represent the five or six hundred thousand men that Belgium ought to have put in line.

"'Italy has organized an army which is beginning to be well supplied with everything, but her rôle has been more or less negative so far. She has not inflicted upon the enemy "usury" proportionate to her numerical strength, and I fear she will always remain second class.

"'On the other hand, I know that the French Army has done and will continue to do more than its duty.

"'Whatever may be the gaps that result from the British egoism, the Belgian and Italian idleness during the last forty years, I am convinced that the simultaneous action of the allied forces which are soon going to strike three against one on the western fronts—from the North Sea to the Carso—will give you victory.'"

The second section of the Matin article will be published in THE NEW YORK TIMES tomorrow, and subsequent sections daily thereafter until the article is concluded.

N.B.—The main business of the convention, as we understand it, is to launch the K. of C. nation-wide educational work for former service men and civilians. More than 40,000 former service men and women received diplomas from the 73 free K. of C. night schools at the end of the first school year on June 30, while 500 ex-service men passed their first-year examinations as holders of K. of C. free scholarships in universities and colleges. The Knights at this convention will ratify the plan of their educational convention calling for the expenditure of $7,000,000 on extending their school system. They plan to have 200 schools and 200,000 pupils in the fall. Incidentally their employment bureaus, which had placed many thousands of men, will continue to operate.

One of the most laudable undertakings we have met with in a long time. And one to which we hope all may have the privilege of contributing.

GIRL SHOT BY DOCTOR DIDN'T KNOW ELWELL

Neighbor of Slain Turfman Denies She Is the 'Ruth' Restaurant Owner Mentioned.

WAS PATIENT AT BELLEVUE

Admits She Visited Broadway Resort—Two Are Released in Arenas Suicide Case.

After Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, first assistant to Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, had reported yesterday that Dr. José A. Arenas, well-to-do dentist-physician, had killed himself, Magistrate Schwab in West Side Court released from custody Ignacio Marti and Juan Maldanado, who had been held as material witnesses.

For a time during the day detectives believed that the act of the doctor in slightly wounding Marti and "Miss Ruth Jackson," later discovered to be the wife of Elmer Schultz of Toledo, and killing himself in his rooms on the first floor of 116 West Seventieth Street last Saturday, had developed a new clue in the mystery of the murder of Joseph B. Elwell. Elwell's tragic death occurred at 244 West Seventieth Street.

After questioning "Miss Jackson" in the prison ward at Bellevue Hospital, where she still was held as a material witness, however, Acting Captain Michael Quinn, in charge of the Fourth Detective Division, decided that she knew nothing about the bridge whist expert's death.

The chauffeur who drove Elwell home on the night of June 10, the eve of his murder, told the District Attorney that his ill-fated passenger had stopped at a well-known all-night restaurant, near Broadway and Seventy-second Street. Detectives who investigated the story were told that Elwell wasn't known, but that "Ruth" might be able to help them out.

It was on the theory that "Miss Jackson," who was living in the neighborhood at the time, might be the "Ruth" referred to that Captain Quinn questioned her. The most important and illuminating remark that "Miss Jackson" made during the inquisition was:

"Good Lord! I hope they haven't got me mixed up with the Elwell case. I never heard of him until I read in the newspapers that he had been murdered. I never even knew any one who knew him."

She said that she had been admitted to Bellevue on June 13 last, two days after Elwell's death, suffering from alcoholic poisoning. She explained that she had been in a Broadway dancing academy, that she drank several drinks, was overcome, and later recovered consciousness in the hospital. She said her maiden name was Ruth Parreese, and that she is the wife of Elmer Schwartz.

"I left home twelve weeks ago to see New York," she said, "and I have seen enough of it. Just as soon as I can get out of here I am going back home and I am going to stay there. I'll never leave my husband again."

She said she had assumed the name of "Ruth Jackson" because of the theatrical career that she intended to start.

LLOYD AND NINETEEN COMMUNISTS GUILTY

examination of veniremen before a jury was obtained.

Testimony throughout the trial tended to show that Lloyd wrote many letters, which the Post Office Department declared seditious matter. A girl reporter was brought from Milwaukee to tell of a speech Lloyd made there, in which he advocated the gathering of rifles, machine guns and bombs, and advised his audience to blow up the banks to obtain money to finance the revolution.

The trial was remarkable, not alone for its length, but also for the legal talent employed.

The lawyers for the defense were William S. Forest, William A. Cunnea and Clarence S. Darrow. Lloyd paid all their large fees, it is understood.

The cost to the State has averaged $2,500 weekly, a special prosecutor and three Assistant State's Attorneys being employed on the trial.

Motion for New Trial.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(Associated Press)—A motion for a new trial was made tonight by the defense in the case of the twenty convicted Communists and the court will hear the motion Sept. 25.

Maclay Hoyne, State's Attorney, in a statement issued after the verdict, called it a "signal victory for the entire United States."

"In this trial Red radicalism was driven into the open," said the statement. "One important issue decided by this jury is that the red card of the I. W. W. is international and not American, and that the only card recognized as American is the card of the American workingman in the American Federation of Labor."

The defendants were indicted under a new Illinois law against criminal syndicalism.

This was the first trial involving a conspiracy against the Government to be held in Cook County courts since the Haymarket anarchists were convicted and sentenced to hang on Nov. 11, 1887.

William Bross Lloyd, a Harvard graduate, who inherited wealth from his father, the late Henry D. Lloyd, a Boston philanthropist, with thirty-seven other alleged officers of the Communist Labor Party were put on trial in Chicago on May 10 on the charge of violating the Illinois law against sedition.

Lloyd was indicted with John Reed, another Harvard graduate, and the other co-defendants included several noted radicals, while their movement was alleged to have been fostered largely by persons of inherited wealth and no occupation.

Two months was spent in picking a jury. In his opening argument Lloyd Heath, Assistant State's Attorney, told the jury that it was the intention of the defendants to tear down the Stars and Stripes and substitute the red flag as a national emblem; annihilate the American Government and establish a dictatorship of the proletariat. Laboring men were urged to dynamite the banks and arsenals to get money and arms with which to carry on the fight for a Soviet system of government he charged.

The majority of the members of the regular Socialist Party had become dissatisfied with the slow progress in bringing about Socialism by means of the ballot box, and wished to affiliate with the Third Internationale of Moscow, and persuade that party to commit itself to the overthrow of the Government by force and violence, the prosecutor charged.

Telling of the withdrawal of William Bross Lloyd and others from the Socialist Party on the ground that it was too mild in its program, and of their establishment of the Left Wing, the prosecutor continued:

"We are going to show you that a document was drawn up and adopted known as the 'Left Wing Manifesto.' We are going to offer that manifesto in evidence. We will show that it urges the unskilled laborer to start a revolution; that its aim is to stir up the passions and hatred of that class; that it tells the laboring man he should hate his Government, because capitalism and democracy are the same and that all that is done for him is to coerce and suppress him, and that it tells the laborer to hate and destroy his employer because he is a murderous master."

The indictments charged, in four counts, conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the Government by force, to publish or distribute printed matter advocating that purpose, conspiracy to belong to an organization advocating it and conspiracy to attend meetings at which overthrow of the Government was advocated.

Several of those indicted fled to Mexico. Reed, the most prominent among those indicted, went to Russia, and was said to be on his way to this country as a Bolshevist envoy to the United States when he was reported arrested in Finland on a charge of smuggling.

Disinfection Cuts Down the Sick-List

Big sick-lists are unprofitable to the man who pays salaries. That's why organizations aiming at high efficiency take every available means to protect the health of employees.

Frequent disinfection is one of the first steps in health protection. Proper disinfection kills disease germs and thus prevents sickness from spreading throughout the establishment.

Lysol Disinfectant
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Cuspidors, toilet-rooms, sinks, drains, floors, window-sills, dark corners—all are favorite birthplaces for disease germs.

Sprinkle a solution of Lysol Disinfectant frequently in all such places. Insist that Lysol Disinfectant be added to all scrubbing water, too.

Used regularly, Lysol Disinfectant kills germ life or prevents its creation.

A 50c bottle makes five gallons of powerful disinfectant; a 25c bottle makes two gallons.

Remember, there is but one genuine Lysol Disinfectant—made, bottled, signed, and sealed by Lehn & Fink, Inc.

These Things
HOT SPOT & RAM'S-HORN accomplish for
CHALMERS

HOT SPOT and RAM'S-HORN, which have made Chalmers one of the few great cars of the world, accomplish such results as these:

Quality First

A—Make an engine practically carbon exempt.
B—Prevent the chief cause of spark plug fouling.
C—Eliminate the chief cause of burned bearings and scored cylinders.
D—Give extended gasoline mileage.
E—Reduce vibration.

They develop engine efficiency to a new peak and bring motor car up-keep to a new low level.

For Hot Spot and Ram's-horn convert the raw, inferior gasoline of the day into a fuel vapor, from which is extracted, without harm to the engine, the power that nature centuries ago stored away in gasoline.

Spend a few minutes with a Chalmers owner. Talk with him about his car. He will tell you Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

Located principally at Schenectady, N. Y.; New Cumberland, Pa.; Columbus, Ohio; Boston, Mass., and San Antonio, Texas, where harness may be inspected upon application to the Quartermaster Depot Officer at point of storage.

SPECIFICATIONS

All harness is of artillery type, the majority black and some russet, with breast collar. There are approximately 5,000 sets with steel collars.

Lead harness consists of back strap and crupper, with loin straps and trace loops.

Wheel harness consists of back strap and crupper, with loin straps and trace loops, with breeching body, martingale, bridle complete with snaffle bit and riding reins; McClellan saddle with steel stirrups, a blanket for each horse, saddle bags for the two off horses, halters, whips, and cable trace, Model 1908.

All harness is Army Model 1916, and will be sold F. O. B. point of storage.

While this harness is not of the strict commercial type, it offers a ready field for converters. The saddles, halters, bridles, saddle bags, whips and blankets may be disposed of by the successful bidders, as separate items.

The material of which the harness was constructed is of the best grade leather and steel. The various parts were subjected to a rigid inspection and test before being accepted by the Government, and each complete set given similar scrutiny.

CHEERING NEGROES HAIL BLACK NATION

Free Africa Demanded at Second Day of Month's Convention in Madison Square Garden.

SEND SYMPATHY TO IRISH

Head of Improvement Association Says Negro Will Fight to Acquire a Land of His Own.

A mass meeting of a thirty-day convention to take up the problems of the negro race, was held last night in Madison Square Garden, where 20,000 negroes made the big hall rock when they yelled for an Africa free from the Strait of Gibralter to the Cape of Good Hope—an immense negro republic of negroes, officered by negroes for the negro.

The 20,000 were delegates and friends of delegates to the convention. For more than two hours they were worked up to a high pitch of enthusiasm by a quartet, soloists and a band. Then Marcus Garvey, President General of the Universal Negro Improvement Association and leader in the movement to free Africa, stepped to the platform, clad in cap and gown of purple, green and gold. He received an ovation. Five minutes passed before he could raise his voice.

When he did speak it was to announce that he had sent a telegram of greeting to Eamon de Valera, "President of the Irish Republic." The message read:

"Twenty-five thousand negro delegates assembled in Madison Square Garden in mass meeting, representing 400,000,000 negroes of the world, send you greetings as President of the Irish Republic. Please accept sympathy of negroes of the world for your cause. We believe Ireland should be free even as Africa shall be free for the negroes of the world. Keep up the fight for a free Ireland."

Determined to be Free.

The message was answered by applause equal to that which shook the big building recently when Archbishop Mannix voiced approval of Ireland's cause.

"We are the descendants of a suffering people," Garvey began. "We are the descendants of a people determined to suffer no longer. Our forefathers suffered many years on both hemispheres, many years of abuse from an alien race.

"It was claimed that the black man came from a backward people, not knowing and not awake to the bigger callings of civilization. That might have been true years ago, but it is not true today.

"Fifty-five years ago the black man was set free from slavery on this continent. Now he declares that what is good for the white man of this age is also good for the negro. They, as a race, claim freedom, and claim the right to establish a democracy."

When the shouts and whistling from all parts of the hall had subsided he continued:

"We shall now organize the 400,000,000 negroes of the world into a vast organization to plant the banner of freedom on the great continent of Africa. We have no apologies to make, and will make none. We do not desire what has belonged to others, though others have always sought to deprive us of that which belonged to us.

Will Shed Blood for Ideal.

"We new negroes, we men who have returned from this war—we will dispute every inch of the way until we win.

"We will begin by framing a bill of rights of the negro race with a constitution to guide the life and destiny of the 400,000,000. The Constitution of the United States means that every white American would shed his blood to defend that Constittuion. The constitution of the negro race will mean that every negro will shed his blood to defend his constitution.

"If Europe is for the Europeans, then Africa shall be for the black peoples of the world. We say it; we mean it.

Will Strike for Freedom.

"The world is undergoing a reorganization, and in this reorganization the negroes shall do not less than strike for freedom. We shall ask the reason why we cannot enjoy the benefits of liberty."

"No more lynchings!" shouted a negro at the top of his voice.

"Wherever I go, whether it be to France, Germany, England or Spain, I find that I am told that this is a white man's country and that there is no room for a nigger. The other races have countries of their own and it is time for the 400,000,000 negroes to claim Africa for themselves."

In the course of his denunciation of the variors nations having African colonies Garvey mentioned Belgium several times and the name of that nation was hissed each time. It was explained that this was because the negro would never forget the reign of terror to the negro caused by Leopold II. in the Belgian Congo.

When Garvey finished his address a group of leaders gathered about him to congratulate him. He was addressed as "Your Majesty."

The Rev. Dr. Eason, Chaplain General of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, the next speaker, said he indorsed the doctrine of expulsion expounded by his chief, declaring that Africans would one day realize the fondest desire of their hearts.

To be Serf No Longer.

"We shall ask, demand and expect of the world a free Africa," he declared. The black man has been a serf, a tool, a slave and a peon for all the world, and has been regarded as less than a man. That day has ceased. During later years he has shown the world that he is capable of standing by himself."

Garvey had referred to the possibility of another great war, this time with the peoples of the Orient ranged against those of the Occident. When Asia drew the sword, "his majesty" said, the time would be ripe to draw the sword for Africa.

"We have decided, because of our numerical strength and religious nature, that we are now able to teach the world the truth of the doctrine of do unto others as you would they should do unto you," concluded Dr. Eason.

Garvey, a Jamaican, is directing the convention, and the association he heads owns the Black Star Line, which operates three vessels. The Universal Negro Improvement Association is said to have a membership of more than 1,000,000. An African Prince, several chiefs and descendants of chiefs are reported among the delegates. According to the convention officials delegates have reported from all over the United States, Canada, Central America and the West Indies.

PUNISHES "AUTO FLIRTS."

Magistrate Sends Chauffeur to Jail, Fines Another for Mashing.

Carlos Barran, a chauffeur, 124 West Sixty-fifth Street, began serving a twenty-day sentence in the West Side Jail yesterday, and Emilio Fournier, also a chauffeur, 169 West Seventy-third Street, was fined $20 by Magistrate Joseph Schwab in West Side Court for automobile flirting. The Magistrate denounced them as "auto lizards."

Barran and Fournier were charged with disorderly conduct by Detectives Peter Riley and Thomas O'Neill of the Vice Squad. The detectives said [illegible] had arrested the men, Sunday after trailing them from Fifty-ninth Street to Sixty-fifth Street. They said the men were driving close to the curb in an automobile and attempting to inveigle women and girls into taking a ride with them.

FERRY FIRE CAUSES SCARE.

Passengers Taken Off When Gasoline Flares Up.

A blaze started on an automobile truck on the 6:15 A. M. trip of the Erie ferryboat Jamestown, when the craft was about 20 feet off Pier No. 2, Jersey City, yesterday morning, alarmed the truck horses on board and created some excitement among the hundred early morning workers, including two women, who were on their way to Jersey City. Directly the gasoline blazed up the Captain of the Jamestown blew his whistle for assistance, which was promptly answered by the Lackawanna ferryboat Ithaca and the tugboats Waverly, Alice Stafford and Davidson. The crews played their fire hoses on the blaze, which was extinguished before it had done any damage to the Jamestown.

Some of the passengers were transferred by a plank to the Ithaca, and the others remained on the Jamestown, which was laid off until 9 A. M., and then resumed her regular service.

PIERCE-ARROW
Dual Valve trucks with double ignition and electric lights,

a 2-ton truck
a 3½-ton truck
a 5-ton truck
and a tractor

These mark as notable an advance as the Worm Gear, introduced by Pierce-Arrow in 1910, which has become the dominant truck drive.

The Dual Valve principle means greatly increased power and surprising operating economy.

Pierce Arrow

48 of the FIRST FIFTY trucks still running after 9 years' service.

Delivers more work in a given time.

Loses less time on the job and off the job.

Costs less to operate and less to maintain.

Lasts longer, depreciates less, commands a higher resale price.

THE GREAT EXPANSION of facilities and the efficient organization necessitated by War production developed invaluable experience enabling us to enhance the high quality which always has marked Pierce-Arrow.

THE PRESENT LINE retains these distinctive Pierce-Arrow characteristics—durability, long life, easy operation.

It gains materially in these vitally important attributes:

Pulling Power—equal to any demand
Gasoline Economy—more miles per gallon
Accessibility—for quick economical repairs

THESE ARE PRIMARY FACTORS in operation and maintenance—the true test of truck economy.

ON BEING LOST.

Readers of The Weekly Review expected a rare treat when it got round to dealing with Senator Harding's speech of acceptance. They had noted its clear and firm words in advance. "He is lost," wrote The Weekly Review before Harding spoke, unless he "plainly declares" that "if elected "President he will submit the Versailles Treaty to the Senate with a "recommendation that it be ratified "with the Lodge reservations." After that, readers naturally looked to see The Weekly Review make the fur fly. It is so stout a champion of plain speech, so insistent that everybody get down to brass tacks with its own readiness, makes so merry with all amphibolists and word-jugglers, that it surely would get after Harding in fine style. But, alas, it forgot all about the position it had staked out beforehand. It admitted that the "natural" meaning of Mr. Harding's speech was an utter repudiation of the Treaty and the League, but consoled itself with the fancy that this meaning was not "unavoidable," and then made a lot of amiable remarks about the queer state of mind into which the people had got concerning the whole business. It says no more that Harding is "lost," but, as somebody has to be, The Weekly Review itself assumes the rôle—in its own "wandering mazes lost."

AN UP-STATE SENATOR.

According to a political tradition or superstition, if the nominee for Governor is from this end of the State, the candidate for Senator must come from up-State. Theoretically, of course, the best man should be selected, irrespective of geography, always one of the most momentous of studies to the curious minds of politicians. The renomination of Governor Smith, then, will force the Democrats to seek their candidate for Senator from the region where Horatio Seymours and David B. Hills once flourished and can doubtless be found again. It seems to be agreed that the man selected to run against Senator Wadsworth must be a capable or accomplished orator, who can preach persuasively on the stump the Democratic gospel.

Some New Yorkers who had the good fortune to be born in the favored district or who live there in the Summer have been "favorably mentioned." Mr. Murray Hulbert, for instance, a Rochesterian, who was an excellent Representative in Congress, and has been a foresighted and admirable Dock Commissioner; and Mr. Henry Morgenthau, who has a Summer home in Dutchess County. On account of his knowledge of foreign affairs, his profound belief in the League of Nations, Mr. Morgenthau, who is also, as everybody knows, a man of large affairs and eminently fit to represent the great agricultural, industrial, commercial and financial world which the State of New York is, would be a most worthy Senator; but, presumably, political geography will be inexorable to him.

The problem of the Democrats is to find a man "right" from both the geographical and the intellectual point of view. Not that any towering intellect is necessary for Mr. Wadsworth's adversary to equal that engaging but not too majestic-minded young man. The Democrats should have no trouble in nominating not merely his equal but his superior. It seems to be assumed that one of the minor qualifications of that adversary must be a deep devotion to woman suffrage. Since Federal woman suffrage is a certainty, however, whose date can be postponed only a little at the utmost, it must be regarded as not a burning issue. Not on Mr. Wadsworth's resistance to woman suffrage, but on his general unprogressive course and machine docility, will he be most successfully fought, so far as the campaign is merely personal; and merely personal to any considerably extent it should not be. Mr. Wadsworth's successor, whether himself or a Democrat, will have a voice in the decision of vital matters of national and international policy. The Democratic candidate should be a man able to discuss these with knowledge, force and suasion; and he should be on the right side in regard to all of them.

REPUBLICAN REASONERS.

The Republican managers can hardly suppose that they are putting their best man forward, in the person of Senator Medill McCormick, to explain their ambiguous attitude toward the League of Nations. The aggressive Senator from Illinois does not need to have anybody put him forward. He attends to that himself. It was no doubt a wholly volunteer statement which he issued on Sunday, after a call upon Mr. Harding at Marion. He professes to have recent and startling information that both Lloyd George and Lord Grey are willing to have the League revised. This has long been known to everybody except the ingenuous McCormick. But what difference would any changes in the League make to him? He has been against it in any form. He was one of the most bitter of "bitter-enders" in the Senate. He is the sworn supporter of Senator Johnson. And the latter reiterates, in The Sunset Magazine, that "the Republican Party "stands committed to repudiation of "the League even with reservations." In view of that explicit deliverance by Senator McCormick's chief, one sees how much his present chatter amounts to.

Other powerful Republican reasoners are making great play over their nice distinction between the League of Nations and "the Wilson Covenant." It is only the latter that they reject with patriotic horror. But the fact is that the Wilson Covenant is the League of Nations. It is the only League now known in fact or in law. The Covenant has been signed by twenty-eight Governments and made operative as the only League of Nations that the world knows anything about. Great Britain purposes to submit her renewed Japanese treaty of alliance to the League—that is, as provided by the Wilson Covenant. The House of Commons in voting to take over a mandate for the Island of Nauru referred it to the League under Article 22 of the Wilson Covenant. So it goes with every practical step taken. Mr. Root at The Hague quietly accepts the Wilson Covenant as being the now binding League of Nations. Yet our Republican Monsieur Distinguos, more ridiculous than Pascal's, go on prating about a distinction notoriously without a difference.

It is refreshing to see Mr. Taft slitting all this thin-spun reasoning. He is not very heroic, but he is blunt and intelligible. His latest defense of his position is, in effect, as follows: "I "worked for the League and honestly "wanted it. Harding says he will "have nothing to do with it. That is "too bad. I'm sorry. But I am a "Republican, and do you expect me "to break with my party, no matter "what it does? Not if you know me. "I am a Republican and couldn't "vote for a Democrat even if I agreed "with him in every particular." Plain folk can understand that. They may not admire it. But at least it is free from the hypocritical hair-splitting of some other Republicans.

FREIGHT RATES AND PRICES.

Many think that the railways deserved higher rates, but dread the effect on the cost of living. The connection between rates and prices is far less close than between wages and prices, and yet there was not the opposition to doubling the railways' wage bill that there is to the increase of rates. At first the railways modestly asked for 5 per cent. advance. After three years they asked 15 per cent. Now they get something less than threefold the larger demand, which is still moderate. Various calculations are made of the times the $1,500,000,000 of increased rates will be reduplicated in cost to the ultimate consumer. They are all worthless, in the opinions of authorities so different as the Department of Justice, the economist Lauck and Daniel Willard, President of the railway which suffered perhaps more than any other by Government diversion of its facilities to service of the people at the cost of the shareholders.

There will be no great dependence upon prosecutions by the Department of Justice to keep the rate increases from being reflected in goods prices. The law is a puny protection against economic movements up or down. Mr. Lauck, the miners' cost expert, consistently argues for the increase of rates as he did for the increase of wages. Both increases, he thinks, ought to come out of profits, and the charge upon the consumers ought to be "infinitesimal." So railway Presidents argued before him. There is no doubt that profiteers would be glad to cover increases of prices with the mantle of the rate increase, and that many will seek to do so. Whoever is asked to pay a higher price because of the rate increase has a right to feel that his intelligence is insulted. Railway rates are reckoned in mills. They reach the dignity of cents only on cases, carcasses and carload lots. Countless articles are sold with national advertising at the same prices everywhere, regardless of freight considerations. In multitudes of cases wholesalers' prices are made from a basing point, with freight added. They and the retailers know to a fraction what the addition is. They are bold who dare to add the freight on a case of shoes to each pair, or on a lamb's carcass to an order of chops in a restaurant. Buyers who endure that extortion are simple and foolish.

The best reason is that given by Daniel Willard. The railways will be able to improve their service to such an extent that the profits on new business will be able to absorb the rate increases. The cost of paying the rate increase and getting service will be less than having lower rates with service unobtainable at any price. The impossibility of moving freight at the fixed rate has been such that water rates are actually above all-rail rates, and producers have moved bulky and weighty goods by motor at prices which make the increased freight rates look cheap. The cost of rates kept below the cost of service results in the disorganization of trade and the congestion of credit. The increase of rates is "infinitesimal" when compared, not with the price of goods, in Mr. Lauck's manner, but with the loss of profits by inability to do business on any terms. When two million tons of steel are piled for lack of cars, when hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of goods are tied up in freight embargoes, when building stops for lack of materials and there is a shortage of millions of tons of coal, there results a lack of earnings and wages and profits which makes the increase of rates look even smaller than the comparison of it with the increase of wages which preceded it.

When the railway wages were last raised it was remarked that the increase was the final phase of the wage rise, for another could not be endured. The same may be said of the rate increase. In both cases the increases have been capitalized at the time when they will do most good to those who will receive them and least harm to those who must pay them. The efficiency of labor will be increased when workers are no longer incited to unrest by uneconomic wages paid to war workers from tax money, on a scale which no commercial business can rival. Railway workers no longer will be dissatisfied because they are underpaid in comparison with ship riveters. And in many other trades from now on wages will be leveled to what business can afford, not to what duress can exact. Production will be increased in all trades as well as in railway freights, and the price recession will make good the decline in wages. Mr. Gompers is welcome to "resist and resist and resist." No one will join issue with him. But the Federation no more than Congress or the Interstate Commerce Commission can control an economic movement as resistless as the tides.

A WATERFRONT AVENUE.

The germ of an idea which promises many benefits, including relief of the present congestion in north and south bound traffic, is contained in the Dock Commissioner's plan for improving the North River front. Mr. Hulbert proposes "a promenade between the "piers and warehouses, ultimately "connecting Battery Park and River-"side Drive."

To realize all its possibilities, the "promenade" would have to be elevated, at least where the traffic is thickest. All vehicles plying between warehouse and pier, together with the cabs of steamship passengers, would naturally keep to the present street level. The promenade would run overhead, permitting vehicles going north and south to travel at any legitimate speed and at the same time to command a view of the river, which from the street level is shut out by the superstructure of the piers. All cars making trips of any considerable length would naturally choose the waterfront, thus relieving the surface avenues of a large part of the present congestion. Inclined approaches to the elevated portions of the avenue should offer no serious difficulty. Where downtown streets are narrow it might be necessary to have exits and entrances on alternate blocks, but for the most part the problem would be solved as it is already solved in certain portions of Riverside Drive and in the elevated way around the Grand Central Station.

It is quite within the range of possibility that we shall some day have a waterfront avenue encircling Manhattan Island. As Controller Craig has pointed out, the city owns or has legal claim to many parcels of marginal land which was once submerged. For the rest, the land to be condemned is of no prohibitive value. Such an avenue would greatly enhance the value of neighboring property, and it would open up to the public the full beauty of our waterways with their distant shores and all the varied fascination of our shipping. The city which has been so long shut in by encircling slums and business districts would regain its ancient character of a seaport, free-breathing and picturesque.

The avenue would, of course, be connected by detours with the terminals of the great bridges, thus speeding to any part of the city those who motor into town. The proposed Hudson Bridge would similarly benefit those who come from New Jersey. It would also provide a way by which travelers who motor through New York could do so with the utmost dispatch and over a route of distinguished beauty.

A CANADIAN CHALLENGER.

Apparently we shall not have to possess our souls in patience until 1922 for another race for the America's Cup. Mr. Ross of Sydney, Cape Breton, has given notice of his intention to compete for the Cup in July, 1921. He is going to have a boat built on this side and paid for by Canadian subscriptions. Evidently he counts on a stronger national yachting patriotism in the Dominion than can be found here; for the Canadian boat is not to be a stanch and "real" all-weather craft, but another member of the sensitive and temperamental class to which Resolute and Shamrock, those highly nervous sea nymphs, belong.

His boat is to be manned by Nova Scotian fishermen, bold and hardy sailors. It will be remembered that Resolute's crew was composed of American citizens from Scandinavia. American interest in Canada and the relations and friendships of the two nations are so close that possibly an American-Canadian yacht race for the Cup may revive an ancient enthusiasm whose edge was somewhat dulled by the last series of races. For the moment, perhaps, Americans are a little weary of scientific marine toys.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Survival of the Fit in Russia.

Anthropologists noted long ago among the characteristics of the human race that accounted for its attainment of dominion over all of the earth's other inhabitants its capacity for adapting itself to diverse environments, including those of climates ranging all the way from tropical to arctic. The only animal, or perhaps one should say the only other animal, that has this capacity to a degree approaching man's is the dog, but to some extent it marks all of the creatures he has subjected to what is called "domestication"—a euphemism for the sort of exploitation that does not involve immediate slaughter.

But what the animals seemingly do not share with man—probably because they do not need to share it—is his ability to adapt himself to all sorts of political governments, including the worst or wickedest. Some men, that is, have this ability. The rest, lacking it, die out when despotism becomes too savage and life depends on physical strength and utter unscrupulousness in getting the necessaries of existence. The fittest always survive, but, as has been well said, the survivors may not be better than their defeated competitors in any way except their fitness to survive.

According to a letter printed in The Times last Sunday, the survival of those who in ordinary times and places would be called the worst, and the extermination of the best, is now going on in Russia, and the process as described is an appalling one from any standpoint except that of the Bolsheviki there, and of their admirers in other countries. Nicholas Iordansky, the writer of the letter, edited a Marxian paper in Petrograd, and would pass for more than sufficiently radical with the conservatives of other countries, but to the present Russian Government he seemed to be a counter-revolutionist, so his paper was suppressed and he was himself lucky to escape to Finland with his life. His account, therefore, of Bolshevism is not that of a man by temperament opposed to political and economic innovations.

Those Who Prosper in Bolshevy.

M. Iordansky says that Petrograd today is a city strangely silent, for its once active factories are now practically all closed and its once busy and crowded streets are almost deserted. The population of the city has decreased to 450,000 and is waning fast, partly because of an enormous death rate from the diseases incidental to semi-starvation and partly because those who find conditions intolerable and hopeless are going away as fast and as far as they can.

But there is a class that remains whose members do not find the conditions either intolerable or hopeless. They are the strong, the savage, the cruel elements of the Russian people—those who can assimilate coarse foods, who are not disturbed by moral degradation, who are willing and able to give all their energy and time to getting through any devices of force and fraud enough to eat, rags with which to cover themselves from the cold, and the rude shelter which is all they require.

These people, fine flower of Bolshevism, are a healthy and husky lot, in strange contrast to the pale and tottering remnants of the old-time intellectuals. They are not unhappy, and they will be the foundation of the Bolshevist State in Russia if there is to be one. And in very truth they are the fittest to survive—the only ones that can survive—in Bolshevist conditions.

Our parlor Socialists should read M. Iordansky's article several times. It tells what their fate would be if the social revolution of which they are so fond of telling—and financing—should come.

He's Shrewd Enough to Reform.

Definite as were the statements from Mexico City about the surrender of Villa to the Provisional Government, it seems to be a fact that the great bandit has not yet put himself in the hands of the class he has so long defied. He is wandering somewhere through congenial—and safe—mountains and deserts, still negotiating terms, still making demands for money and other things to be given to himself and his men.

According to the latest reports, he has asked to be supplied with school books, paper, pencils, chalk and such few other requirements of an educational institution as he may have heard of, and with these, when he gets them—with an incidental $500,000 in cash, hard and cold—he purposes, or promises, the establishment of a college where he and his followers may learn the arts of peace.

It is a pretty tale, and, in spite of its unplausibility, it may be true. Villa is no ordinary ruffian. His own complete want of education has not prevented him from realizing the value of what he lacks, and it may well be that with advancing years and cumulative weariness the man really is considering the possibility of settling down and becoming honest. He has enough intelligence to see the advantages of reformation as compared with death in battle or before a firing squad that otherwise inevitably will end his career sooner or later. How he can trust anybody or how anybody can trust him it is hard to see, but Mexico is Mexico, and it is not necessary that such questions should be answered elsewhere.

Attempting Reform Prematurely.

With so many larger and more important problems demanding their attention, it is surprising that the French legislators should be giving time to consideration of a law to make dueling a punishable offence. As a matter of fact, and as every reader of Dumas knows, such a law would be no new thing in France, but the enforcement of it never was attempted seriously, and what the great Cardinal could not do it is unlikely the smaller politicians of today will accomplish.

And why, after all, should dueling, as now and for years and years past conducted in France, be stopped? It is an innocent activity, spiced with just enough of danger to make it interesting. Its fatalities are far less numerous than those of football and its wounds less disfiguring than those of America's favorite game.

The proposed substitute of a "tribunal of honor" to settle all quarrels that cannot be taken to court would lack all authority as soon as it was endowed with the power to compel acceptance of its decisions. In no country have laws against dueling ever ended it. Wherever the practice has been abandoned the reason has been a change of general public sentiment—a change which, so far as known, has not yet begun in France.

The Test of America.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial stand for the League of Nations as the chief issue of the campaign is timely and praiseworthy. Whether we wish it or not the world will learn in November whether the altruistic Americanism of Washington, Lincoln and Wilson, as embodied in the League of Nations, shall survive the selfish and egoistic Americanism of Lodge, Harding and Penrose, as embodied in Senator Harding's speech of acceptance.

The issue is already clear and clean cut. America is being weighed in the balance. November will decide her future course and position among the other nations of the earth. The late words of President Wilson to the miners might well be addressed to all the people of the United States: no nation "can long endure that sets up its own strength as being superior to its plighted faith or its duty to society at large."

Faith in the League.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To offset the letter of Victoria D. Ozier, who finds your advocacy of the League of Nations so "shocking," let me express my eternal gratitude for the high-minded, farsighted way in which you have championed this momentous cause.

Like Ambassador Morgenthau, I regard the covenant of the League of Nations as "the greatest document since the Magna Charta," for the reason that, by its provisions for the reduction of armaments and prevention of wars throughout the world, it promises more for the relief, liberty, safety and happiness of mankind than any other human device.

A PRAYER FOR THE KIDNAPPED BABY.

Oh, God of all things vast—the sky, the sea,
The mountain lines that lift above the world;
Maker of stars and guardian of their flight
Lest one mismovement mar the whirling whole;
Great busy Watcher of the countless suns
That sweep about Thy feet in endless light—
Reach down Thy hand
In tenderness, tonight!
Hold that frail, tiny hand that, groping, seeks
Through all the darkness for the breast it knows.
Reach down Thy hand in gentleness, tonight,
To touch and soothe that wee, wee one to sleep.

Bold Hurler of the comet toward its goal,
Mist-hidden in a million years beyond;
Unshrinking Hand that flings the lightning's flame
Across the sky to tear it into shreds;
Oh, Voice that speaks in thunder and in storm—
Speak soft and low,
Speak soft and sweet, dear God,
To lull that frightened wee one to its dreams.

Dread Shaker of the world who strikes His lance
Across the earth till men grow pale and dumb
To see the ground crack wide beneath their feet;
Dread Power that flings the tempest to the sea
And drives the raging hurricane's wild speed
Across the maddened waters of the world—
Reach down, reach down with healing hands tonight,
Bind up the tattered heart of one who weeps,
More desolate than Rachel.

What art Thou, then? The Mighty One?
Molder of stars? God of the whirling suns?
Voice of the Storm and Power Invincible?
Yea, possibly! What matters this or that?
This thing I know:
Thou didst lift up my darkened spirit once
When it fell fainting on life's broad highway;
Thou didst bind up my bruised, bruised soul
When it lay, sorely wounded, by the road;
Thy hands did stanch the bleeding of my heart
When it lay long, long broken through the night,
When it lay dying in the darkness there.
I have not once forgot Thy tender touch,
Even though so long, long past now seems the night
When Death pressed all its hemlock to my lips,
That, sobbing, clung half frantic to the hand,
The chilling hand, of my own little one.

Bring back her baby, God! Ah, dear, sweet God!
Dost Thou not know
My own came not, but died?
Therefore I pray,
Therefore I pray with heart most passionate,
Bring back her baby to her aching breast.
Dear Father,
Empty arms I lift in prayer,
Beseeching Thee—
Beseeching Thee for her!

AUSTRALIAN SENTIMENT.

Americans Asked to Listen to Premier Rather Than to Dr. Mannix.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Archbishop Mannix has proceeded on his way, leaving a trail of misrepresentation and bitterness in his track. With statements from which we are to deduce that he, and not Prime Minister Hughes, represents public opinion in Australia, he trusts that Americans without examination will accept his declarations.

He calls the Prime Minister of Australia a renegade. If refusal to support and be supported by a party which, for the time being, had linked itself up with Dr. Mannix and what he stood for, is being a renegade, then Mr. Hughes is one, but Mr. Hughes will always be honored for his act. The Archbishop asserts that he opposed Mr. Hughes on the conscription issue. That is true, and it is true also that he arrayed against Mr. Hughes every hostile force that could be conjured up against conscription. The slogans used were: "Australia has done enough in the war," "Let America do something," and so forth. The referendum was defeated, but by so narrow a majority as to constitute a triumph for the principles enunciated by Mr. Hughes, it being borne in mind that many votes cast against the issue were those of people who felt that the voluntary system which had produced such a splendid showing was sufficient. This is the victory that Dr. Mannix acclaims.

His later political efforts and the response to his adjurations are illuminating. In the Federal elections held toward the close of last year he came out in the open as a political agent. He had a brand-new Prime Minister (Mr. Ryan) of his own choosing to present to the country. He brought him to Melbourne and introduced him as the champion of the Irish cause—a cause which Australians generally feel has no more right to be agitated in Australia than in America. The loyalty of Australia to the empire and to Mr. Hughes, after his magnificent services at the Paris Peace Conference, was evidenced by the result. In the Senate the party backed by Dr. Mannix has one representative in a house of thirty-six, and in the House of Representatives, out of seventy-six members, there are twenty-six who bear the hallmark of Mannix, a number of whom would doubtless prefer to be without it.

Thus it is that Mr. Hughes tells this country that Dr. Mannix is repudiated by Australia, and Australians ask America not to permit this visitor to spread dissension.

The Catholic proportion of the population of Australia is about 20 per cent., many of whom have attained high honor and estate. It is therefore only just to state that Dr. Mannix, although an Archbishop, does not represent the true sentiments of the Catholics of Australia. Fresh to Australia shortly before the war broke out, his utterances—at least he is consistent in these—quickly caused dissent, and such honored Catholics as Judge Heydon of the Arbitration Court, Judge Gavan Duffy, Federal Supreme Court, son of the Irish patriot of the same name; Sir Thomas Hughes, several times Lord Mayor of Sydney, and many other prominent Catholic figures, all repudiated him emphatically, and it can certainly be added that their attitude represents that of the greater proportion of the sect in Australia.

His journey to this country was marked on shipboard by characteristic incidents. A Britisher, who resented insult to the British flag, was charged with being "in the pay of the Government, following Mannix to Rome to embarrass him." On the insult being transferred to the American flag later, an irate American requested him to stand to the "Star-Spangled Banner"—not "America," as Dr. Mannix has asserted. The Archbishop refused. While for brief moments there was danger of trouble, wiser counsels prevailed. About ten American passengers drew the attention of their State Department to the insult. All this was characterized as a British plot, and the Archbishop's denial apparently outweighed the evidence of a whole ship's company.

There is one tribute that Australia pays to the departing prelate wholeheartedly. For sowing discord in communities where peace reigned before he has no peer. If that is his apparent purpose it must be admitted he succeeds well.

YACHT RACE OF 1866.

Victory of the Henrietta Over Fleetwing and Vesta.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your article in the issue of July 31 describing the great yacht race between the Fleetwing, Vesta and Henrietta contains a few errors, and, in justice to those that are entitled to the full credit of the Henrietta's victory, I beg leave to submit the following summary of facts:

The race was originally intended as a contest between the Vesta and the Fleetwing, and it was not until after the arrangements had been initiated that Captain James Gordon Bennett was granted permission to enter the race on equal terms. The Henrietta was considered to be a slower sailer than either the Vesta or Fleetwing. Captain Martin Lyons, recently deceased, was not the sailing master of the Henrietta and was not in command of that vessel. He was merely a mate on board. The sailing master of the Henrietta was Captain Samuel Samuels, a famous skipper of Atlantic clipper ships that had made several very remarkably fast voyages between New York and Liverpool. Captain Bennett personally commanded the Henrietta. He had served as a Lieutenant Commander when that vessel was loaned to the Government as a cruiser in the revenue marine in the civil war (now the United States Coast Guard). He was a practical seaman and was the only owner sailing on the contesting yachts. He gave the sweepstakes to the officers and crew of the Henrietta.

I was a personal friend of Captain Bennett for many years, and I cannot permit the opportunity to pass without correcting the erroneous statements contained in your article on the great ocean yacht race of December, 1866. In confirmation of the foregoing statement, I beg leave to refer you to the records printed in the leading New York newspapers of that period.

In conclusion, I may modestly state that I am a seaman in the technical sense of that term. I served four years as a line officer in the civil war, to wit, as a mate and Ensign in the navy, went to sea in the merchant service, was skipper and sailed a yacht as sailing master for a kinsman before entering the navy.

AGREES TO GERMAN LOAN.

Commons Passes Vote for £5,000,000 After Lloyd George Explains It.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Further light was thrown on the Spa agreement by Premier Lloyd George in Commons tonight when the House was asked to pass a vote for £5,000,000 which Great Britain is to advance to Germany to provide food for the miners who are to produce the coal from the Ruhr Valley.

The Prime Minister explained that under the Spa agreement the proceeds of the sale of ships allocated to Britain were to be credited to Britain. He could not tell how much that would amount to, but if the figure realized was £20 a ton that would mean £40,000,000 to be credited to Britain.

Then there would be the freights earned by the use of these ships, which represented millions of pounds. Therefore, all that was arranged at Spa was that this advance should be made to Germany out of these reparation receipts. France and Belgium would receive 2,000,000 tons of coal monthly. France also would find money out of the coal and ships she got. In form it was a loan, but it would be deducted out of the amounts already received, which would be considerably in excess of that sum.

He said he made this statement in order that misapprehensions might be dispelled. It was not a fact that without receiving anything from Germany the first action that Great Britain was taking under the treaty was to raise £5,000,000. Such an idea was absolutely wrong. he said. Great Britain would receive about ten times that amount, and out of it would advance £5,000,000 to enable Germany to meet the needs of her industrial population. That was business. The vote was agreed to.

EDITORS REACH MONTREAL.

British Journalists on Way to Imperial Conference in Ottawa.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—More than one hundred Imperial Press delegates from Great Britain and several of the Dominions arrived in the city tonight and will pass two days here before proceeding to the formal conference, which is to be held in Ottawa, opening on Thursday. Two special trains drew up in the Candian Pacific Railroad Windsor station last night. Among them are men prominent not only in newspaper circles, but in public life in the United Kingdom and elsewhere, such as Viscount Burnham, proprietor of The Daily Telegraph, with Lady Burnham; Sir Harry Brittain, M. P.; organizer of the first Imperial Press conference; Sir Robert Bruce, Sir Arthur Holbrook, M. P.; Lord Apsley, Sir Gilbert Parker, Sir Frank and Lady Newnes, Sir Emsley Carr and Lady Carr, Crosbie Roles, Secretary of the Empire Press Union.

They were met on their arrival by prominent Canadian journalists.

PORRAS WINS IN PANAMA.

Elected President Over Urriola, After Protest to Washington.

PANAMA, Aug. 2.—Dr. Belesario Porras, candidate of the Liberal Conservative Party, was chosen President of the Republic of Panama in the election held yesterday.

His opponent in the campaign was Dr. Ciro Urriola.

Dr. Belesario Porras was formerly President of Panama and resigned six months ago in order to enter the campaign for re-election, the Constitution of the republic providing that no one elected to that office may succeed himself.

Late in July partisans of Dr. Urriola filed a protest with the State Department in Washington, asserting that Dr. Porras was ineligible to the office. So far as is known the United States did not intervene in the situation.

GEORGIA SHOWS SMALL GAIN

Wood River, Ill., Leads All Towns in Population Growth.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Georgia's 1920 population, with the exception of one enumeration district not returned by the supervisor, is 2,893,601, the Census Bureau announced today. Ten years ago the population was 2,609,121. The rate of growth for the ten years was 10.9 per cent, the smallest in the history of the state, almost seven per cent. less than the increase of ten years ago.

In numbers, Georgia's population increase was 284,480, the smallest numerical increase since the decade ending with 1870 and a little more than two-thirds as large as the increase ten years ago.

Wood River, Madison County, Ill., whose population was announced today by the Census Bureau as 3,476, has shown an increase of 4,038.1 per cent. during the last ten years. This is the highest rate of growth shown by any place in the United States thus far in the fourteenth census.

Wood River's 1910 population was 84. Part of the town's large increase was due to the annexation of Benbow City, which had a population of 205, and East Wood River, which had 400 residents ten years ago.

The bureau reports the population of Globe, Ariz., as 7,044, a decrease of 39, or 0.6 per cent.

TO CARE FOR WAR INVALIDS.

War Risk Bureau Will Transfer Them to Government Hospitals.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Bureau of War Risk Insurance announced today that ex-service men disabled by reason of wounds, injuries of disease incurred in the World War and in need of hospital treatment are to be gathered into hospitals owned and controlled by the Government within the next year. This transfer of patients from private hospitals, and hospitals only partly controlled by the Government, constitutes part of a general plan of the bureau, so authorized to act by recent legislation, to concentrate the convalescent veterans in institutions in which the Government will be able to give them better and more specialized treatment.

There are 17,981 disabled ex-service men and women being cared for in more than one thousand hospitals scattered throughout the United States under the supervision of the War Risk Bureau. Of this number 8,123 are in hospitals owned or operated by the Government and 9,858 are in private hospitals, including State and county sanatoriums.

WILL PRESS AMNESTY PLEA.

Labor Officials Expect Hearing Before Attorney General Next Week.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Officials of the American Federation of Labor will press their pleas for general amnesty for political prisoners next week, according to an announcement today at Federation headquarters.

Attorney General Palmer has been asked to receive a delegation of labor leaders, headed by Samuel Gompers, at which the general amnesty resolution adopted by the Montreal labor convention will be presented. Department of Justice officials indicated the conference would be arranged for early next week.

Giegerich, Charles L. Guy, Mitchell L. Erlanger, and M. Warley Platzek to the Supreme Court and Judges T. C. T. Crain and Otto A Rosalsky to General Sessions. All have served for at least fourteen years and have been indorsed for re-election by the Bar Association.

ASSERTS JAPANESE ENTER AT GUAYMAS

Representative Albert Johnson Tells of 'Underground Route' in Lower California.

SAYS THOUSANDS GET IN

Once In, He Asserts, the System Arranges to Establish Bona Fide Residence for Them.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 2.—Definite location of the "underground system" on the Pacific Coast by which "thousands of Japanese are smuggled into the United States yearly" was announced here today by Congressman Albert Johnson of Washington, Chairman of the House Sub-Committee on Immigration and Naturalization, which reassembled here today to investigate Japanese activities in the Northwest.

"Until we came to the Northwest we had only an indefinite idea of the operations by which Japanese are being brought surreptitiously into the United States," said Chairman Johnson. "Now we have the key, so to speak. We have found that the Japanese underground system begins at Yokohama. From there it leads to Honolulu and extends across the Pacific to Guaymas, on the Gulf of California.

"Here, either by water or across the border, the Japanese invaders are smuggled into the United States. A perfect system of escorts has been established. In Honolulu and at Guaymas, posts have been established which take care of the details of the smuggling. Mexican guards are known to have been bribed with $10 at the Unite States-Mexican border. The same careful system of escort has been establishe both at Yokohama and Honolulu.

"Once the Japanese is smuggled int California he is taken in tow by som member of the Japanese Association branches of which are in Oregon an Washington. He is taken to the ban and his credit established by a substantial deposit.

"Then he goes out into the vineyard or into the agricultural districts an hides for five years. At the expiration of this time he can come out of seclusion. If he is questioned by th Government authorities as to his residence here he can quickly establish thi by taking the authorities to the ban where five years before he made hi first deposit. This establishes his bon fide residence of five years as require by statute."

COX OF JERSEY STOCK.

Governor's Genealogy Shows Ancestors Lived in Monmouth County

Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic candidate for President, is descended from New Jersey stock, according to Mrs. Theodore Cox Sullivan of 32 Park Street, Montclair, who has jus made public a genealogy of the Co family, which has been substantiated b William Van Zandt Cox of Washington

According to Mrs. Sullivan, who wa instrumental in raising a monument t General James Cox, at Cox's Corner near Freehold, N. J., Governor Cox be longs to the family tree of the Jame Cox who founded the first Baptis church in New Jersey. His father Thomas Cox, migrated from New Towne, Long Island, with some settler and made his home in Monmouth County, N. J. There he helped to buil Woodbridge and Freehold. Governo Cox's grandfather, Gilbert Cox, journeyed West and made his home in Ohio He settled at Jacksonburg, Butle County, where he married Ann Craig His son, Gilbert, Jr., the nominee father, married Eliza Andrews.

Governor Cox's first ancestor in America was Thomas Cox, who, according t the genealogy of Mrs. Sullivan, "wa born in Old England." He was marrie to Elizabeth Blashford, of Marshpath kills, in "ye limits of New Towne, Long Island." In 1665, the year of his marriage, he went with other English colonists to the oldest settlement in Monmouth County, Middletown, province o East Jersey.

Thomas Cox acquired lands unde Governor Nicoll's patent, which wa guaranteed to him, but "being a jus man," he recognized the prior rights o the Indians, paying them in full for th portions allotted to him. His interes in public affairs began in 1667, when h was chosen "fence overseer." His nex offices were those of "rate maker," assistant to the Constable and Town Deputy. While serving in the last capacit he dissented from the regulations ordered at the town meeting. Dr. Henry Miller Cox says the habit of dissent appears to have been a family characteristic, "inherited, perhaps, from ancestors trained in the school of Cromwell."

Among Thomas Cox's children were John and James Cox, both prominen citizens in their day. James Cox freel denounced the proprietors of East Jersey as enemies of the country. He signe remonstrances against the Governor an demanded that the proprietors either remove him as "a most unfitting person and appoint a capable man, or allow th colony to become a royal province.

In 1707 he favored the movement t dissolve the Assembly and elect a ne one, and worked enthusiastically for t change. He and his brother John w liberal contributors to the "Bl Jack" fund, and the freeholders w finally successful in obtaining the rig they claimed as English coloni Among the children of James Cox we John (1710-1788) and Joseph (1713-1801) Governor Cox is descended directly from John. One of the sons of John Cox wa Captain James Cox, of the Revolutionary Army. Captain James Cox's son Benjamin, had a son, Gilbert (1783 1868), who emigrated to Ohio and wa the grandfather of the present Presidential nominee.

SUMMER SOCIAL REGISTER.

New Issue Shows 10 Per Cent. Increase in Seashore Residents.

This year's Summer Social Register, just issued, indicates an increase of some ten per cent. in the residences by the seashore of New York families, as compared with an increase of only two per cent. at the inland resorts.

Long Island seashore places show a large grouping of the socially prominent. On the south shore there are 526 families, 410 on the north shore, 311 at the Hamptons and 578 on the north shore of the Sound, a total of 1,825.

Newport and Narragansett have 303 families, and Bar Harbor 131, while other points on the New England coast aggregate 1553. On the Jersey shore 514 families are indicated, and 88 on the western coast.

Canada leads this year with those at the inland resorts, having a total of 217 families. Bernardsville, Morristown and Short Hills, N. J., have 136 families, the Adirondacks 125 and Lenox 57.

A marked increase is shown in the number of marriages since the first of April, 959 marriages being indicated. This is greater than during the similar period, two years ago, when the high tide was reached.

More families are living abroad this year, as compared to last year, and 136 families, apparently, are spending the Summer on their yachts.

NINTH QUEENSBERRY DIES IN AFRICA

Marquess, Whose Father Originated Famous Boxing Rules, Was 52 Years Old.

HAD PICTURESQUE CAREER

Was a Miner in Australia; a Cowboy and Journalist Here—Amassed Several Fortunes.

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, Aug. 1.—Percy Sholto Douglas, ninth Marquess of Queensberry, is dead here, according to announcement.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—According to a Central News dispatch from Johannesburg, Union of South Africa, dated yesterday, shortly after the death of Percy Sholto Douglas, ninth Marquess of Queensberry, which was ascribed to pneumonia, an affidavit was filed making certain allegations against some of the persons with whom the Marquess was closely connected while in South Africa. The affidavit is not regarded seriously by the Criminal Investigation Department, but its existence retards disposal of the body.

The Marquess's heir, Francis Archibald Kelhead, Viscount Drumlanrig, and his wife, who was the actress Irene Richards, are touring South America.

The late Marquess had a varied and picturesque career which carried him over most of the world in search of wealth. During most of his life he was poor in money although rich in family, dignity and honors. At one time or another he was a midshipman in the navy, a cowboy and journalist in America, a gold miner in Australia and a plantation foreman in Ceylon. He made money in the Australian mines, but eventually lost it on the Stock Exchange here, although several times he amassed considerable riches.

The Marquess's first wife, Anna Maria Walters, whom he married in 1893, died in 1917. A year later he married Mary Louise, the widow of Ernest Morgan, who was head of a Cardiff firm of poultry and game dealers. Up to the time of his death, the Marquess continued to conduct the Morgan firm's shops.

He was born Oct. 13, 1868, succeeding to the title upon the death of his father in 1900. He was formerly midshipman in the British Navy and later was Lieutenant in the Third Battalion of the King's Own Scottish Borderers. He was twice married and is survived by two sons and one daughter. His eldest son, Francis Archibald Kelhead Douglas, Viscount Drumlanrig, succeeds to the title. The new Marquess was born Jan. 17, 1896, and fought during the World War as a member of the famous Black Watch, being wounded in action in 1917.

Two brothers of the Marquess have more than once attracted public attention. They are Lord Alfred Douglas, author of several volumes of poetry and a biography entitled "Oscar Wilde and Myself," and Lord Sholto George Douglas, formerly owner of the Hope diamond and principal in a dozen sensational episodes in this country and Canada.

John Francis Key.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 2.—John Francis Key, 92 years old, a Confederate veteran and grand-nephew of Francis Scott Key, writer of the "Star Spangled Banner," died at Confederate Soldiers' Home, Pikesville, this afternoon.

EDWARD J. NORTON of 276 Kingston Avenue, Brookklyn, retired Battalion Chief of the Brooklyn Fire Department, died Sunday of paralysis in the Kings County Hospital. He was born in England in 1854, came here as a boy and entered the Fire Department in 1879.

The Rev. Dr. JOHN HAMILTON TIMBRELL, who had for forty-four years held pastorates in the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, died Saturday at his Summer home in Mount Tabor, N. J.

MILITARY COURTS FOR IRISH CRIMES

latter to resign from the "Republican Parliament."

Friends of Mr. de Valera in this city expressed the opinion that he had gone to Washington after having bid farewell to the Australian prelate, but his arrival at the national capital has not been reported.

WAGE OPEN BATTLE ON LIMERICK ROAD

Sinn Feiners Capture Wounded Soldier and Use Him as Cover —Cyclist Patrol Ambushed.

DUBLIN, Aug. 2 (Associated Press).—Details of a fight which assumed the dimensions of a small battle at Bruree, County Limerick, today, are given in an account issued by general headquarters.

Fifty armed men ambushed a patrol of military cyclists, consisting of an officer and five men. One of the men was seriously wounded, but owing to the intensity of the attacking party's fire his comrades were unable to assist him.

The raiders reached the wounded man, seized his rifle and used his body as cover. This prevented the soldiers from firing effectively, and the struggle lasted for half an hour before they were able with difficulty to rescue the wounded man and drag him to a cottage.

Surrounding the cottage the raiders poured in a heavy fire. The soldiers' ammunition ran short, and one of them, disguising himself as a civilian, ran for reinforcements, at the arrival of which the raiders fled.

Pursued by the soldiers into the centre of the village, they turned and resumed firing. A schoolboy who got into the line of fire was killed.

Finally the soldiers got the upper hand. They searched the houses in the town and discovered a man mortally wounded.

VICEROY'S SECRETARY RESIGNS

Dublin Suggests This May Foreshadow French's Retirement.

DUBLIN, Aug. 2.—The resignation of Edward Saunderson as private secretary to the Viceroy, announced today, is regarded as of political significance and in some quarters it is even supposed his resignation may foreshadow that of the Viceroy.

Edward Saunderson is a son of the late Colonel Saunderson, Ulster leader, and his influence on the Viceroy was regarded always as being very great. He was frequently denounced by the Nationalist press.

RAID IRISH LIGHTHOUSE.

Believe This Is Reason for Steamships Dropping Irish Calls.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 3.—Armed raiders held up the occupants of the Mizzen Head Lighthouse, County Cork, on Saturday and took away 1,200 rounds of signaling ammunition. The Rosslare Coast Guard station also was raided and the signaling apparatus taken.

According to some of the newspapers today successive raids on lighthouses have been one of the reasons for diverting transatlantic liners from Queenstown. The Graphic today says that the diverting of the vessels was in no wise connected with Archbishop Mannix of Australia, but was due to the initiative of the steamship companies, who have found it increasingly difficult to obtain pilotage and were alarmed at the crippling of lighthouses. The newspaper adds that the companies also complained of irregularity of the railroad service at Queenstown.

QUESTIONS COX ON IRELAND.

Loyal Coalition Wants to Know His Stand on British Relations.

Governor James M. Cox has been interrogated by the Loyal Coalition regarding his views upon the Irish question and the desirability of continued friendly relations between English-speaking peoples. The letter reads:

"July 30, 1920.

"To his Excellency James M. Cox, State Capitol, Columbus, Ohio.

"Honored Sir: While the country is awaiting your speech of acceptance, and before you deliver it, I am instructed to address you in behalf of The Loyal Coalition, which is, according to its Constitution, a non-partisan citizens' organization formed 'to resist the movements of hyphenated groups and other persons seeking to dominate the country, disturb national harmony and disrupt friendly relations with Great Britain and other allies in the great war.'

"The people of this country are interested in and somewhat divided upon the League of Nations and prohibition, but all Americans deserving of the name are emphatically determined that American government shall function in behalf of American interests free from influence by any alien or hyphenated elements.

"This organization has been in existence only about four months. We have been obliged to concentrate practically all of our attention upon the Sinn Fein agitation in America. We have had extraordinary success wherever we have entered the field due to the tremendous power of the ideas for which we speak, namely, clean, practical Americanism.

"When the Mason and Hammill (Irish) resolutions were before Congress the response of public sentiment to our appeals and warnings was so spontaneous and compelling that Senators and Congressmen who had intended giving way in order to placate the Irish vote realized that there was an American vote which would not tolerate such procedure. As a result, the Mason bill was greatly modified in committee and halted on the floor of the House. The Hammill resolution did not move at all.

"You will readily recall the disposition of both the Republican and Democratic conventions. The Republican Party refused to incorporate any Irish plank whatsoever. The Democratic Party refused by an overwhelming vote to offer any sort of recognition to the so-called Irish Republic and merely reaffirmed previous expressions of sympathy on the distinct understanding that 'the limitations of international comity and usage' should be observed.

"We have the utmost confidence in your understanding of the questions involved in this issue and of your loyalty to America. But it is impossible to overlook the possibilities of pressure from that political party known as Tammany, which is notoriously Sinn Fein and hyphenated, as shown by the roll call upon the Irish Republic recognition proposal on the floor of the Democratic convention.

"We ask, therefore, if, in case of election, it will be your determination to abide by the obvious intent and purpose of the Democratic convention not to interfere by resolution or otherwise in the controversies of Irish factions with each other and the British Government, thereby insuring that the Irish question will not occupy a position in American politics which is at the same time demoralizing to our national harmony and dangerous to our foreign relations.

"The war against Germany is not even technically over. Developments of the most ominous significance are being hourly reported from various centres of strife on the Continent of Europe. It seems more than likely that another great war will be precipitated in the near future unless statesmanship of an extraordinarily high degree is displayed by leaders of the free peoples.

"Regardless of these emergency considerations, thoughtful Americans are realizing more and more, as expressed in a resolution offered in the United States Senate by Senator Thomas of Colorado, that 'the relations of amity and good-will which the late war with Germany established among all English-speaking people constitute the best guaranty of the future peace of the world and the final refuge of institutions founded upon liberty and justice protected by law; that any breach or serious disturbance of these relations would jeopardize the permanency of modern civilization.'

"We respectfully invite an expression from you as to whether or not you agree as to the desirability and necessity of continued and, if possible, increasing friendship with Great Britain, provided she does not interfere in our affairs, not only in view of present perils from other quarters but on broad general principles of world progress toward better conditions. Yours respectfully,

"DEMAREST LLOYD,
President "The Loyal Coalition."

FIVE IRISH "FRIENDS" SUE.

Seek to Enjoin National Committee from Expelling Them.

Strife in the Friends of Irish Freedom reached the courts yesterday when five members of the organization asked the Supreme Court for injunctions to restrain the National Executive Committee from expelling them. The complainants are Catherine F. McHugh, member of the Roger Casement branch; Joseph P. Martin, President of the Sean McDermott branch; Jeremiah F. Maher of the Michael Mallon branch, and Thomas F. Ryan of the Patrick Sarsfield branch.

The complaints were similar. It was said that the suits were the outgrowth of the recent criticism of Eamon de Valera, President of the so-called "Irish Republic." It was alleged the expulsions were ordered in "star chamber proceedings" and that the action of the National Executive Committee was "conduct plainly contrary to natural justice, fair play and contrary to the law of the land."

John J. O'Leary of 52 Broadway, who represents the plaintiffs, said:

"The complainants speak for themselves. They complain that they were expelled from the Friends of Irish Freedom by the National Executive without due notice, without charges having been formulated, without a hearing, without an opportunity to be represented by counsel and to cross-examine witnesses, and without notifying all members of the National Executive of the meeting and of the proposed expulsions. The complaints are similar in all cases, and the Friends of Irish Freedom, Incorporated, as well as the Friends of Irish Freedom, unincorporated, are made defendants. There are twenty-two allegations in the complaint.

"The plaintiffs allege that the alleged charges on which they were expelled are false, and that the real reason for expelling the is that it is part of a plan or scheme of some members of the National Executive Committee, who formed the Friends of Irish Freedom, Incorporated, without authority and without any right to the name, to expel from the association all members who might question the control which said corporation is exercising over the funds and affairs of the Friends of Irish Freedom. The funds are alleged to be $300,000 or more."

The incorporators of the Friends of Irish Freedom, Incorporated, are Diarmuid Lynch, John Carroll, P. A. Moynihan, P. Kavanagh, Sarah McKelvey, Richard F. Dalton and Daniel F. Cohalan. They are all members of the National Executive of the Friends of Irish Freedom.

Justice Cohalan was not in his chambers at 51 Chambers Street yesterday, and Roderick J. Kennedy, his secretary and prominent in the Friends of Irish Freedom, professed to know nothing about the matter. Michael McGreal, treasurer, could not be found. Diarmuid Lynch is in New Haven.

SIR BARTON SETS NEW TRACK RECORD

J. K. L. Ross's Colt, in Remarkable Comeback, Wins the Saratoga Handicap.

RUNS DISTANCE IN 2:01 4-5

Exterminator Finishes Second and Wildair Is Third in Field of Five Starters.

LARGE CROWD AT OPENING

Racing Season at Spa Is Ushered In by One of Biggest Attendances on Record.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Before one of the largest crowds that have ever attended an inaugural of a racing meeting at the beautiful Saratoga course, Commander J. K. L. Ross's Sir Barton, greatest money winner of last season, made a remarkable comeback here today when he won the Saratoga Handicap, at a mile and a quarter, and set a new track record for the distance. This fine son of Star Shoot ran the race in 2:01 4-5. The former record was made by Roamer in 1918 and was 2:02 1-5. The time made today was the closest approach to that made by Whisk Broom II. at Belmont Park a few years ago, when that racer was credited with 2 minutes flat, a record that has been disputed by many who timed the horse.

There was no question about the time made by Sir Barton today, and there was no question that he was much the best horse, for he not only won very easily, but ran what was perhaps the greatest race of his career. He led home W. S. Kilmer's great distance performer, Exterminator, by three lengths, while H. P. Whitney's Wildair was third, four lengths further back. There were five starters, the others being E. B. McLean's The Porter and S. C. Hildreth's Mad Hatter.

The Saratoga Handicap was an excellent contest for an opening day, which provided some very good racing throughout the program. In addition to the feature, which brought out the handicap performers, there was also the Flash Stakes, a test at five and a half furlongs for two-year-olds, which was won by H. P. Whitney's Moody in a driving finish with T. W. O'Brien's Pluribus second and Registrar taking third.

Big Crowd Present.

The management of the Saratoga Association was well prepared for the gay throng which turned out for the opening day, a crowd that will likely be surpassed in numbers before the meeting is much older, for not all of the racing folks had arrived for the sport today. The course presented a prettier picture than ever. Everything was spick and span, and among the most conspicuous of the improvements was the fountain which has been installed in the centre of the sunken star in the infield. Though there has been considerable rain at the Spa for several days, the track was almost lightning fast, as was indicated by the time made in several of the events.

The triumph of Sir Barton was greeted with cheers from all parts of the stands, not that he had been heavily supported, but because he is a horse that has become more or less of a turf idol. His performance was the more remarkable because he had not raced since early in the Spring, when he did not do well and was taken out of training. He has come back just as fit as when he was taking all of the three-year-olds events early last season.

For some unaccountable reason H. P. Whitney's Wildair, which had had but little success against the better class of handicap horses this season, was once more made a favorite and was well supported. He went to the post at 12 to 5, while Sir Barton was quoted at 13 to 5. There was much support for all but Exterminator and The Porter. The first-named of this pair was the only one which could withstand the terrific pace set by the winner and still finish with good speed. Sir Barton handled his impost of 129 pounds as if it was a feather, and in spite of this burden set the pace all the way, fought off first one challenger and then another and finally had more speed left for the finish than any of his rivals.

Always in Front.

The five horses broke almost on even terms, but Sande rushed Sir Barton to the front until he had his head clear of the others, and from then to the end he was always in front. The Porter and Wildair were the first to try to race with the Star Shoot colt. They kept right with the pace for three-quarters of a mile, while Mad Hatter was being kept under restraint and Exterminator was trailing the field several lengths back, as is his custom.

At the three-quarter pole the Porter gave it up. He could not follow the pace any further, and as he dropped back Ensor moved up with Mad Hatter, so that Sir Barton would not have an instant in which to get a breather. Mad Hatter forced Sir Barton to go at a terrific clip all the way around the turn, but Sir Barton was equal to it, and when the horses were nearing the end of the turn into the stretch Mad Hatter suddenly began to drop back. All the running had been taken out of the Hildreth horse, and he was so tired that he finished a bad last.

All through the backstretch Exterminator had been creeping up on the field, and when he reached the long turn Schuttinger went through on the rail and finally got right at the heels of Sir Barton as the head of the stretch was reached. Schuttinger then made his challenge with the Kilmer horse, and it appeared that Exterminator would surely catch and overtake the Ross colt after the terrific pace the latter had been forced to set all the way. But Sir Barton was still able to take care of another rival. When Exterminator had become lapped on the winner Sande gave Sir Barton a cut with the whip, and the Star Shoot colt drew out once more and took the last spurt out of his remaining rival. Over the last sixteenth the winner did not have to be extended to win by three lengths. Exterminator easily defeated Wildair, which was tiring fast in the final furlong, and the other two were far back in the procession.

The victory of H. P. Whitney's Moody in the Flash Stakes was a surprise, as the colt had been badly beaten recently at Yonkers. He was a neglected 12 to 1 shot along with his running mate, Greenland, which was never a contender. The favorite in this race was A. H. Diaz's General J. M. Gomez, until today undefeated and which had shown remarkable speed in his trials for this race. Just how well General Gomez might have done will not be known, for the colt stumbled just after the start, was knocked back when he tried to get up and suffered too many accidents to ever hope to win in a field which contained so much speed.

Registrar showed a fine burst of speed at the start and set the pace to the turn into the stretch. Moody moved up on the inside and, finishing with a rush, caught the leader. However, Pluribus, which had started slowly, came around the field and was fast wearing the winner down. Moody just lasted to win by a neck. General Gomez found an opening on the rail and made a desperate effort, but his early misfortunes had taken too much out of him and he could not make up the distance and had to be content with fourth place.

Flare Is a Winner.

The Shillelah Handicap, with which the cross-country sport was resumed, was won by E. C. Griffith's Flare, which defeated Royal Arch and Lytle, among the seven which started. Decisive fell. Flare followed the pace closely and drew away at the last jump, but had to be ridden out to hold the victory against Royal Arch.

Lawrence Waterbury's Tom McTaggart was again in a close finish, which appeared to most spectators to be a dead heat, and in which he again was defeated. During the meeting at Aqueduct he lost just such a decision to Claquer, and today he was beaten by Kewpie O'Neil in the fifth race at a mile. There were only four starters, and the race was between the first two all the way. A hundred feet from the end Tom McTaggart caught the leader and put his head in front, but Kewpie made one more effort, got on even terms and then won by a nod.

G. E. Hall's Sunny Hill was scratched from this race after his rider and post position had been announced and after the speculating on the race had begun. The horse was late arriving at the paddock and was obliged under the rules to withdraw. This caused no end of confusion among the oralists and some of them declared all wagers off, on the ground that the withdrawal of the horse affected the prices. As the Jockey Club takes no cognizance of betting, the layers and players will have to settle it among themselves.

The first race went to Bally Mooney, which defeated a field of good sprinters at six furlongs, with Blushing Beauty second and Different Eyes third.

H. P. Whitney made it a double triumph when his Exodus captured the final event, a five and one-half furlong dash for maiden two-year-olds. St. Michael was second and General Average third among a dozen that went to the post. Exodus caught St. Michael at the head of the stretch and drew away to win by five lengths.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 2.—The beautiful turf courts of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club took on their greatest activity of the season today with the opening of the annual invitation tournament, an event of more elaborate proportions than ever before, including both men's and women's singles and doubles. Each individual draw contained thirty-two names, with most of the leading stars, masculine and feminine, represented. Women's singles were played in the morning and the men's matches in the afternoon.

There are four Californians in the tournament, three men and one woman, and their play was the centre of attention for the gallery here today. Miss Eleanor Tennant fully lived up to expectations when she eliminated Mrs. Percy Wilbourne by scores of 6—3, 6—0, but both Willis E. Davis and Roland Roberts, who carry the greatest hopes of the Pacific Coast in the East at present, were forced to their limit before they could call it a day with the assurance that they were still on deck.

Davis ran into that enfant terrible of the current season, Willard Botsford, who, in his unwarranted assault upon the established order of things, has thus far defeated such highly respected players as S. Howard Voshell, Samuel Hardy, Alrick H. Man, Jr. and Seiichiro Kashio. Davis ranks higher than any of these on his record of last year, but this did not disturb the Anglo-schooled Yonkersman. He found the Davis service and the Davis volleys a difficult proposition in the first set, but did his best to make it a battle, and lost by no more than a 6—4 margin.

Strong Backhand Drive.

In the second session Botsford began to show a few strokes of his own, particularly an aggressive backhand drive that seemed to catch the ball at any stage of the bounce with equal effectiveness. Davis wavered slightly in his attack, and before he knew it the match was all square at 6—3. In the rubber it was practically impossible to tell the "first ten" man from the dark horse, so even was the play. The games went to the deuce without any indication of a winner. Once more they alternated with the service, and then Davis, who had been scoring fairly consistently on his own delivery, managed to break through and finish the argument by an 8—6 count. The defeat was as much of a triumph for Botsford as for the winner, for Davis is the man who last August beat Norman Brookes at Southampton.

Roland Roberts invited trouble by participating in two matches, the draw bringing him first against Philip Vandeventer, whom he defeated in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4. He then tackled Commander W. S. Anderson, and came very near to regretting his rashness. The left-hander started mildly enough, and dropped the opening set at 6—3, with the Californian serving, volleying and smashing exceedingly well. But the second offered a surprise, for after some thoroughly close play Anderson pulled ahead to square the match by a 7—5 margin. His steadiness had been the leading factor in this reversal, and Roberts eventually realized that he could win only by turning on his fastest shots, both off the ground and in the air, and outspeeding his rival, as he had done with so many others in his recent winning of the national clay court title. Anderson stuck to his guns and resisted stubbornly to the end, but Roberts had too much stuff to work with, and the rubber was eventually his at 6—3.

There were no other three-set matches in the singles here today, but several of the straight set affairs were close enough to prove exciting. Ludlow Vandeventer gave Robert Leroy a splendid battle before succumbing at 6—4, 7—5, forcing the veteran to the most accurate command of his deep court drives to overcome his aggressive net play. G. A. L. Dionne also kept Watson Washburn on the run through their two sets, although both were scored 6—3.

Voshell Is Victor.

Mason Kirkland succeeded in holding S. Howard Voshell fairly well in check, the spectacular southpaw winning at 6—3, 6—4. Harry S. Parker surprised some of the fans by going through Dr. William Rosenbaum in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4. There was interest in the reappearance of William J. Clothier of Philadelphia, national champion in 1906, who opened with an impressive victory over J. Brooks Fenno of the Harvard tennis team, scoring at 6—3 and 6—4, and showing much of his old skill at the half-court game. Once planted at the service line, with his length of arms and legs to help him, Clothier allowed very little to get past his racquet.

The Filipino visitors were again disappointing, José Paez getting only two games from Commander Anderson in the first round, while Trinitario Reyes had to be satisfied with the same total against Allen J. Lowrey. Clarence Griffin was not extended in beating William Ingraham, 6—0, 6—4, and Dean Mathey outsteadied Alex Iler to the tune of 6—3, 6—2.

Only two doubles matches were played, the club champions, Holcombe Ward and Bernon S. Prentice eliminating the Filipino team with the loss of only two games in each set, while H. Talcott and T. H. Banks, Jr., made the Vandeventer brothers come from behind to win at 4—6, 6—4, 6—3.

The women's matches were mostly decisive, the winners including, besides Miss Tennant, Miss Marie Wagner, Miss Margaret Grove, Miss Edith Sigourney and Miss Edith Handy, with Miss Marion Zinderstein and Miss Clare Cassel advancing by default. Miss Martha Bayard scored a creditable victory over Mrs. W. H. Pritchard at 6—3, 6—2, and Miss Bessie Holden acquired a third round bracket by successive defeats of Miss Mary Hurd and Miss Adele Cragin.

The summaries:

Women's Invitation Singles, First Round—Miss Eleanor Tennant defeated Mrs. Percy Wilbourne, 6—3, 6—0; Miss Martha Bayard defeated Mrs. W. H. Pritchard, 6—3, 6—2; Miss Adele Cragin won from Mrs. Gilbert Harvey by default; Miss Bessie G. Holden defeated Miss Mary Hurd, 6—3, 6—4; Miss Edith Sigourney defeated Mrs. Samuel E. Waring, 6—3, 6—1; Mrs. Edward V. Lynch defeated Miss Sara A. Atha, 6—1, 7—5; Miss Florence Ballin won from Mrs. M. B. Huff by default; Miss Leslie Bancroft defeated Mrs. Herbert Townsend, 6—2, 6—2; Miss Edith Handy defeated Mrs. Albert Humphries, 6—4, 6—3; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Rita Boker, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Margaret Grove defeated Miss Ellen McCarter, 6—4, 6—0; Miss Marion Zinderstein won from Miss Caroma Winn by default; Mrs. De Forest Candee defeated Mrs. Howland Davis, 6—3, 6—2; Miss Clare Cassel won from Miss Helene Pollak by default; Miss Katharine Force defeated Miss Marie Lamarche, 6—3, 6—1.

Second Round—Miss Holden defeated Miss Cragin, 6—2, 6—1.

Men's Invitation Singles, First Round—Watson M. Washburn defeated G. A. L. Dionne, 6—3, 6—3; A. J. Lowrey defeated Trinitario Reyes, 6—0, 6—2; Dean Mathey defeated Alex Iler, 6—3, 6—2; Robert Leroy defeated Ludlow Vandeventer, 6—4, 7—5; Hooker Talcott defeated D. P. Robinson, Jr., 6—4, 6—4; S. Howard Voshell defeated R. M. Kirkland, 6—3, 6—4; Harry S. Parker defeated Dr. William Rosenbaum, 6—2, 6—4; Willis Davis defeated Willard Botsford, 6—4, 3—6, 8—6; Commander W. S. Anderson defeated Jose Paez, 6—1, 6—1; Roland Roberts defeated Philip Vandeventer, 6—2, 6—4; Hugh Kelleher defeated Harold Godshall, 6—3, 6—0; Clarence J. Griffin defeated William Ingraham, 6—0, 6—4; William J. Clothier defeated J. Brooks Fenno, 6—3, 6—4.

Second Round—Roberts defeated Anderson, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3.

Men's Invitation Doubles, First Round—Bernon S. Prentice and Holcombe Ward defeated Reyes and Paez, 6—2, 6—2; Ludlow and Philip Vandeventer defeated H. Talcott and T. H. Banks, Jr., 4—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Second Round—Parker and Kelleher won from Dr. Rosenbaum and partner by default.

Brooklyn Tennis Club Holds Palm for Developing Teams

The Terrace-Kings County Tennis Club of Brooklyn still holds the record of being able to turn out the longest line of evenly balanced tennis players in the metropolitan district for team matches. Its latest achievement is the defeat of the combined representatives of the Hoboken, Glen Ridge and Rutherford clubs in seven out of nine matches, with the first seven men of its own ranking list absent. L. W. Knox and O. B. Mackie were the only Jerseymen to overcome the Terrace-Kings County attack, the former defeating Gerald Donaldson in straight sets. Charles Chambers, Dr. H. L. Morgenthaler, Royal D. Richey, J. T. Allen, W. A. Hartye, Fred G. Anderson and L. P. Moore, all veterans of the courts, turned in the seven victories for the well-stocked Brooklyn Club.

VETERAN TEAM IS WINNER IN TENNIS

Hammett and Henderson Advance in Hoboken Doubles—Weber and Taylor Win.

Thirty-two well-balanced teams began play yesterday afternoon in the open doubles tournament of the Hoboken Tennis Club at Castle Point, and a few hours of daylight-saving activity disposed of most of the first round and part of the second. That reliable lobbying combination from the University Heights Club, Alfred D. Hammett and Embree H. Henderson, finalists and semi-finalists in several important tournaments this year, attained a third-round bracket by virtue of a bye and a hard-won victory over R. W. Seabury and Valentine Havens, by 7—5, 7—9, 6—2.

The winners had all kinds of trouble handling the fast drives of their opponents in the opening set, but after nosing out this decision a speedy finish seemed at hand when they ran into a lead of 5—2 in the second. The New Jersey team, however, still had a lot of fight left in them, and they began a courageous pull-up, which did not end until the games were tied up at five-all. Service then alternated in winning for four games, after which Henderson dropped his delivery, chiefly through two errors by Hammett overhead. With Havens serving, the tying set was then pulled out by the close count of 9—7.

In the rubber, however, the Heights combination called on its reserve strength, while Seabury and Havens, having already played a complete match, tired perceptibly. They still drove well and tried for everything, but, with their rivals making practically no errors, few of the long rallies gave them much encouragement. Hammett and Henderson broke through for an early lead, which was boosted to 3—0, 4—1 and 5—2. Here the match-point came up, and when Henderson was presented with a short lob, the opposing team waiting well back for a smash, he patted the ball gently down the alley, and it was all over at 6—2.

Victory for East-West Team.

An even more spectacular match was played in the first round, with the local champions, R. C. Van Vliet, Jr., and Kenneth Johnson, facing the youthful East-West team, James Weber and Harold Taylor. The youngsters were full of errors in the early stages and it took the more experienced combination a comparatively short time to acquire the first leg at 6—2. Once they had settled down, however, both Taylor and Weber played spectacular tennis, and they went after the second set in earnest. A single break through service was sufficient to square the match at 6—4, and the rubber which followed contained the best and most exciting court struggle of the day.

Once more the lead alternated with the service, and this time the game score rose to deuce and then six-all. Weber gave his side the lead again on his southpaw deliveries and Van Vliet took up the burden of keeping his team in the game. He reached 30—15 through an error and a good low volley, spoiling a difficult overhead shot on the way. Then a perfect lob to the far corner beat Johnson completely, and the points were tied. Johnson made a good deep smash for the next, but the ball came back neatly, begging to be put out of its misery. Van Vliet rushed in and overdid it in his anxiety, smashing on a line to the backstop, a two-bagger on any baseball diamond, but useless on a tennis court. Chagrined at his generosity, he tried for a service ace and missed. He overhit the second ball as well, and the double fault rang down the curtain for an 8—6 decision in favor of Taylor and Weber.

Glen Ridge Players Win.

C. H. E. Milburn and Milton H. Soper, another Hoboken team, carried the Glen Ridge stars, S. E. Palmer and F. D. Powers, to three sets also before succumbing by scores of 6—2, 6—8, 8—6. Another close argument was won by the veteran Frederick G. Anderson and W. A. Hartye over George S. Groesbeck and Sigmund Spaeth in two long deuce sets scored 9—7, 7—5. The work of the old Long Island champion was a revelation, his ground strokes carrying tremendous speed and accuracy, while his overhead hitting from deep court turned many a well-intended lob into a reverse placement ace.

One of the strongest teams in the draw, Fred C. Baggs and J. P. Stockton, started with a decisive victory over L. M. Sparks and G. I. Burr in straight sets, and Anton Von Bernuth and L. W. Knox came through by the same route after being carried to deuce games in the opener by R. J. Sommer and O. B. Mackie. The summary:

First Round—Frederick G. Anderson and W. A. Hartye defeated George S. Groesbeck and Sigmund Spaeth, 9—7, 7—5; Fred C. Baggs and J. P. Stockton defeated L. M. Sparks and G. I. Burr, 6—2, 6—4; R. Lewisohn and Augustin Healy won from J. W. Anderson and partner, by default; S. E. Palmer and F. D. Powers defeated C. H. E. Milburn and M. H. Soper, 6—2, 6—8, 8—6; Henry Parson and T. M. Day 3d., defeated C. T. Woodford and Robert Shaw, 6—0, 6—3; S. V. Brubans and Ralph De Mott defeated F. Damrau and W. H. Van Riper, 6—2, 6—3; R. W. Seabury and Valentine Havens defeated Byron Kikuchi and P. Diehl, 6—2, 6—2; Anton Von Bernuth and L. W. Knox defeated R. J. Sommer and O. B. Backie, 8—6, 6—0; Harold Taylor and James Weber defeated R. C. Van Vliet, Jr., and Kenneth Johnson, 2—6, 6—4, 8—6.

Second Round—Alfred D. Hammett and Embree H. Henderson defeated R. W. Seabury and Valentine Havens, 7—5, 7—9, 6—2; Anton Von Bernuth and L. W. Knox won by default.

LASKER IS DISCOURAGED.

More Light Shed on Chess Champion's Decision to Retire.

Some additional explanations concerning the action of Dr. Emanuel Lasker in resigning the world's chess title to Jose R. Capablanca, aside from the so-called unpopularity of the conditions, as alleged by Dr. Lasker, have been received from abroad.

It now appears that Dr. Lasker, somewhat discouraged by the unresponsive attitude of the world at large, was unwilling to sacrifice nine months of his life, as he put it, to a match for which there was a general desire, but no really substantial support. Five months, he adds, have elapsed since he and Capablanca signed articles and in all that time he had received no encouragement out side of the Netherlands. He makes no mention of the offer of $20,000 for the match from Havana, and the presumption is that he had not heard of it at the time he made his abdication in favor of the young Cuban master.

Additional light and, perhaps, not the least important, is shed upon Dr. Lasker's mental condition when, in the course of a brief but highly complimentary reference to Capablanca, he remarks: "He stands above national jealousy." Concluding, he says: "My feelings are outraged and in such circumstances one cannot be at his best." This, too, will be regarded as highly significant.

LYNCH OUTPOINTS CHARLEY LEDOUX

West Side Bantamweight Too Clever for Game Frenchman in Jersey City Bout.

A scrappy, battling, fluffy-haired little Frenchman, Charley Ledoux, who can take strong-arm jabs on his chin and roll them off like water from a duck's back until it seems as if his jaw must be made of cast iron, last night gave Joe Lynch, the west side bantam, twelve rounds of excitement and was on his feet, still going strong, at the final bell.

Lynch won on points, and not so many of them, either, for six or seven thousand who filled the open-air arena of the Armory A. A. at Jersey City were never too sure that the champion of Europe's bantams was not on the verge of coming through with one of his especially deadly side-winders that whizzed into Lynch when they got to close quarters. Bleeding from a cut on his mouth which was opened in the first round, and his left eye closing slowly, Ledoux kept up his whirlwind speed to the end, and when many Americans and all of the Frenchmen cheered him at the closing gong Ledoux had a smile left for all.

Last night's battle marked Ledoux's first appearance in this neighborhood since 1913 and his second fight in an American ring since he laid aside his horizon blue uniform of a soldier of France and journeyed to America more than a month ago only to lose his first engagement in a Philadelphia ring against Joe Burman, the Chicagoan. He has plenty of acceptable excuses for both defeats. His first was because of illness as a result of his sea trip and last night's setback was almost wholly because of his short stature and inability to climb through Lynch's defense of a longer reach.

The west-sider stands fully a half head taller than the Frenchman and during the fourth and fifth rounds, particularly, while Ledoux was trying to force the fighting, Lynch was able to hold him off by just poking out his left arm. Both had agreed to weigh under 119 pounds at 3 o'clock yesterday and it was announced from the ring that the balance beam, set at 118 pounds, had not budged.

An Aggressive Boxer.

Greeted by some few derisive boos and hoots when his seconds gave an American boxing crowd a new sensation by waving a nice, yellow palm-leaf fan in front of their charge, Ledoux soon overcame this bad start by his ring tactics. He is a close fighter by preference, a tearing, smashing little bundle of nerves when he finds an opponent who will swap punches with him. But last night Ledoux had to change his style in order to reach up to Lynch's head and face. He had to rush in, often jump, get in a few telling wallops and then scoot back before Lynch's wicked left jabs began to come too fast.

The Frenchman made an extraordinarily favorable impression on the fans, not only by his brainy boxing tactics, which demonstrated why he had been able to keep in the ring with headliners for more than ten years, but perhaps more because of his ability to take punishment, even when physical handicaps prevented him from returning it. Crouched low, watching Lynch's waist and not his feet or face, Ledoux looked for all the world like a savage little tiger, ready and willing to pounce into danger and into trouble. Lynch was obliged to keep his guard low for this reason, and often was caught unawares with his head wide open for Ledoux to reach on a spring.

Lynch had a clear superiority in five of the rounds, a margin that piled up the points for him. In the eighth he had Ledoux on the verge of being groggy, but the European champion surprised the crowd by coming back in the ninth looking for more. Ledoux, without question, had the second and ninth clearly, and had the tiniest margin in the third, sixth and possibly the eleventh. If the eleventh wasn't a draw—and many thought it favored Ledoux—the first and fifth certainly were evenly battled.

Lynch poked home a right hook to Ledoux's face to start the first, but for the most part was satisfied to keep clear while analyzing the Frenchman's strategy. Ledoux deliberately chose to come in close, where he was able to drive home stinging jabs to Lynch's chin. The round was a draw. The second clearly was Ledoux's round. He began to take heavy jolts on his chin, but gave back to Lynch either half-arm or full-arm swipes. The New Yorker began to hold his own toward the end of the round, opening a cut on Ledoux's upper lip, but did not equalize the points. Ledoux, crouching low, carried the fight in the third and kept out of clinches. Two sharp lefts to Lynch's face and a hard right to his body in rapid-fire order showed the Frenchman at his best. Lynched missed most of his swings, particularly his rights, because Ledoux was far too speedy in ducking. It was Ledoux's round by a shade.

Ledoux Less Dangerous.

Ledoux became less dangerous when Lynch found he could employ his greater reach to hold him off with his left, all the while getting home jabs with his right, the fourth and fifth rounds being fought in this fashion. Ledoux coaxed Lynch into a period of fast infighting to the sixth and more than held his own on the exchanges, driving Lynch into a corner repeatedly and holding him there while he pummeled him. Lynch retaliated with a sound right hook toward the end which began to close Ledoux's left eye.

The seventh and eighth were Lynch's rounds easily, and in the latter his "one-twos" to Ledoux's head slowed up the Frenchman, who at the close seemed groggy. He appeared to have shot his bolt, but came back in the ninth and continually poked at Lynch's exposed face. In the last three rounds Lynch punished the Frenchman severely with solid jabs to his face, although most of the New Yorker's hooks and swings went wide of their mark. In the last round Ledoux twice slipped and fell to his knees, but both times came up like a bouncing rubber ball, smiled and shook his head to the rows of fans as if to prove he was not knocked down. He was on his feet and still at it trying to enter Lynch's defenses when the bout ended.

In the eight-round preliminary Harlem Eddie Kelly and Sammy Baker of Binghamton fought an uninteresting clinching draw. In the first six-round curtain-raiser the seconds of Young Klabby of Hazleton, Pa., tossed in the sponge in the second round, when Frankie Curry of New York was proving too good, and in the other bout Willie Spencer of Brooklyn knocked out Johnny Sullivan of Weehawken in two rounds.

Following the confusion that accompanied the staging of the Wills-Fulton bout in Newark a week ago last night it was feared there might be some disturbance last night that might work to the detriment of the sport, but everything progressed smoothly. There was not a single hitch in the proceedings.

N. Y. BOXER BREAKS ARM.

Frankie Conifrey Hurt in Fifth Round of Bout at Bridgeport.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 2.—Frankie Conifrey of New York, known in ring circles the Fighting Fireman, broke his left arm near the shoulder during the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round fight with Chick Simler of Scranton, Pa., at the open air arena in this city tonight. Conifrey dropped to the floor after the accident and screamed for assistance.

WILSON SCORES KNOCKOUT.

Middleweight Champion Disposes of Choynski in Fifth Round.

Champion Leonard Still Able To Make Lightweight Limit

Billy Gibson, manager of Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, has been much perturbed by the stories which have been circulating in boxing circles ever since Leonard's bout with Charley White, on July 5, to the effect that the champion can no longer make the lightweight limit and suggesting that he resign the crown and box Jack Britton for the welterweight title. Gibson has emphatically declared that Leonard can make the weight and that he will prove it to the satisfactoin of all just as soon as boxing begins in this State. The Walker law prescribes that all boxers must make weight eight hours in advance of entering the ring. The lightweight limit in this State is 135 pounds. Under these conditions Leonard would be compelled to make 135 pounds at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. This Gibson says Leonard will do.

PETER JUNE WINS ON GRAND CIRCUIT

Geers Drives Favorite to Victory in Elks Club 2:09 Trot, the Toledo Feature.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Peter June, driven by the veteran Edward Geers, won the Elks Club 2:09 trot for a purse of $5,000, the feature race of the opening day of the Grand Circuit meeting here this afternoon. Brusiloff was driven to the front in the opening heat by Tommy Murphy, but Peter June, the favorite, came on and won the next two heats and the race.

Dottie Day, winner at Columbus last week, captured the 2:18 trot, but Kilo Watts showed a burst of speed and nosed the little mare out in the final heat.

Tom McMahon, with Drift Patch, headed the field in the 2:06 pace in straight heats, while Ethel Chimes, the favorite, had to be content with second money.

Symbol S. Forrest had easy sailing in the 2:12 pace and won in straight heats with little trouble. In the second heat Frank Whitehead was cut about the face when Baron Russell tripped on the back stretch and went down.

Favorites came through in all events for the afternoon. Following Geers's victory in the Elks stake the local lodge of Elks presented the veteran driver with a complete blanket suit.

CAMPBELL LEADS GOLFERS.

Makes Low Score in Opening of Newspapermen's Handicap Tourney.

Peter L. Campbell, with a score of 91, 21—70, led a field of fourteen yesterday in the first round of the "accommodation" handicap golf tourney at Van Cortlandt Park, held by the New York Newspaper Golf Club. This event is another of the novelties arranged by the local scribes and will replace the regular August competition. It consists of three rounds of medal play handicap, which may be played at any time before Aug. 27. The committee, having found it next to impossible to call out the whole club for specified days, has hit upon this accommodation idea in order to increase the size of the monthly tourneys. Leonard Mudie turned in the low gross score yesterday, an 84.

The "boo" handicap is still unfinished, owing to the absence from the city of some of the players, the others having refused forfeits, preferring to have their "boos" later. The newspaper golfers are planning a "rowdy" tourney for their annual gymkhana day, which winds up the season.

Yesterday's scores follow:

P. L. Campbell, 91, 21—70; Martin Moore, 104, 32—72; A. P. Roth, 86, 13—73; Charles F. Laux, 96, 16—75; Leonard Mudie, 84, 8—76; F. J. McCarthy, 104, 28—76; E. Frank Teague, 97, 21—76; Eddie B. Davis, 95, 17—78; E. S. McRae, 89, 11—78; R. A. Kennedy, 98, 20—78; A. V. Dunbar, 92, 13—79; A. F. Welling, 98, 17—81; J. W. Morey, 102, 20—82; G. S. Beachel, 111, 25—86.

INVERNESS COURSE READY.

International Golf Match to Precede Open Tourney at Toledo.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 2.—The international team match as a prelude to the national open golf tournament to be played over the Inverness course next week will be staged Sunday, according to announcement of Inverness officials today.

The tournament proper is scheduled for Aug. 10 to 13. In the team match, which probably will be a contest of the British experts against the American professionals, Harry Vardon and Ted Ray will make up half the English team. Walter Hagen and James Barnes will head the American contingent. Partners to the four have not yet been picked.

Well known professionals and amateurs will begin arriving tomorrow, it was said tonight. Announcement also was made that Inverness was ready for the tournament.

Leo Diegel of Detroit, a candidate for the national open championship, is to play the course tomorrow and Wednesday. He returns to Detroit Thursday and with a partner will play there against Vardon and Ray. Diegel will return Friday, to remain over for the tournament.

A match is on the program for next Sunday between Chick Evans, the Western amateur champion, and Charles Carroll against Charles Lorms, Inverness professional, and Harvey Dack.

Beckett Gets $10,000 Offer.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—An offer of $10,000 for Joe Beckett, English heavyweight champion, to box Tony Melchoir, of Chicago, was cabled today to John Cochran, manager of Beckett, in London by Harney Lichtenstein, manager of the Chicago boxer. The bout, if Beckett accepts, probably will be held in East Chicago or Milwaukee.

FOUR COUNTRIES IN POWER BOAT RACES

America, Great Britain, France and Spain to Meet for Harmsworth Trophy.

Now that the races for the America's Cup are over, interest will be directed to the forthcoming contest for the Harmsworth Trophy in the Solent off the Isle of Wight, beginning on Aug. 10. The United States will be represented by Miss America, a 28-foot hydroplane equipped with two Liberty motors turning twin screws and owned by Garfield A. Wood of Detroit and representing the Detroit Yacht Club; Miss Detroit V., a 38-foot hydroplane equipped exactly as is Miss America and owned by Garfield A. Wood, Jr., representing the Miss Detroit Power Boat Association, and Whip-po'-Will, Jr., a 28-foot hydroplane equipped with two Duesenberg-Bugatti 450-horse power engines equipped tandem and turning one propeller, owned by Commodore Albert L. Judson and representing the Motor Boat Club of America.

These boats were sent to England aboard the Adriatic, which left New York on July 3 and reached their destination at Cowes, where they are now quartered, about July 11. They were accompanied by Bernard Smith and Clarence Mericle in charge of the Detroit boats and by Henry A. Pohl in charge of Whip-po'-Will, Jr. These men have been getting the craft ready since arrival.

G. A. Wood and Jay Smith, one of the best and most experienced crews for racing hydroplanes the world has ever seen, will operate Miss America, and this boat, with proper weather conditions, should make a remarkable showing. It is reported that she has made eighty miles an hour in her trials at Algonac before being shipped.

Three Men in Crew.

Miss Detroit V. will carry a crew of three, the helmsman, George Wood, brother of G. A. Wood, being located in a cockpit devoted to his use solely in the forward part of the boat, and the two engines will be attended by two mechanicians, who are located in the stern, where the engines are. This boat was built for heavy weather and, being thirty-eight feet long, or two feet under the maximum limit allowed, should be able to compete with any of the foreign boats in the roughest kind of weather. She is reported to have traveled at the rate of seventy miles an hour on her trial trips.

At the helm of the Whip-po'-Will, Jr., will be George C. Reis, a member of the Motor Boat Club of America and a Summer resident of Lake George, who has piloted the Whip-po'-Will, Jr., in all her contests since 1917. In charge of the engines will be Henry A. Pohl, who was superintendent of the Duesenberg factory, in which these engines were built for the Government during the war for aviation purposes, and it was under Mr. Pohl's direction that the engines were fitted and adapted for use in the Whip-po'-Will, Jr. Owing to the peculiar construction of these engines they have been readily adapted to the process of hooking them up tandem and thus allowing the entire power of both engines to be directed to one propeller. This method of installation has never been successful heretofore, as no marine or aviation engine ever built has allowed this method to be successfully applied. The results of the experiment in the installation of this power plant in the Whip-po'-Will, Jr., have demonstrated the entire practicability of this method and in the trial tests of the boat proved most successful.

While no record of the extreme speed possible for this boat has been made to date, the boat has traveled very much faster than it ever has done with throttles but half open. As this boat has the record of being the fastest in the world, and this record was made with the old power plant, and the new power plant gives 400 more horsepower and is 1,250 pounds lighter, the possibilities for the speed that may be obtained by the Whip-po'-Will, Jr., are probably beyond everything ever heretofore attempted. This boat is also a good rough weather boat, and nothing but the severest weather will prevent her from giving good reports of herself.

Six English Entries.

It is understood that there have been six entries from England, and that elimination trials to decide which three of the six boats will represent England were held on July 28.

France has made three entries and Spain two, and, as the United States is represented by a maximum of three boats, it is probable that in the first day's race there will be eleven starters, the largest number that ever has competed for the Harmsworth International Trophy. All of the boats from each country will be equipped with engines built for aviation purposes, so the success of this experiment is likely to have great effect upon the future power plants for motor boats, and will probably settle a much-discussed question as to whether for use in light motor boats, runabouts, &c., the light engine, such as is built for aviation purposes, will not supersede the old style heavier engine built for marine purposes solely.

The first race will be held on Aug. 10, and, weather permitting, races will be held on each succeeding day until some one country has won two races.

Followers of water sports are much interested in this coming contest and believe the American team may be able to bring the trophy back to this country, in which event future races, until won by some other country, would be held in the United States and under the auspices of the Motor Boat Club of America, the officially recognized club in charge of this event for the United States.

CANADIAN TOURNEY AUG. 26.

Open Golf Championship Will Be Decided at Ottawa.

B. L. Anderson, Secretary-Treasurer of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, has sent out the first notices governing the 1920 Canadian open golf championship in the expectation that many professionals from the United States will make entry. Last year the winner was the young Briton now at Druid Hills, Atlanta, J. Douglas Edgar, who tore around the 72 holes distance in 279 strokes, one of the lowest totals on record. Jim Barnes, Bobbie Jones and Karl Keffer tied for second at 294.

This year's title event will be held at the Rivermead Golf Club, Ottawa, Aug. 26 and 27. Entries will close at 12 o'clock, Aug. 25, with R. Gamble, Honorable Secretary of Rivermead. An effort this year is being made to attract a large number of amateurs, and the Rivermead Club has offered a cup for the amateur making the best score, to become his permanent property. The entertaining clubs also has offered a challenge cup, emblematical of the Canadian championship, to be held by the winner for one year only.

Purses totaling only $265 have been offered, however. They have been split as follows: First, $100 and gold medal; second, $75 and silver medal; third $50; fourth, $25; fifth, $10, and sixth $5.

His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, K. G., is the patron of the Royal Canadian Golf Association and the other officers are as follows: President, Paul J. Myler, Hamilton Golf and Country Club; Vice Presidents, C. P. Wilson, K. C., Winnipeg Golf Club; T. B. Reith, Beaconsfield Golf Club; George S. Lyon, Lambton Golf and Country Club; Secretary-Treasurer, B. L. Anderson, Lambton; Executive Committee, Major W. D. Wilson, Hamilton; R. C. H. Cassels, Toronto Golf Club; H. S. Reid, Mississauga Golf and Country Club; G. H. Turpin, Royal Montreal Golf Club; Major R. J. Orde, Royal Ottawa Golf Club.

Purses for Meet Total $39,000.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 2.—Purses for the grand circuit races at Charter Oak Park, September 6 to 10, inclusive, announced today, aggregate $39,000. The Charter Oak $10,000 stake for 2:12 trotters will be raced on September 9. There are twenty races on the program, four events for each day of the meeting. Entries will close August 23.

M'GRAWMEN AGAIN UPSET CHAMPIONS

Giants Draw Nearer Top of the Pennant Parade by Defeating Reds, 5 to 2.

NEHF TWIRLS FINE BALL

Holds Enemy Hitless in All but Three Innings—Ruether's Shoots Find New York Bats Often.

The mad rush of the Giants for a place in the pennant parade continued unchecked at the Polo Grounds yesterday, the world's champion Reds again failing to halt the McGrawmen. Bunched hitting in the third and fourth innings, coupled with some loose work by the champions, brought about a collection of four runs and put the affair out of the reach of the Redlegs. With Art Nehf twirling in his best form the home entry simply breezed along to a 5 to 2 triumph.

While the Reds were taking the dust of the Giants in Harlem, the Robins were being beaten into submission in Flatbush by Rogers Hornsby, so the gap between the McGrawmen and the two teams out in front was further reduced. This morning the Giants are only five games behind the pace setting Robins and they are separated from the second place Reds by the mere margin of three and one-half games. At the rate which they are now stepping the Giants will soon be in the lead or stepping on the heels of the pace setters.

The defense of the Reds yesterday was far from the world's championship standard, but that wasn't the main reason for their defeat. They were powerless before the southpaw wizardry of Nehf most of the way and probably would have trailed even if their fielding had been high class. Once the Giants began to forge to the front the champions took on the appearance of a badly bewildered and demoralized force. Ruether was ineffective in his pitching and lax in his fielding, while Nehf showed up strongly all the way.

Reds Score in Fourth.

In only three of the nine innings were the Reds able to connect with Nehf's delivery, and the odd part of their hitting was that they failed to score in either of the two innings which produced a brace of hits, but put two runs over on one hit. A long drive by Eddie Roush in the fourth inning after Daubert had drawn a pass accounted for two Cincinnati runs, as Roush got the decision at the plate a minute later when Duncan rolled to Bancroft. Snyder missed the runner and Eddie missed the plate. Each made a second attempt and Roush's fingertips touched the plate before Snyder could slap the ball on him. In the other innings the Reds got only one runner to third base and only three got as far as second.

A fancy play by George Kelly in the ninth inning helped to put the quietus on a little belated rally which the Reds had under way. Daubert and Duncan had singled in this frame and were holding first and second bases, respectively, when Larry Kopf toed the plate. The Giants were three runs in front and Kopf sent a shiver down 15,000 spines with a drive toward the right field stand. It seemed on its way to the home run section and such a hit would have tied up the game. The fans breathed more easily when the ball struck a few feet foul. Then Kopf hit to Bancroft. The latter made a clean pickup but his throw was high and wide, pulling Kelly off the bag. Long George grabbed the ball and made a swing as Kopf was breezing by, retiring the runner. Neale followed with a fly to left and the game was over.

An Opportunity Missed.

The Reds did not threaten in the first three innings but the Giants had a fine layout in the opener, only to see it go to waste. Burns opened with a single to right and, after Bancroft went out on three called strikes, Young drew a pass, sending Burns along to second. With Frisch and Kelly looming up, the outlook for some scoring was bright but it failed to develop. Neale camped under Frisch's hoist and Kelly rolled weakly to Rath for the third out.

In the third the Giants went to the lead with one run. Nehf hit hard to left centre, but a great recovery by Roush held the blow to a single. Burns's single to left sent Nehf along to second but he was forced at third, Kopf to Groh. A single to centre by Young chased Burns over the plate. Frisch again flied to Neale and Kelly forced Young at third.

The Reds went to the front in their half of the fourth but failed to hold the advantage through the inning. With one out, Daubert drew a pass and Roush sent Jake over with a long drive to right centre for three bases. When Duncan rolled to Bancroft, Roush made a dash for the plate and scored, though Bancroft's throw was good enough to nail the runner.

The Giants picked up three runs in their half of the fourth and were not headed during the remainder of the game. King singled past Rath and completed the journey when Doyle hit to right for two bases. Snyder sacrificed and Ruether tried to catch Doyle at third. His throw was both late and wide, the ball rolling to the outfield. Doyle and Groh became tangled up at third, but Larry extricated himself and made a dash for the plate with the run that broke the tie. Snyder went along to second on the misplay and advanced to third on a wild pitch. He held the bag while Nehf was outfooting a slow roller which eluded Ruether and reached Rath too late for a putout. Then Burns came through with his third hit, a single to centre, and Snyder scored. Bancroft tried to sacrifice, but rolled into a double play and Young's grounder to Rath closed the productive inning.

Double Play Halts Rally.

The Reds made a threat to do some scoring in the fifth, but a double play held them back. Neale opened with a single past Doyle, but Larry grabbed Allen's hard drive and a twin killing resulted. Ruether followed with a hard smash which escaped Frisch as he hurled himself at the ball. Ruether got two bases on the hit, Groh walked and Rath's easy pop fly nestled in Nehf's clutches.

The Giants put over their final marker in the sixth inning without hitting a ball past the infield. Doyle beat out a slow roller, which Allen fielded close to the plate and Ruether uncorked a wild pitch as Larry was on his way to a theft of second base. Snyder bunted along the third base line, the ball eluding Ruether, while Groh remained back for a possible play on Doyle. Larry reached third on the hit and brought the run over while Rath was retiring Nehf at first base.

With two gone in New York's seventh Kelly got a life on an error by Kopf and King's single to centre sent George around to third, King reaching second on Roush's throw to Groh. The two were left when Doyle skied to Neale.

Sam Crane was sent up to hit for Ruether in the Reds' eighth inning, but he did little more than ease the southpaw out of the pastime. Ray Fisher, former Yankee, went to the mound in the New York half and retired the side in order. The Reds still had enough fight to start a little rally in the ninth, but it produced nothing more than excitement and not much of that.

Babe Ruth Finds White Sox Pitchers the Easiest of All

Babe Ruth is finding White Sox pitchers better picking than those of any other club as he goes along to his new home run record. The circuit clout which Babe unlimbered yesterday against Lefty Williams at Chicago was the ninth which he has made against Kid Gleason's pitchers. Boston pitchers have yielded eight home runs, Detroit six, St. Louis six, Washington four, Cleveland three and Philadelphia two. An odd feature of Ruth's long distance hitting is that the three pitchers who have been reached for three homers are all southpaws—Williams and Kerr of the White Sox and Pennock of Boston. On this date last season Ruth had only sixteen home runs to his credit, the remaining thirteen being made between Aug. 14 and Sept. 27. Figuring on this basis, Ruth should go beyond the half century mark in circuit drives before the close of the current campaign.

Score Two Runs with Help of Boston Bobbles and Win, 3 to 2.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Errors by Oeschger and Maranville in the seventh inning helped to present Pittsburgh with two runs and enabled the visitors to defeat Boston, 3 to 2, today. A rally in the ninth by Boston was cut short when Maranville hit into a double play, closing the game.

PHILS RALLY IN NINTH

But Spurt Fails to Yield Enough Runs and Cubs Win, 4 to 2.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Manager Cravath's two-bagger featured today's ninth inning Philadelphia rally, which, however, fell short, Chicago making it two straight by the score of 4 to 2. The locals bunched four hits in the final inning, but Rixey popped to Terry for the third out with runners on second and third. The score:

Curves and Bingles

Since July 10 the Giants have won sixteen of their twenty-one games, taking two from the Cubs, six out of seven with the Cardinals, five out of eight with the Reds and three out of four with the Pirates.

Barnes or Toney will attempt to make it three straight against the Reds this afternoon. Pat Moran probably will call upon Hod Eller to make it an even break.

The Giants were under the impression in the fifth inning that Ruether's drive was foul. Larry Doyle hurried plateward to argue with Hank O'Day, but Snyder whispered to Larry that the ball hit on fair ground, so Doyle returned without interviewing Hank.

Bill Donovan's Jersey City team had an off day yesterday, so Bill and most of his players ran true to form by going to a ball game. They were interested spectators while the Giants trimmed the Reds.

Burns made a good start toward a perfect batting mark by getting clean hits to right, left and centre fields in three times at bat, but Ruether set George down on strikes in the sixth frame.

Slim Sallee will take no part in this series. The veteran southpaw was called to his home because of sickness in his family.

No championship team in the National League has repeated since the 1913 Giants turned the trick after McGraw's men had won in 1912. There are signs on the baseball horizon that the Reds may have the experience of all other champions since 1913.

More than 1,200 children from the Vacation Playgrounds attended the game as guests of President Stoneham and they rooted hard for the Giants. Another big delegation will attend the final game of the series today.

Umpire Quigley was the target for considerable conversation from both teams. His decisions that Nehf was safe and Bancroft out in the fourth ining seemed poor to players as well as fans.

25,000 CHICAGOANS CHEER RUTH'S 38TH

Record Monday Crowd Happy When Babe Hits Into Bleachers—Yanks Win, 7 to 0.

QUINN HOLDS LID DOWN

Twirls His Best with Men on Bases—Ward Scores a Homer, Too, Running His Team's Total Up to 87.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Babe Ruth made 25,000 fans happy at Comiskey Park this afternoon when he slammed his thirty-eighth home run of the season into the right field bleachers in the fourth inning. It was a record Monday crowd for the Windy City, and the fact that the White Sox were getting the worst of the argument with the Yanks didn't prevent the fans from launching a wild reception for the home run king, which was as cheerful as if it had come from the home fans in Harlem. The Yanks were back on their toes today and won easily by a score of 7 to 0.

Never has a ball player been such a hero outside of his own bailiwick as Ruth is here in Chicago. The close pennant race and the White Sox chances are overlooked in the wild desire of the fans to see Ruth blister the ball. Babe gave them a couple of eyes full this afternoon. He walked the first two times up and then in the fourth, with two gone and Pratt on first, the blunderbuss ambled up to the plate while the 25,000 chanted his praises.

Lefty Williams was pitching and he tried to keep the ball out of the way of the slugger. But Ruth, mad clean through because Lefty wouldn't give him a chance to hit, took his long, graceful swing and bang went a hot low line drive toward the right field bleachers. The ball rose as it sailed along and when it landed almost at the top of the open pavilion, the fans there were up on their toes waving their hats and yelling like old Ned. It was what the fans had been looking for and they were happy.

A Great Reception.

Ruth got a great reception from the bleacherites. They gave him back the ball he hit into the stands and he tossed them a new ball in exchange. The fans everywhere, are fond of Ruth because the fact that he is a baseball hero hasn't made a larger hat necessary and he never fails to acknowledge a roar of applause when it is hurled at him. Nothing up stage about the Babe.

The Yanks are a peculiar outfit on this trip. One day they fold up and the pitchers fail to pitch and the sluggers fail to connect. Next day the pitching is great and the hitting would knock over a brick wall. Today was one of their good days, and they looked as if they were on their way to slug right through to a pennant.

Jack Quinn shut out the Sox with ease and precision. He was in difficulty at times, but when the occasion demanded that he pitch airtight ball, he was right there to do it. More than once, Sox speeders were planted on the corners waiting for a timely hit to send them on their way and each time Jack was as tight as a dozen Cape Cods and refused to open up.

Aaron Ward, the Yanks' fine third baseman, also cashed in a home run into the left field bleachers in the third with Ruth on second. Wardie's crack was his sixth this year and did much to upset the pitching equilibrium of Williams. The two homers today brought the total of Yank circuit-driven hits for the season up to 87.

Away to a good Start.

The Yanks got away right. Peck walked and went along on Pipp's sacrifice, Pratt fanned and Ruth got a pass. Meusel poked a little single to short and filled the bases. Bodie shot a single to right, scoring Peck and Ruth. The inning ended when Ward fanned.

The Soxs loaded the bases in the second but were doomed to disappointment when it came to scoring. Felsch singled and Pratt made a pretty catch of John Collins's fly, Risberg singled to right but Ruth's throw held Felsch at second. After Schalk had flied to Meusel, Williams got an infield hit and filled the bases. Liebold forced Williams.

After getting two strikes on Ruth in the third Williams walked the mauler. Meusel and Bodie were easy outs and then Aaron Ward walloped a home run into the left field bleachers, propelling Bake home in front of him.

Two New York runs were laid away in the fourth when Del Pratt soaked a single to left; and, with the crowd yelling itself pink in the face, Ruth jolted his thirty-eighth home run into the left field bleachers, Pratt leading Babe on the homeward journey. When Babe went back to his post in right field the fans gave him a great reception. Yesterday the same crowd jeered and hooted him for striking out.

Two-Bagger for Babe.

Peck walked in the sixth and Pipp singled to centre. Pratt hit into a double play and there was great commotion when Babe came to the bat. The super-slugger this time hit only a mere two-bagger to right and sent Peck across the plate.

With one gone in the sixth, Joe Jackson smacked a triple to a dark corner of right field. Quinn had two strikes on Felsch and Happy took a swing at the next ball, but pulled his swing. Umpire Nallin calling it a ball. This brought the Yank players, headed by Manager Huggins, into an argument. On Sunday Lewis did this same thing and Connelly called it a strike. Today Nallin called it a ball. How come? Felsch walked. Quinn got mad and fanned John Collins, Risberg rolling out to Pipp.

BURNS'S PINCH HIT WINS FOR INDIANS

Drives in Chapman and Speaker with Only Runs in 2-0 Victory Over Senators.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2.—George Burns, pinch hitting for Right Fielder Smith in the eighth inning, doubled to left, scoring Chapman and Speaker with the only runs of today's game, Cleveland beating Washington, 2 to 0. Coveleskie pitched effectively the entire route, while Courtney's only lapse was in the eighth. Up to that time he allowed only two hits.

DOAK IS TOO MUCH FOR THE DODGERS

Holds Robins to Four Hits, While Hornsby Swings Vicious Bat and Cards Win, 4 to 1.

After having been mauled and cuffed around for six successive days in the metropolis, the St. Louis Cardinals finally rose en masse yesterday at Ebbets Field and managed to make enough hits at one time to win a ball game. Six times the Mound City tribe had set out hopefully on the path to victory and six times they had been so severely set upon by the Giants and Robins that even Branch Rickey had begun to believe that there was no hospitality at all in the big city. The break came yesterday, when the Cards, goaded into a belligerent frame of mind, rumpled the Dodgers all up and won an easy victory, 4 to 1.

William Doak, the eminent Mound City spitballist, was the gentleman who performed a large part of the afternoon's activities. The visiting twirler pitched a sage game. What h elacked in baffling slants he made up by an intensive use of his top piece, the net result of the combination being four hits and one run by the Robinson clan. One of the hits, a triple by Tommy Griffith, led the way for the lone tally in the third, Johnston having walked to precede the robust blow. Aside from that brief spasm the Dodgers were helpless against Doak's heady twirling.

Aiding and abetting William in the afternoon's pastime was Rogers Hornsby, whose little finger has a greater market price than some ball players in their entirety. Rogers had his whole hand in the batting pie. In the fifth, with two fellow-Missourians on the bases, he waved his flail in front of a fast one and blazed a triple between Wheat and Myers, scoring two tallies. Again in the seventh it was Rogers's double to left that scored the Cards' third run. And in the ninth the St. Louis second baseman sent Janvrin across with the fourth and last marker by singling through the box. There was a distinct bull movement in the bidding on Rogers last night.

Treat Southpaws Roughly.

The entire visiting team, however, assisted in the welcome to Rube Marquard, who was Wilbert Robinson's nomination for the comparatively simple task of subduing the sunken Cardinals. Richard found, as the game progressed, that the Cards would not be subdued. They went under for a short period in the third, when the Robins assumed a frail lead by scoring one run. But in the fifth came Hornsby's triple and two runs, and in the seventh Hornsby's double and one run. Clarence Mitchell batted for Marquard in the seventh, Sherrod Smith taking up the reins in the eighth. The latter southpaw was hit for three bingles and one run in his two innings of mound work. All told, the Cardinals feasted on the southpaws for fourteen hits, three of which were doubles and one a triple. In every inning but the first and fourth the visiting aggregation hit safely, good fielding rescuing Marquard from several embarrassing situations.

The Robins scored their first and only run in the third. Johnston coaxed four balls out of Doak, and Griffith followed with a drive between Heathcote and Schultz. The ball rolled to the fence and carromed off, Griffith reaching third before the pill was relayed in. Johnston scored on the clout.

In the fifth Doc Lavan, the well-known physician, started for St. Louis by singling past third. Stock poked a line single into right field, Griffith fumbling the ball and allowing Lavan to reach third. With this appealing setting before him, Hornsby, who went hitless in Sunday's contest and was due for a slight outbreak, slammed a drive to left centre, which Wheat and Myers chased earnestly but futilely. Lavan and Stock crossed the platter on the hit, but Hornsby, urged on by an erring coacher at third, tried to make the plate and was out by several yards.

Janvrin's double started the seventh for the Cards. Lavan flied to Griffith and Kilduff threw Stock out at first, Janvrin being held on second. Hornsby's double to left scored Janvrin. Wheat had his hands on the drive, but let it slip out and roll away.

Hornsby Does It Again.

In the ninth the Cardinals added another totally unnecessary run. Janvrin inaugurated the canto by singling to centre. He went to second on Lavan's grounder to Schmandt, who had taken Koney's place at first base, and to third on Stock's out by the same channel. Hornsby's drive at Smith bounced off the pitcher's glove and rolled away for a single, Janvrin cashing in at the plate.

The Robins made trouble in the sixth and filled the bases with only one down. Some commendable headwork by old Bill Doak, however, turned the home troupe back, baffled and raging. Griffith began by getting to first safely when Stock messed up his grounder. Wheat then hit to Hornsby, who got his expensive mits entangled in the ball, both runners reaching their respective stations in safety. A neat sacrifice bunt by Myers advanced his mates, leaving the job of cleaning up to big Ed Konetchy.

Doak, however, had different notions about it. He threw four wide balls to the first baseman, deciding to take a chance with Peter Kilduff, who is smaller and looked less dangerous. Petey did his best, which was a grounder to Hornsgy, who nipped Koney on the base line and threw to Janvrin for a double play.

In the eighth Griffith got his second hit and Koney walked, two infield outs being sandwiched in. Kilduff, however, relieved the St. Louis tension by fanning ingloriously.

WEST POINT TAKES MONMOUTH TROPHY

Eatontown Polo Team Defeated by Cadets, 7 to 2, in Final Match for Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Aug. 2.—In the fastest and hardest fought polo match in the Rumson Country tournament, West Point defeated the Eatontown club today on Herbert Field before a large gallery of polo enthusiasts by the score of 7 goals to 2.

It was the final event for the Monmouth County Cup, presented by Felix M. Warburg and J. Horace Harding. The quartet of Captains also won the Rumson Country Club Cup by defeating the same team last week.

Superior teamwork, speedier mounts and faster play won for the West Point team, which held the Eatontown players scoreless until the final chukker, when A. W. Kinney and H. M. Winn tallied goals. West Point scored four goals in the first half, Captain A. H. Wilson making one in the first and two in the third and Captain J. L. Devers scoring one in the first.

Captain Wilson's brilliant playing featured the game. In the third chukker he took the ball the entire length of the field to a pretty goal in five strokes. Captain Anderson and Captain Brown also showed some clever mallet work and riding off and scored goals in the fifth period. Captain Wilson's pretty aerial shot in the sixth chukker was the seventh and final goal scored by West Point.

The lineup:

SALES START TOMORROW.

First Lot of Yearlings to Go Under Hammer at Saratoga.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 2. The thoroughbred yearling sale, which will be an important part of Saratoga's attraction this month, will begin on Wednesday with the sales of youngsters from Emil Herz's Short Grass stud, Charles H. Berryman's Elmendorf establishment and the studs of Carr and Platt and other producers. The Short Grass stud will be the most considerable contributor to the sales of Wednesday. Between one hundred and one hundred and fifty and one hundred and seventy-five yearlings will go under the hammer in the course of the carnival of sales and it is predicted by students of the thoroughbred market that about $1,000,000 will be realized on them. Thoroughbred values were never so high as this season finds them.

The yearlings of the Short Grass stud are mostly sons and daughters of the son of Laveno, famous as a distance runner in Great Britain and the United States, from which the establishment takes its name. Mr. Herz has brought a baker's dozen embryo racers to the market and there is not one of the dozen in the consignment that claims Short Grass for sire that does not resemble its daddy. The son of Laveno seems to possess in a remarkable degree the desirable quality of prepotency. He puts his impress on his offspring.

The smartest of the Short Grass fillies here is a daughter of Intrigue, which claims Commander Ross's successful two-year-old filly Intrigante for half sister. The Gentlewoman colt, which is of the family of Tangle, Tanya, Spunglass and Broomspun, is a racy bay of graceful proportions with an unmistakable look of Short Grass about him.

MATCH FOR RUGBY TEAM.

U. S. Olympic Fifteen to Get Practice at Harrison Tomorrow.

In order to afford an opportunity for final practice before going to Antwerp to the American-Californian fifteen, chosen to represent this country at Olympic English Rugby football, arrangements have been completed for a game against a New York fifteen, to be played at Harrison Field, Harrison, N. J., at 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The team from the West, where English Rugby is more in vogue than elsewhere in this country, is expected here today, and will put up at the Chelsea Hotel. The squad includes the following:

George W. Fish, full back; James Winnsdon, Charles Tilden, Jr., Matthew Hazelton and James P. Fitzpatrick, three-quarter backs; George Davis and Dave Wallace, half backs; Charles N. Meehan, H. L. Wren, John Muldon, Colby Slater, John Patrick, C. Righter, Harold Von Schmidt, Garvin Hunter, Daniel Carroll, R. John Schultz, William Muldon, John O'Neill and Charles Doe, forwards.

Four other players have gone over with the track team and will be ready if called upon.

WOMEN GOLFERS IN TIE.

Mrs. Barlow and Miss Collett Score an 86 at Shenecossett.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 2.—With golf that was considered remarkable for women Mrs. Ronald Barlow of the Merion Cricket Club tied with Miss Glena Collett of Providence with scores of 86 in the qualifying round of the women's championship of the Shenecossett Country Club, which began here today.

Miss Collett, driving an unusually long ball, was over the first half of the journey in forty strokes. She made a mess of the eleventh hole coming in and required forty-six to complete the inward half.

Mrs. Barlow played the first half better than the second. She was out in 41. Mrs. M. R. Smith of North Hills was third with a 95, and Miss Elaine Rosenthal was a stroke worse. Mrs. G. K. Morrow of the Engineers' Club played the best of the New York contingent, with a 98. Predictions were freely made that Miss Collett would meet Mrs. Barlow in the final. The latter is the present holder of the title here.

The championship set qualified as follows:

First Sixteen—Miss Glena Collett, Providence, 86; Mrs. Roland Barlow, Merion C. C., 86; Mrs. M. R. Smith, North Hills, 95; Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Ravingsloe, 96; Mrs. G. K. Morrow, Engineers C. C., 98; Mrs. J. B. Linerd, New York, 104; Mrs. Albert Straus, Cincinnati, 104; Mrs. Myra D. Patterson, Englewood, 109; Miss I. Palmer, New London, 109; Mrs. A. J. Fay, Belmont Springs, 110; Miss V. Palmer, New London, 110; Mrs. J. D. Armstrong, Buffalo, 111; Mrs. J. C. Prizer, Essex County, 114; Mrs. B. J. Rosenthal, Ravinsloe, 114; Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., Norwich, 115; Mrs. Alva Oatman, Ardsley, 118.

U. S. SHOOTERS WIN TWICE AT ANTWERP

Unofficial Figures Give Americans Victory with Pistol and Smallbore Rifle.

BEVERLOO, Belgium, Aug. 2 (Associated Press).—Incomplete results of today's pistol and smallbore rifle events of the Olympic shooting contests indicate another triumph for the United States, which is believed to have gained first place, for individuals and teams, in both events.

A surprise of the meet was the fine showing today of the Brazilians in the pistol match. They apparently gained second place for the team shoot and Afranic Costa's individual score of 489 is second, so far as the unofficial scores show, only to that of K. T. Frederick, an American civilian, whose remarkable 496 gave him first place. Costa casually borrowed one of the American's pistols, shooting it for the first time today, and with it beat A. T. Lane, former Olympic pistol champion, whose scored 481.

In the smallbore rifles match N. A. Nuesslein, an American civilian, beat his military countrymen with a score of 391.

Paul Van Asbroeck, the Belgian world's pistol champion, shot badly today, being outside the first five.

Official results of today's shooting will not be known until tomorrow, when the meet closes with the army revolver competition.

Unofficial scores for the pistol match for teams show the Americans finished as follows: K. T. Frederick 496 out of a possible 500, A. T. Lane 481, G. H. Smook 471, M. O. Kelly 468, R. C. Bracken 456. Total—2,372.

In the individual event the unofficial scores were as follows: Frederick 496, Lane 481, Bracken 456, Dr. G. F. Fiske 458 and Dr. H. A. Baylis 430.

Unofficial scores in the smallbore rifle match were: N. A. Nuesslein 391, Captain A. D. Rothrock 386, Sergeant Fenton 385, Lieut. Commander W. A. Lee 376 and Sergeant Schriver 367. Total—1,899. The same scores stand for both individual and team matches.

By a change in rules all teams in the matches will consist of only five men.

A re-check of the targets in yesterday's shoot-off of the tie in the 600-metre team event shows that the United States, instead of gaining second place, was again tied with South Africa. The second shoot-off was held today, the Americans winning it with a score of 284 against the South Africans 279.

BARRETT COMING BACK.

Will Again Train Athletes at Williams College.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Aug. 2.—The Williams College athletes will again have "Doc" Barrett, the veteran Purple trainer, with them next year, as he has decided to return in the fall. It is understood that he had received a flattering offer from another institution. At present Barrett is scouting for the Athletics in California. He formerly served as trainer for the New York Yankees.

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

Mrs. Miller's Comedy.

THE CHARM SCHOOL, a comedy in three acts and four scenes, by Alice Duer Miller and Robert Milton, with a song by Jerome Kern. Based upon Mrs. Miller's story of the same name. At the Bijou Theatre.

Austin Bevans	Sam Hardy
David MacKenzie	Ivan Simpson
George Boyd	James Gleason
Jim Simpkins	Neil Martin
Tim Simpkins	Morgan Farley
Homer Johns	Rapley Holmes
Elise Benedotti	Marie Carroll
Miss Hays	Margaret Dale
Miss Curtis	Minnie Dupree
Sally Boyd	Blyth Daly
Muriel Doughty	Florence McGuire
Ethel Spelvin	Carolyn Arnold
Alix Mercier	Theodora Larocque
Lillian Stafford	Frances McLaughlin
Madge Kent	Mary Mead
Charlotte Gray	Camilla Lyon
Dotsie	Constance McLaughlin

"The Charm School," that idly diverting story by Alice Duer Miller, which ran along in The Saturday Evening Post about a year ago and later made its appearance as a book, arrived in due course as a play last evening and may now be regarded as headed irrevocably for the movies, after which it will doubtless subside and release her attention to other matters. The play, for which Mrs. Miller and Robert Milton stand as joint sponsors, is on view at the Bijou, where it can provide the passerby with a pleasant, amusing, mildly preoccupying evening in the theatre. It is distinctly Summer weight and has just that tentative touch of uncertainty which has come to be regarded as appropriate for the first offerings of a season.

This particular ball started rolling when Mrs. Miller took it into her head that it would be entertaining if a handsome and susceptible young man in need of a job were suddenly to inherit a fashionable school for girls. He believes that the entire system of modern education is just a protective conspiracy on the part of the elders to fend off the rising generation, that school days are futilely prolonged just to keep the young from claiming too soon the comfortable seats of the mighty, and that girls in particular are thus lured to a consideration of vain Latin and empty mathematics when, for their business in life, all they want and need to learn is charm. Glowing with this idea, he takes charge of the school. It becomes celebrated overnight. All the girls fall in love with him. He falls in love with one of the girls. And there you are.

Once safely past the serial and book stages of this idea, Mrs. Miller was very likely in some doubt as to what she ought to do with it. Was not the scheme a bit too extravagant for anything except rip-roaring farce? Probably the old wiseacres of the theatre told her so. But, then again, there were all those schoolgirls. It seemed a pity not to use them as a chorus and thus satisfy once more the curious but consuming passion of all workers in the theatre to give some more logical explanations of the chorus girls than "Oh, here comes the village maidens to welcome you!" Also it is possible that Mrs. Miller suspected she had material in her story for a politely satirical comedy about life and education and all that. The upshot is a curious mixture—a half-heartedly farcical comedy, with one Winter Garden scenic effect and one surviving song, shyly almost shamefacedly, introduced on the program as "a wee bit of music by Jerome Kern."

There are two flawless performances in the company assembled for "The Charm School," and that is no mean average. One is by Minnie Dupree as a timid, faded, old school teacher, on whom the lessons in charm take unexpected effect, and the other is by James Gleason, as a chronically rejected suitor. Miss Dupree is so extraordinarily good that she quite deranges the proceedings. In the first place, you applaud her rapturously whenever she leaves the stage, then you yearn for her all the time she is away, and, besides, she keeps lifting the entertainment to the level of high, heart-breaking comedy, to the considerable disadvantage of her collaborators. There is going to be lots and lots of acting on Broadway this season. It is safe to predict that not much of it will surpass the work of Miss Dupree at the Bijou.

Unfortunately, neither she nor Mr. Gleason have the significant and central rôles of the piece. These are alloted for obvious reasons to Marie Carroll and Sam Hardy. Little Miss Carroll, who seems to spend a considerable part of her life sitting on the floor and sweetly singing melodies by Jerome Kern, is excellent as the devastating girl in the school who proved so precocious a pupil under the new régime, and she plays one difficult scene with great skill and gusto. Mr. Hardy, however, is rather detrimental. In appearance, he suggests a genial and muscular we-make-clothes-for-snappy-dressers advertisement, and in method he seems like a slightly uneasy vaudeville actor, yearning inwardly for the street scene to drop and let him do his turn in one. He goes about his business in "The Charm School" as though of the secret opinion that it would all go much better if W. C. Field were to come on with a croquet mallet or something. And maybe he's right.

MRS. CHAPLIN ASKS DIVORCE

Files Suit in Los Angeles Charging Comedian with Cruelty.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—Mildred Harris Chaplin today filed suit here for divorce from Charlie Chaplin. She alleged cruelty.

This action brings the third romance among the "million dollar movie stars" into the divorce courts. Mary Pickford obtained her freedom from Owen Moore shortly before she married Douglas Fairbanks, who had been divorced by the daughter of Daniel J. Sully, the cotton operator.

The Chaplins were married in Los Angeles Oct. 23, 1918. The bride, Mildred Harris, was only 17 at the time, but already well known to "movie" followers. Chaplin, too, is youthful, having been born in London in 1888. For a year or so after the marriage a romantic glamor was cast about the love affair, but last Winter rumors of disagreements arose, and as early as March Mrs. Chaplin talked openly of a separation. In April the comedian came out second best in a rough-and-tumble row in a Los Angeles hotel with his wife's manager. The couple had one child, Charles Spencer Chaplin, Jr., who died last Summer, three days after birth.

STOCK EXCHANGE FIRM FAILS

Involuntary Bankruptcy Overtakes Gross, Romary & Co.

Three creditors filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court yesterday against the Stock Exchange firm of Gross, Romary & Co., 36 Wall Street. Judge A. N. Hand appointed Edward H. Childs receiver for the firm in a bond of $20,000. The petitioners, James M. Marshall, Harry J. Susskind and Henry H. Hoelsch, alleged that the firm's liabilities exceeded its assets and that preferential payments were made by the firm. Attorneys for the creditors were Hays, Hershfield & Wolf. House, Grossman & Vorhaus, counsel for the firm, consented to the appointment of the receiver.

At the offices of Gross, Romary & Co., Louis J. Vorhaus said that no formal statement would be made. He said the firm's liabilities were slightly in excess of assets and that the bankruptcy was the result of a series of unfortunate incidents and general market conditions.

Members of the firm are James S. Gross, Alfred J. Romary, Charles R. Gauvain and M. Morgenroth. The petitioners allege that the firm's liabilities are $350,000 and assets $250,000.

Announcement was made from the rostrum of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday that the firm was unable to meet its obligations.

K. C. SESSION OPENS TODAY.

Archbishop Will Celebrate Pontifical Mass in Cathedral.

The first public session of the thirty-eighth annual supreme convention of the Knights of Columbus will open this morning at the Hotel Commodore, following celebration of a pontifical mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral by Archbishop John Bonzano, Apostolic Delegate to the United States. Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia will preside at the opening session. In the afternoon Miss Margaret Anglin, the actress, will establish a precedent in the organization's history by being the first woman to address one of its conventions.

As a preliminary to the opening, a reconstruction exhibit, disclosing what the organization had done toward refitting disabled war veterans, was begun in the Commodore lobby. The feature of the exhibit is a replica of the Lafayette statue, the Knights' gift to France. Plans have been completed for the departure of hundreds of Knights who are going to Metz to participate in the Lafayette ceremonies there on Aug. 21.

Bandit Holds Up Synagogue.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 1.—An armed bandit held up the Gamillus Ghesad Synagogue here soon after services had been concluded tonight and escaped with $400. The money had been collected for loans to the poor and members of the synagogue had just finished counting it when the bandits entered, fired a shot, scooped up the money from a table and fled.

British War Veterans to Meet.

A meeting of the British Great War Veterans of America, Inc., will be held at 8:30 P. M. on Thursday at the 71st Regiment Armory. All nurses and men who served in the British Empire forces in the war are invited.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Something for Nothing," a play in three acts by Wilson K. Nixon, will be produced late in September by Michael Goldreyer.

Ernest Lawford returned to New York yesterday after a Summer spent in England.

"Lassie" was acted for the first time at the Casino last night after seventeen weeks at the Nora Bayes Theatre.

Norman Trevor will play the leading male role in "Enter Madame," in which Brock Pemberton will present Gilda Varesi at the Garrick Theatre on Aug. 16.

Lawrence Grossmith, last seen here in "Too Many Husbands," will succeed Mr. Trevor in "Foot-Loose," at the Little Theatre, next Monday night, and Sidney Toler will take O. P. Heggie's role. A somewhat rewritten version of the play will be presented beginning Monday and the piece, with Emily Stevens as its star, will continue at the Little until October.

Juanita Fletcher, Marjorie Gateson and Frederick Raymond, Jr., have been engaged for "Little Miss Charity," which comes to the Belmont in about a month.

This will be the last week of "Florodora" at the Century.

FLEET OF TAXIS ENDS OFFICIALS' JOY RIDES

New System Goes Into Effect Today, Stopping Waste in Use of City Autos.

MORE MILEAGE AT LESS COST

Waiting Time Limited to Half an Hour — Mayor to Review Squadron at Noon.

The day of the joy-riding city official, unless like Mayor Hylan he owns his own automobile, is over, if a scheme of taxicab service to be put in operation today by Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, works out. Mr. Whalen's plan is to substitute taxicabs for department cars. There will be a taxi stand at the north end of the Municipal Building, in charge of a dispatcher, who will receive calls from those authorized to order them, assign cars and check their time. Each taxicab, having given the service required, will return to the stand and fall in line for the next call, similar to a private taxicab business.

Rules for the regulation of the service have been issued by Commissioner Whalen defining the duties of the dispatcher and chauffeurs. The rules require strict observance of speed and traffic regulations, as well as card reports on mileage, number of passengers, stops and places visited. When the trip ends the chauffeur must report by phone to the dispatcher for further orders.

Taxicab service will be furnished only on requisitions signed by the head of a department or by his designated representative, and users of the service will be required to dismiss the cars promptly. Thirty minutes will be the maximum waiting time permitted on any call. The service, Commissioner Whalen explained, is being introduced to provide increased service at less cost, and it is expected that it will show a considerable net saving to the city.

"I found that the system of assigning automobiles for official use was objectionable," said the Commissioner, "owing to the time wasted in having cars standing round the Municipal Building waiting for officials. With a view to correcting this, the taxicab system has been planned, with the approval of Mayor Hylan, and the taxicabs have been purchased out of a fund provided in the 1920 budget. Under the old system a car averaged 1,068 hours of actual service in a year. Under the new system I expect a car to give more than 2,000 hours of actual service in a year by cutting down the non-productive, or waiting, time."

At 11 o'clock this morning the Mayor and Commissioner Whalen will review the fleet of new taxicabs from the steps of the City Hall. City officials deprived of their erstwhile luxurious conveyances may also look them over from the windows of their offices in the Municipal Building.

TURKS WILL SIGN THURSDAY

Constantinople to Make the Day One of Mourning.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The signing of the Turkish peace treaty has been definitely fixed to take place Thursday afternoon.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 31.—(Associated Press).—Damad Ferid Pasha, the Grand Vizier, has announced the formation of a new Cabinet, composed largely of members friendly to British interests, according to political observers who are well acquainted with the affiliations of the new men.

The Turkish newspapers announce that the day when the treaty is signed will be observed by the Turks generally as a day of mourning. The shops and cafés will be closed as one of the signs of protest.

ARREST MAN WHO GOT COUGHLIN "RANSOM"

Negro Overpowered at Egg Harber, N. J., Where He Asked Additional $10,000 Be Left.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2. — The "crank" who obtained the $12,000 ransom money which George E. Coughlin paid in the belief that he was dealing with the kidnappers of his year-old baby, Blakely, was arrested near Egg Harbor, N. J., this afternoon, according to Federal agents, following his attempt to get $10,000 more from the parents of the missing child.

The arrest of the man, a negro, whose name the Government agents withheld occurred about 3 o'clock, when more than fifty postal inspectors and Government secret service agents were mobilized at Egg Harbor to await the man's arrival at a spot which he designated for the placing of the second "ransom." When a shorebound train reached Egg Harbor at 2:58, many of the Government agents followed a negro who walked leisurely up a road leading to the woods. Townspeople who followed the agents and the man saw the latter leave the road and go into the woods.

After taking a circuitous route, the negro finally went deep into the swamp, and at 3:30 he paused for a moment at the exact spot where, Government agents say, Coughlin had been instructed to leave the additional $10,000. When the negro paused three agents who had been following him drew their pistols, seized him, and overpowered him after a short struggle.

When searched, Government men say, the negro's clothing was found to contain records of correspondence which he had carried on with Coughlin. Maps similar to those sent to Coughlin also were found on him.

After an examination, the Government men say, the negro admitted that it was he who, operating under the name of "The Crank," had led Coughlin to believe that he was the kidnapper of little Blakely.

The man also admitted, the agents say, that he received the $12,000 which Coughlin placed at a lonely spot near the railway station at Swedeland, Pa. A desire to "get as much money out of the Coughlins as possible," the agents say, was responsible for the negro's second attempt to mulct the parents of the child.

The arrest of the man today followed a long investigation, in which Government Secret Service men and others spent weeks in tracing the correspondence received by the Coughlins.

C. P. R. TRAIN IS HELD UP.

Three Men in Exploit Near British Columbia Border Escape.

CALGARY, Aug. 2.—Canadian Pacific railway passenger train No. 63 was held up at Sentinel, on the Crow's Nest line, near the British Columbia boundary, according to a report received here tonight.

The passengers and train crew were robbed by three men, believed to be foreigners, who later made their escape.

MUSIC NOTES.

Irene Williams and Gladys Martell alternate as the Lucy of Scott's "Bride of Lammermoor" this week in the Capitol Theatre's dramatic version of Donizetti's "Lucia" sextet.

Paul Oscard and Thalia Zanou dance in the musical "Scenes from Naples" presented by Hugo Riesenfeld at the Rivoli. Cesare Neri sings a "Rigoletto" air at the Rialto.

John Hart is the baritone soloist in the Strand's current program, singing a prologue to the feature picture of the week.

Ruth Ray is to play Mendelssohn's violin concerto with the National Symphony Orchestra at tonight's open-air concert in the Stadium.

Edwin Franko Goldman will lead his band on the Mall in Central Park tonight in a special program in honor of Sir Thomas Lipton.

TOILERS GET $355,000 BONUS

Alexander Smith & Sons' Carpet Company Divides Profits.

The 5,500 employes of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company, Yonkers, yesterday received $355,000 in the semi-annual bonus for the six months ending June 30. This distribution of profits to employes on the basis of wages earned brings the total bonus fund for the year to $640,000, $285,000 having been paid out in February.

Employes who have been with the company more than a year received 5 per cent. of their wages for the six months period, and those of longer service received 1 per cent. additional for each year of their tenure up to ten years. Among those who received this maximum bonus of 15 per cent. was a man who had worked for the company for fifty years.

Richard Edie, Treasurer of the company, said that this was the largest bonus ever paid and that the total of the nineteen semi-annual bonuses was about $2,500,000.

HYLAN AND CURRAN IN COURT HOUSE ROW

Borough Head Wants Money Used for Housing—"Petty Politics," Mayor Retorts.

CUT OF $701,000 IN BIDS

Lowest Bidders Asked to Submit Their Working Plans—Courts Dispose of 200 Rent Cases.

When Henry H. Curran, Borough President of Manhattan, opposed the building of the new Court House at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate on the ground that the money might better be spent in the construction of dwellings, Mayor Hylan accused him of playing "petty politics."

"We all know Curran is a good fellow," declared the Mayor, "but he does play awfully cheap politics."

"Thanks," responded Mr. Curran, "but there is no politics in opposing an expensive Court House at the present time. The Court House will cost nearer $20,000,000 than Controller Craig estimates. That money put into the building of homes would take care of between 4,000 and 5,000 families, which would be better than building a Court House for the convenience of a few Judges."

The purpose of the meeting was to hear the report of Controller Craig on second bids for the erection of the superstructure of the new Court House. The contract was not awarded. Resolutions were adopted requesting the lowest bidders to submit working programs within ten days. The second bids on granite were $701,000 less than the first ones, rejected some time ago.

The contract for the excavation, building of foundation and rough plumbing, already let, amounts to $1,376,710. The lowest bid for all granite superstructure was $5,501,000, making a total of $6,877,710. The bids for limestone were $5,374,000, which, added to the amount for excavation, foundation and rough plumbing, made a total of $6,750,710. Guy Lowell, architect of the building, has recommended that, because the difference is small, the superstructure be of granite.

Controller Craig said the structure, except the portico and the granite pillars at the entrance, could be erected in a year. He said he hoped that the Justices' chambers would be ready by Oct. 1, 1921. He told President F. H. LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen that the cost would be $8,500,000 to $10,000,000.

Two hundred holdover actions between landlords and tenants were disposed of by Justice Harry Robitzek in the Second District Municipal Court in the Bronx. Most of them were instituted by landlords to get possession of premises.

Justice Van Siclen, in the Brooklyn Supreme Court, issued a writ of prohibition restraining Municipal Court Justice Jacob S. Strahl from setting aside a warrant of dispossess against Samuel Levitt and Harry Dimin, tenants of 1292 St. John's Place, Brooklyn. The house is owned by Nathan and Israel Halperin. They applied for a dispossess. Levitt and Dimin went to Justice Strahl to set aside the warrant. The rent was due July 3. Levitt and Dimin said they went to pay it on that day, but the office was closed and did not open again until July 6, and when they went there that day the clerk refused to take the money.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The air pressure is relatively low along the southern border and over the western plateau and the North Rocky Mountain regions, and it is high in the interior districts east of the Rocky Mountains.

Temperatures remain below the normal generally in the United States, except in the Far Northwest.

The low temperature is particularly noticeable throughout the Eastern States and the region of the Great Lakes. Freezing temperatures occurred Monday morning along the north shore of Lake Superior.

Fair weather prevailed over much of the country, but there have been local showers within the last twenty-four hours along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts and at widely separated points in the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions.

The outlook is for fair weather Tuesday and Wednesday in the States east of the Mississippi River, except that showers are probable along the South Atlantic Coast.

Moderate temperatures will centre in the Eastern and Southern States, while the tendency will be toward warmer weather in the region of the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley.

FORECAST—TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

New England, Eastern New York—Fair Tuesday and Wednesday, moderate temperature.

Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey—Fair and moderate temperature Tuesday and Wednesday.

Western New York—Fair Tuesday and Wednesday, slowly rising temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1920.	1919.		1920.	1919.
3 A. M.	64	64	4 P. M.	76	74
6 A. M.	63	61	6 P. M.	73	73
9 A. M.	65	64	9 P. M.	70	70
12 M.	70	69	11 P. M.	65	68

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 69; for the corresponding date last year it was 68; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 74.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 65; at 8 P. M. it was 70. Maximum temperature, 76 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 62 degrees at 6:15 A. M. Humidity, 65 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 58 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.93 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.99 inches.

United States.

The commission announces for Sept. 7 an examination for radio operator, males, aged 21 to 40, for vacancies in the Lighthouse Service, at salaries ranging from $960 to $1,200 a year, with $1 per diem additional for subsistence. Appointees may be allowed the increase granted by Congress of $20 a month. At present there is a vacancy in the Eleventh Lighthouse District Headquarters, Detroit, Mich., at $1,080 a year, for duty on the tender Marigold. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on physical ability, education and practical experience as radio operator. Applicants must have a good common school or equivalent education and have had at least two years' experience as an operator, either on board a vessel or at a wireless telegraph station doing a commercial business. Age limits do not apply to persons entitled to preference because of military or naval service. To be entitled to retirement with an annuity employes in this position must reach their seventieth birthday and have served fifteen years.

SAY TRUST CONTROLS ALL KOSHER POULTRY

Four Corporations Rule Trade and Dictate Prices, Hirshfield Is Told.

INDEPENDENTS FORCED OUT

Witnesses Allege Threats Cause Them to Turn Over Business to Combination.

Charges that a kosher poultry trust in New York fixed prices and forced independent dealers to sell out under threats of assault and injury to credit, were made yesterday before Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, who began an investigation of the alleged combination at the request of Mayor Hylan.

Commissioner Hirshfield was told that the combination had absorbed all the poultry slaughter houses in the city, formed four corporations to handle all the kosher poultry business and was making exorbitant profits.

Mayor Hylan ordered the investigation on the complaint of Samuel A. Telsey and Isadore P. Rosenberg, counsel for the Brownsville Retail Poultry Dealers' Association, who declared that retail poultry dealers were threatened with being forced out of business if they failed to buy from the alleged trust at dictated prices.

Health Commissioner R. S. Copeland and Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley sat with Commissioner Hirshfield at yesterday's hearings. Other interested spectators were Special Assistant Attorney General Shear, who is handling the Federal investigation of the affairs of the kosher poultry dealers, and J. S. Baker of the Federal Department of Justice.

Independent wholesalers and slaughterers were also compelled, according to the lawyer, to subscribe for stock in the corporation. They would then become employes at a fixed salary. In many cases, he charged, independent dealers were put out of business, while in other cases their business was cut in half. Chickens were consigned to the dealers at a fixed price, he added, and they were required to sell them at the price specified or at a higher price. The price, he declared, was usually from 6 to 12 cents a pound above the market price.

Those who refused to become stockholders were assaulted, and if they still stuck to their determination to run their own business in their own way, Telsey charged, they were informed that jobbers in West Washington Market, the centre of the wholesale poultry business, would not sell them chickens and thus drive them out of business.

By means of the monopoly which the four corporations succeeded in maintaining, the lawyer said, the price of chicken has been kept higher than normal. In retaliation against the corporation's methods in Brownsville, he asserted, the retail dealers in that section have been on strike against the alleged trust for the last six weeks. The dealers say they are willing to sell poultry at a penny a pound profit, but they have been unable to buy any stock from the alleged trust, said Telsey, and as a last resort appealed to the Mayor to aid them in supplying the Jewish population with poultry for the holidays in September.

Mr. Telsey told Commissioner Hirshfield that before the alleged combination was formed there were twenty-eight independent slaughter houses for chickens in the Brownsville district, licensed by the Health Department. These slaughter houses handled chickens for a Jewish population of 250,000 in the Brownsville district, he said.

The combination, according to the lawyer, divided the city into four sections, Brownsville, Williamsburg, the east side of Manhattan and the Harlem-Bronx district. Four corporations, with a total capital of $310,000, were formed to take care of the business in these districts, he asserted.

Telsey asserted that the corporation covering Brownsville succeeded in forcing every independent wholesaler and slaughterer of poultry to join. Dealers were threatened with assault, he said, and threats were made that their supply of poultry would be cut off if they failed to join. Wholesalers and slaughterers who owned the property on which they did their business, he added, were compelled to lease it to the corporation, and if they were lessees were forced to give the corporation a sublease at a rental not greater than the rental provided in their own lease.

Joseph Hasenfratz, of 73 Herzl Street, Brooklyn, a former wholesaler and slaughterer, testified that he joined the forces of one of the alleged corporations in March at a salary of $100 a week. His business, he said, was to sell poultry for the corporation. He said he kept no accounts and that the loss or profit was his. Explaining his manner of transacting business he said the poultry was billed to him at a fixed price. The corporation, he said, paid his rent and delivered the poultry without charge.

The witness testified that he was induced to join the corporation after one of its organizers and stockholders threatened to injure his credit and prevent him from purchasing poultry at the market. He said also that he was afraid that his horses would be poisoned and so, after many warnings of the consequences if he failed to join the corporation, he finally consented to do so and turned the lease of his place over to the corporation. He also bought $1,000 of the organization's stock.

Mendel Gordon, another member of the corporation, testified that he sold out his business to the corporation and now receives $125 a week as manager of one of the branches. The examination was adjourned until 10 A. M. Thursday in order to permit the witness to bring the books of his organization to the hearing.

Husband Dead; Widow a Suicide.

Mrs. Mary Clark, 55 years old, widow of John Clark, for many years Superintendent of Transportation of the Lehigh Valley Railroad and later Superintendent of the Staten Island Shipyard, Port Richmond, committed suicide yesterday afternoon at her home, 71 Park Avenue, Port Richmond, S. I., by inhaling gas.

Mrs. Clark, according to the police, had been brooding over the death of her husband, which occurred three years ago.

Private vs. Municipal Construction

Is there any question which is wiser? Bonding the city for $20,000,000 and building houses with the money to rent below the market will destroy private initiative.

No individual will build in competition with the city. Hundreds of millions are needed to finance an adequate construction program. The city cannot furnish so much money. It must come from the masses in the shape of mortgage loans. They will furnish the money if the city does not set out to build houses and rent them at less than cost.

This Company is the channel through which they can do it. Principal and interest at 5½% on the mortgages will be guaranteed to them by the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company.

BIG RUN ON PONZI, BUT ALL GET CASH

Alleged Expose by Former Publicity Agent Brings Hundreds of Scared Investors to His Office.

HAS PAID $3,500,000, HE SAYS

Still Asserts He Has Twice as Much Money as Needed to Meet All His Obligations.

AUDITOR FINDS NO GUILT

Checking Up of Books, However, Is Far from Complete — Ponzi Visits State Attorney.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—As the result of an alleged expose of Charles Ponzi's methods, written by W. H. McMaster, a former publicity agent for Ponzi, and printed in a morning paper, in which Ponzi's solvency was attacked, the biggest run on his office took place today. The scared investors fairly piled over one another in their eagerness to get to the paying counter, present their notes and get their money back. The crowd started to gather as early as 6:30 in the morning and had jammed "Pi Alley" from Court Square to Washington Street by the time the office opened.

Ponzi, as a result of the newspaper article, came in from his Lexington home unusually early. He greeted the clamoring crowd with his ever present smile, assured them every one would be paid, and smilingly bid them to "come and get your money, but come orderly. I may run out of blank checks, but I won't run out of cash."

He then went into his offices and saw to it that everybody was given his money as rapidly as the clerks could examine the notes and count out the cash or sign checks as the case might be. Having attended to that, Ponzi went into his private office, examined his personal mail and received newspaper men.

He declared the McMasters article to be absolutely untrue.

"I have twice as much money as will be needed to meet any obligations which will be presented to me," he said. McMasters's story, he asserted, was inspired by powerful interests out to ruin him.

"You know what prompted the story?" he asked. "You noticed the names in McMasters's story, I suppose? I'm going to make it warm for some of these people. After they get through showing what my liabilities are, then I will show them and the public what my assets are, and I'll make the demonstration with cash.

Says Nobody Knows His Business.

"McMasters claims to have a very intimate knowledge of my affairs. As a matter of fact, he knows only a little. Nobody knows my business except myself. Nobody knows just what I have been doing, and nobody can say that I haven't sent and received money from Europe during the last week or more."

Ponzi branded as a "lie" a statement accredited to Simon Swig by McMasters that Ponzi had never issued or received a foreign draft.

"My vouchers do not run consecutively," said Ponzi, commenting on the statement made by McMasters that Ponzi had issued 200 notes a day betwee June 8 and June 18, 500 a day between June 18 and July 14 and 1,600 a day between July 14 and 24.

"McMasters doesn't know anything about it. My clerks have been accustomed to picking up packages of notes as they come along. No effort was made to issue them according to serial numbers.

"I sent from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 abroad last week. This money was not sent me personally, but is done through an institution. It sends and receives all moneys for me; I do not do it personally. The name of the institution? That is my secret. They would all like to know it."

Replying to the assertion that his payments have not exceeded $50,000 a day, Mr. Ponzi said:

"I doubt very much whether any individual or group of individuals could have faced in five days a run which amounts to nearly $3,500,000. The story that my payments have not exceeded $50,000 a day is untrue. From one certain account the total amount of withdrawals was $1,872,334. In addition from my own personal account my payments amounted to approximately $900,000. From another personal account payment amounted to $50,000. All of these payments have been made in the City of Boston. I have no figures yet of the total amount paid out by the branches, but I can safely assume that the amount would exceed $500,000 These are figures that I can prove conclusively to the satisfaction of any honorable person."

Auditor Makes a Report.

While the "run" was at its height the first report of the Federal audit of Ponzi's account brought reassurance to the anxious investors. The auditor, Edwin L. Pride, told Federal officials today that his investigations thus far have shown no violation of the law.

The audit, however, is far from complete, although Pride and his assistants worked upon it all day yesterday, and a final report will probably not be made for several days.

Mr. Pride's report was made at a conference of Federal officials to discuss the Ponzi case. This conference lasted for hours and included, besides Mr. Pride, Assistant United States Attorney General Shea, acting in the absence of District Attorney Gallagher in New York; several Post Office Inspectors, and a representative of Attorney General Palmer. Among the Post Office Inspectors was Chief Inspector Mosby.

It was learned that the Post Office Inspectors are looking for some possible violation of the postal laws in case Ponzi wrote to his investors informing them when payments were due and that they should come to his office for their money.

Ponzi went to the State House late today and had a long conference with State Attorney General Allen, but neither would give out anything for publication at its close. The conference was the result of a statement by the Attorney General earlier in the day to the effect that Ponzi had failed to meet him as he had arranged.

Pierre P. Garvan, Prosecutor of the Pleas of Hudson County, yesterday questioned W. H. Mackie, Bayonne manager for Charles Ponzi's Securities Exchange Company, and after an hour's examination said that Mackie had agreed to shut down his office for a time. Mr. Garvan said that the suspension probably would last until the completion of the audit of Ponzi's books now being made in Boston.

Christen Worker's Baby On a Girder in Midair

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2 (Associated Press).—Fourteen stories from the street, on a slender girder of steel, Ole Peterson, a structural iron worker, held his five-months-old son at noon today while the Rev. William Reese performed a christening ceremony.

Fifty members of Iron Workers' Union No. 58 were named as godfathers. They occupied positions on nearby girders.

Below the christening party there were no floors and through the network of steel could be seen the concrete basement. The baby apparently was bored.

Members of the union had suggested that it would be appropriate to have the child of a structural iron worker christened while his father was "on the job." The mother gave her consent, details were arranged and the child formally came into possession of the name of Weed L. Peterson.

TEXAS MOB LYNCHES NEGRO IN JAIL YARD

Batter Steel Doors and Wreck Steel Cell to Get Man Accused of Murdering White Woman.

GUARDSMEN PATROL MIAMI

Bahama Blacks There Are Aroused at Death of Companion Charged with Assaulting Florida Woman.

CENTER, Texas, Aug. 2.—A mob of more than one thousand men this afternoon stormed the county jail, battered down the steel doors, wrecked the steel cell and took out Lige Daniels, negro, charged with the murder of a white woman, and hanged him to a limb of an oak tree in the courthouse yard.

The lynching followed announcement by authorities of a full confession made to the Grand Jury now in session and also to the District Attorney.

The wife of a well-known farmer living near Center was brutally attacked and later found unconscious at a lonely point near her home last Thursday night. Her skull was crushed and her body was bruised and lacerated. She was brought to a local sanitarium, where she died Friday.

Captain W. A. Bridges, commanding Company L, Seventh Cavalry, received instructions from Austin to protect the prisoner and to prevent the lynching, but he was unable to find any member of his company in time. Shortly after the lynching the crowd dispersed and the town quickly resumed its normal appearance.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 2.—National Guardsmen were called out tonight to protect the city from disorders threatened by 400 negroes, natives of the Bahama Islands, and British subjects who have been aroused over the death of Herbert Brooks, one of their number charged with assaulting a Miami white woman.

Brooks was arrested at Ormond Saturday and reported to have been killed in a leap from a train taking him to Jacksonville for safekeeping, but the other negroes, said to believe that he died at the hands of a mob, made a demonstration and threatened to obtain vengeance when his body was returned to Miami.

Troops were patrolling the negro residence section tonight.

GERMAN REDS SEIZE CONTROL OF ZITTAU

Independent Socialists, Communists and Syndicalists Rule Saxon City.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Zittau, Saxony, a city of between 25,000 and 30,000 population, where labor troubles recently took place, has been since yesterday in the hands of radical workers, according to a dispatch to the Zwölf uhr Blatt.

The message adds that the police have withdrawn and that a committee of fifteen, composed of Independent Socialists, Communists and Syndicalists, has assumed authority over the city.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 3.—A state of siege in the districts of Zittau and Lobau, about twenty miles northwest of Zittau, has been declared by the Saxon Government, according to a Berlin message to The London Times. The terrorists are reported to be under the leadership of two fugitives from justice from the Ruhr region, named Müller and Jordan.

The German Government hopes that the population will help restore order, but at last accounts the situation was not very favorable.

INQUIRY AT CAMP MERRITT.

Million-Dollar Supply Fraud Is Rumored—No Arrests Yet.

Major Charles P. Elliott, in charge of the military police at the army Port of Embarkation, Hoboken, said last night that an investigation was being made of the disposition of quartermaster supplies at Camp Merritt, N. J., which was one of the biggest concentration camps during the war. Major Elliott characterized the investigation as a "routine affair" and said no arrests had been made, nor did he expect any.

He refused to comment on a published report that the Department of Justice was co-operating with the army in running down frauds which would aggregate a million dollars, beyond characterizing it as an "unfortunate mistake." It was said that army officers and former commissioned personnel were involved in the "scandal" and that some of the alleged plunder had been recovered in two New Jersey towns not far from the camp.

GETS PHILIPPINES LOAN.

Chase National Bank of New York Awarded $10,000,000 Certificates.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Chase National Bank of New York and associates were successful bidders today for certificates of indebtedness of the government of the Philippine Islands to the face value of $10,000,000, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent.

By an act of the Philippine Legislature, approved May 9, 1918, the issuance of these certificates was authorized "to regulate the currency system of the Philippines and to establish a reserve fund for the same."

The Chase National Bank and associates offered $9,650,000.

BRETON CHALLENGE RECEIVED BY MORGAN

Commodore Replies That New York Yacht Club Will Consider It.

ROSS TELEGRAM INDEFINITE

Dominion Cities Report Lively Interest—Leading Corinthians May Back Project.

It was admitted yesterday at the New York Yacht Club that the telegraphic announcement of a challenge for a series of races for the America's Cup, to be held next year, had been received from Alexander C. Ross of the Royal Cape Breton Yacht Club. Although the telegram was addressed to Commodore J. P. Morgan, who was cruising aboard his steam yacht Corsair, George A. Cormack, secretary, said the challenge would be "duly considered" when received. The formal challenge is supposed to be on its way here.

Late yesterday, Commodore Morgan sent a wireless message from aboard the Corsair, to Mr. Ross, acknowledging receipt of the telegraphic challenge, which, he said, would be considered by the Cup Committee of the New York Yacht Club, when it meets, which will be within the next two weeks.

The formal challenge, in order to be in form for consideration by the committee of the New York Yacht Club, must give ten months' notice in writing, naming the dates for the proposed races, between May 1 and Nov. 1, and accompanying the ten months' notice must be sent the name of the owner and a certificate of the name, rig and following dimensions of the challenging vessel, namely, the length on the load water line, beam at load water line and extreme beam, and draught of water, which dimensions shall not be exceeded.

The challenge must be sent through some yacht club of a foreign country having its annual regatta on an ocean water course on the sea, or on an arm of the sea, or one which combines both. Competing yachts, if of one mast, shall be not less than 65 feet nor more than 90 feet on the load water line, and if of more than one mast they shall be not less than 80$ nor more than 115 feet on the water line.

The telegram sent by Mr. Ross, it was pointed out, named two clubs, the Cape Breton Royal Yacht Club and the Halifax Yacht Club, but it did not mention the dates more specifically than "in July, 1921," nor did it mention the owner, the type of yacht, rig or required dimensions; hence those who have to do with the acceptance of any challenges that may be received were in no position to discuss the subject, no real challenge having arrived.

Advices from various Canadian cities indicate a lively interest in the project and a general belief that the challenge will be submitted in such form as to call for the serious consideration of the America's Cup Committee of the New York Yacht Club. However, there was some doubt expressed in some yacht clubs throughout the Dominion as to whether, if popular subscription alone were depended upon to provide the funds for the construction and operation of a challenger, the attempt would meet with success. In certain sections, notably in Nova Scotia, it was asserted that it would call for an investment of approximately $[illegible],000,000, which, these yachtsmen contended, called for one man or a syndicate to finance and operate, else it was foredoomed to failure.

Commodore Aemilius Jarvis of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto is reported to have been in communication with Mr. Ross and to have expressed his willingness to sail the challenger if all other arrangements are successfully negotiated. It is believed that Commodore Jarvis would prove to be the best Corinthian to meet the star American skippers, as he has had much experience in sailing against them in notable marine struggles.

A prominent New England yacht builder said yesterday that R. B. Van Horne of Montreal, P. Q., son of the late Sir William Van Horne, one of Canada's wealthiest men, was among those interested in the present challenge. Mr. Van Horne owns the yawl Uvira, designed by A. Loring Swasey. Several other wealthy Canadians are mentioned as interested in the project.

NEW PREMIER PLEADS FOR FRENCH CANADIANS

Meighan Calls on English to Promote "Better Understanding" Between Races in Dominion.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Manitoba, Aug. 2.—Premier Meighan appealed for "beter understanding" between French-Canadians and English-Canadians in an address here today. He said:

"We ought to, we have to, get away from differences that really are not differences at all from the standpoint of the vital concerns of the country. We have two great races. The fundamental institutions of Canada are just as dear to the one race as to the other. There are just as many friends of law and order and responsible government among French-Canadians as among English-Canadians.

"The Prime Minister of Quebec, Mr. Taschereau, said a few nights ago that the time had come when what he described as the 'isolation of Quebec' should cease, when that province should take its full part in the government of this Dominion. He appealed for a spirit of co-operation to take the place of a spirit of estrangement.

"I re-echo that appeal. I believe it to be my duty to answer that appeal to the utmost of my power. I hope it receives a warm and cordial response in every end of this country. If we wait until either side admits responsibility for what estrangement has existed, we will never get anywhere. Let the question of responsibility go by and let us look to the future."

The Premier said the peril of every nation has been a tendency to divide on lines of race, on lines of religion, on lines of social caste, on lines of occupation.

The new Canadian Premier was the central figure today in a civic demonstration here, where he once practiced law. Thousands of visitors from Manitou, Carberry, Brandon, Winnipeg and elsewhere joined in the welcoming ceremonies. Business generally was suspended for the day.

HITS KANSAS LABOR COURT.

County Judge Holds One Criminal Phase of Law Is Unconstitutional.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 2.—Constitutionality of the criminal phases in the Kansas Industrial Court law will be tested in the Supreme Court as the result of a decision today in the Wyandotte County District Court in which Judge R. P. McCamish held as unconstitutional the provision of the law making liable to arrest persons influencing others to quit work. This was announced today by members of the Industrial Court.

The case involved Jerry Scott, a switchman, arrested during the strike last April.

Women Seeking Sixteen Votes in Tennessee; Open Week's Drive Before Special Session

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—With just one week ahead of the Tennessee Legislature's convening in special session to act on the Federal suffrage amendment, the National Woman's Party is making a strong drive to capture the ten votes needed in the House and the six votes they are short in the Senate. Four headquarters have already been opened in the State, with five organizers campaigning in the districts of the various members of the Legislature. Two more members of the Woman's Party were to leave for Nashville today, Mrs. Mabel Kenton Reber of New York and Miss Mary Winsor of Haverford, Pa.

Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, Political Chairman of the party, was also leaving Washington today for Ohio, where, as fourth member of the Ratification Committee appointed to consult with the Democratic leaders, she will be in touch with Governor Cox on the Tennessee situation. The other members of the Ratification Committee are Mrs. James Rector of Columbus, Ohio, member of the Woman's Party Advisory Council; Miss Anita Pollitzer, Legislative Secretary, and Miss Sue White of Nashville, Tenn., State Chairman of the party.

The sum of $3,000 was contributed by Philadelphia members of the Woman's Party yesterday for work in the thirty-sixth State. Miss Fanny Cochrane gave $1,000 and Miss Mary Burnham another $1,000, with smaller contributions, including $300 from Mrs. Katherine Halligan of Philadelphia, totaling another thousand.

In addition to Miss Sue White, Tennessee Chairman of the Woman's Party, and the local members of her branch, the campaigners of the Woman's Party who are now in that State are Miss Betty Gram of Portland, Ore., Miss Anita Pollitzer of Charleston, S. C., Miss Catherine Flanagan of Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Anne Calvert Neely of Vicksburg, Miss.

Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of the Woman's Party, is expected to go to Nashville just before the Legislature meets. She is at present directing the work of the national political leaders at the Woman's Party headquarters in Washington.

TYPHUS ON SAVOIE; 518 QUARANTINED

Rumanian Becomes Ill on Trip from Havre in Steerage—Liner Is Fumigated.

CABIN PASSENGERS FREED

Vienna Children Dying for Want of Milk, Says Jewish Actor—People Want Light Plays.

When the French liner Savoie reached Quarantine early yesterday with a case of typhus fever in the forward steerage, which had developed on the voyage from Havre, the sufferer, Bordorci Troin, a Rumanian, 24 years old, from Bucharest, was sent to Swinburne Island and 517 other steerage passengers were sent to Hoffman's Island for observation for twelve days. The 209 first and 179 second-class passengers remained on the Savoie, which was detained until noon, and did not reach her pier at the foot of West Fifteenth Street until 2:15 P. M.

On the way up the harbor the forward steerage was fumigated and passengers had to wait on the pier until 6 o'clock because longshoremen could not get the heavy baggage out of the hold until the fumes had evaporated.

Among the passengers in the first cabin was Michael Perlowski, who spent fifteen months in Russia, Poland and Bohemia in the interest of a large American automobile corporation.

"What did you see in Poland regarding attacks on the Jews?" he was asked.

"The reports have been very much exaggerated," Mr. Perlowski replied. "They were started more than a year ago by Polish soldiers from America, who cut off the beards of Jews for fun."

Rudolph Schildkraut, a Jewish actor, who was here three years ago, arrived on the Savoie with his son, Joseph, also a nactor, and will appear at the Jewish Art Theatre. They have been playing in Berlin, Vienna and in Rumania.

"Conditions have grown worse in Vienna," Mr. Schildkraut said. "The death rate of the child population is appalling. Children die from undernourishment or because of no nourishment. At this distance it must sound like sheer invention to state that children are permitted to die in Vienna for lack of milk, but that is the truth; I have seen it. The finer plays no longer exist in the theatres in Berlin and Vienna. The people only want to see funny plays and pictures which will make them forget the war and their present sufferings."

GIRL SLAYER HEROINE OF HOAXED CALABRIANS

Mob Tries to Halt Trial of Murderess Who Killed with Scythe a False Fortune Teller.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Aug. 2.—Forced to fly from Philadelphia in the United States, where he had been the ringleader of a criminal gang, Francesco Di Cicco returned to his native Filadelfia, in Calabria, where he set up business among the credulous country folk as a prophet and wonder worker.

In a short time the white-bearded charlatan, to whom thousands of women resorted for his exercise of supposed magical arts, amassed a small fortune.

Recently a young girl whom he had wronged when she was under hypnotic influence stole back to his cavern with a scythe, killed him and hacked the impostor's body to pieces. Finding it impossible to obtain an emigrant's passport the girl gave herself up to the police.

While the local Magistrates were assembled for a preliminary hearing of the case a big pilgrimage of the hoaxed penitents, headed by the town band, besieged the law court, demanding the immediate release of the murderess.

On her exit from court repeated but unsuccessful attempts were made to rescue the girl from the grip of the carabineers escorting her.

The crowd then insisted upon accompanying the heroine as far as the prison gates, amid enthusiastic cheering and singing.

The peasant children scattered roses along her path, and at eventide a grand fireworks display at public expense was given in her honor.

Decision Includes Those Indicted with Tammany Chief.

Supreme Court Justice Richard P. Lydon handed down a decision yesterday allowing Charles F. Murphy, Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, Arthur A. Baldwin of 27 Pine Street, John A. McCarthy, former partner of Murphy's brother John, and Ernest B. Walden, Vice President of the Corn Products Refining Company to inspect the minutes of the Extraordinary Grand Jury which on June 23 indicted them for conspiracy to evade paying excess profits tax. Argument on the motion to inspect the minutes was heard by Justice Lydon on July 21. After granting permission to see the minutes of the Almirall jury, Justice Lydon said:

"The defendants are not entitled to an inspection of the minutes as a matter of right, but I cannot appreciate how such inspection will in any way prejudice the investigation of the District Attorney's office. The matters involved in the indictment grow out of transactions outside of the District Attorney's office, and the only thing connecting them with the District Attorney's office is the alleged act of Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith."

RIVER RUM RAIDS YIELD 21 PRISONERS

SHEVLIN BACK FROM BORDER

Says Much Whisky Is Being Smuggled in Small Quantities, but This Will Be Stopped.

Prohibition enforcement agents from the office of James Shevlin, Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent, operating along the Hudson River between this city and Newburg the latter part of last week resulted in the serving of summonses on twenty men and one woman and the seizure of about $50,000 worth of liquor. Places visited by the agents included Tuckahoe, Mount Vernon, Yonkers, White Plains, Port Chester, Woodridge, Monticello, Lake Huntington and Newburg. A number of road houses and inns were raided and among those upon whom summonses were served were Peter Shanley, owner of Shanley Inn, and two employes at Yonkers.

Mrs. Jennie Cohen, proprietor of a hotel at Woodridge, was the woman arrested. According to Agents Einstein, Smith and Wittenberg, she vigorously opposed the searching of her place. Convinced that they were going to search the place anyway, Mrs. Cohen, the agents say, ran into the saloon and began smashing bottles right and left. She gave one of the agents a lively tussle when he attempted to stop her. Isaac Cohen, a son, ran to her assistance and was knocked down by Agent Smith. Mrs. Cohen then quieted down and the search of the premises was made.

Those who were summoned are August Stielleg, 98 Main Street, Tuckahoe; Enrico Mangerelli, 21 North Fourth Street, Mount Vernon; Jack Smith, 4 Mount Vernon Avenue, Mount Vernon; Richard Morgan and George Dillon, 666 Yonkers Avenue, Yonkers; Henry Stauff, 350 Yonkers Avenue, Yonkers; Peter Shanley, Peter McGoldrick and Michael McKeon, 424 South Broadway, Yonkers; Lawrence Nonnarillo, 21 Main Street, White Plains; Peter Rombace, 24 Main Street, White Plains; John Macri, 49 South Main Street, Port Chester; Peter Arturi, 49 South Main Street, Port Chester; Jennie Cohen, Woodridge; Matthew M. Ryan, Monticello; Frank Wallace, Lake Huntington; William F. Kennedy, Broadway and West Street, Newburgh; Thomas Lahey and Henry Curry, 73 Broadway, Newburgh; Herman Hoffman, 61 Front Street, Newburgh, and Henry Fatt, 76 Front Street, Newburgh.

Mr. Shevlin, who returned to his office yesterday from a visit to the Canadian border, said: "The general condition compares favorably with any State in the Union that is on the border. There is some whisky running over the border, but that will be stopped. Prohibition agents will reinforce the Customs staff on the border."

MODERATES CONDEMN EXCLUSION OF MANNIX

Think It Will Estrange Bishops, Who Could Have Influenced Him for Moderation.

LONDON, Auesday, Aug. 3.—Moderate opinion in Ireland, says a Dublin dispatch to The London Times, is seriously questioning the wisdom of the Government decision to exclude Archbishop Mannix of Australia from Ireland.

Many arguments are used against it. In the first place, it is pointed out that the Sinn Fein need no encouragement from anybody and that Archbishop Mannix probably could do more harm in the United States than if given the freest hand to preach an anti-British crusade in Ireland.

Secondly, says The Times dispatch, there are some who think the speeches of the Archbishop may be due to his ignorance of the real state of affairs in Ireland, and that close contact might have a sobering effect on him.

Finally, according to The Times correspondent, the Government's decision is considered likely to place the heads of the Catholic Church in Dublin in a false position. It is believed probable that Church influence would support any wise and generous scheme for an Irish settlement within the empire, but in some quarters it is declared that the Church must be greatly embarrassed by restrictions on Archbishop Mannix's movements.

Leading Catholic laymen are reported by The Times's correspondent to be of the opinion that if the Government insists on making a martyr of the Australian Archbishop, the Bishops will virtually be compelled to champion his cause, and their genuine desire for peace may be rendered unfruitful by consequent developments.

On the other hand, they say, if the Archbishop is permitted to come to Ireland like any other homecoming ecclesiastic, the Church will have an opportunity to acquaint him quietly with its difficulties and probably will be able to influence his course of action.

At any rate, says The Times correspondent, it is generally conceded certain in Dublin that the expenses of the Archbishop's martyrdom would be paid not by himself, but by the Government and the Irish people.

Martens Hearing Adjourned.

Augustus P. Schell, head of the legal department at Ellis Island, presided there yesterday at the hearing of the deportation case against Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, "Ambassador of Soviet Russia." Assistant Attorney General John S. Hoover appeared for the Government, while Martens's counsel was Dr. Isaac A. Hourwich, Charles Recht and Miss Rose Weiss. At the close of the hearing it was announced that it would not be resumed for probably a month.

ASSERTS CONSPIRACY IN CLOTHING PRICES

Palmer's Aid Finds "Carefully Prepared Campaign" Would Fleece Buyers of Apparel.

MILL CLOSING A PART OF IT

Experts Getting Evidence Now, Says Howard Figg, for Prosecutions Under Terms of Lever Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Coupled with a statement that already proposals for higher clothing prices are being circulated by manufacturers and jobbers, Howard Figg, special assistant to Attorney General Palmer, stated today that the Department of Justice was investigating profiteering in clothing and would prosecute lawbreakers who attempt to fleece the public.

"The Department of Justice," said a statement by Mr. Figg, "is advised that manufacturers and jobbers of men's and women's wearing apparel are circulating propaganda designed to uphold high prices and to discourage any tendency toward lower prices. These interests are sponsors for statements circulated in the retail trade that prices are going higher, expecting by this trite plan to stampede retailers and the public to create a renewed fictitious demand such as was used to mulct the public during the recent speculative conditions.

"This speculative market toppled by its own weight this Spring, when the public refused or was unable to buy at the unconscionable prices asked for wearing apparel.

"The department's sane and economical buying campaign was, no doubt, a vital element among the causes which culminated in the sudden price-slashing wave last Spring.

"This weapon of public power still is available, and the department will not hesitate to use it to the fullest extent in defending the public against the profiteer.

"Manufacturers and jobbers are even going to the length of 'guaranteeing' the retail trade against a declining market. These 'guarantees' are being given very generally, and seemingly in furtherance of a concerted plan, despite the wording of the Lever law fixing severe penalties for conspiracy to exact excessive prices for any necessaries.

"A vigorous and thorough investigation is now in progress to uncover violations of any of the provisions of the Lever law by manufacturers and jobbers of wearing apparel.

"The department is putting this investigation into the hands of men of unusual ability. It is confidently anticipated that the lawbreakers will be found out, and in every case determined prosecution will follow.

"In some instances mills have been closed arbitrarily, the officials appearing callously oblivious to their earlier justification of market conditions on the plea of 'underproduction.'

"The closing of mills is, in turn, being used in the price propaganda, the dealer being threatened with further curtailment and higher prices if he does not accept goods and order on the present market.

"The Department of Justice is fully advised of the several phases of this carefully planned campaign, and it only remains to fix personal responsibility before applying the criminal provisions of the Lever law."

LEAGUE COUNCIL ADOPTS ROOT PLAN FOR COURT

Tittoni Urges a Central Authority for the Enforcement of the Economic Blockade.

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Aug. 2.—The League of Nations Council this afternoon adopted in its entirety the plan of the Advisory Jurists Committee for an International Court of Justice, which is practically all the work of Elihu Root.

The proposals are:

First—Each member of the League will nominate two candidates.

Second—The court will have eleven judges and four deputy judges.

Third—They will serve nine years.

Fourth—In a case arising between a power having no judge and one having a judge the former will have right of representation. In case neither has a judge on the bench they will be entitled to deputy judges.

Fifth—The court is open to all States, members or non-members.

Sixth—The court will be competent for all cases put before it by agreement of the two parties.

Seventh—The court will be competent without agreement of both parties if both are League members.

Eighth—The court can give judgment by default.

Ninth—Judgment is final, except in the case of the discovery of new facts by the League or a third party, on whom the judgment also is binding.

The committee passed a resolution for establishing a high court intrusted with criminal jurisdiction in international law to coordinate and unify all extradition and requisition laws, such as those relating to the former Kaiser and the German war criminal cases.

It was decided not to have compulsory arbitration between members and non-members. It was feared that such action would weaken an economic blockade, and there are means of other pressure at the League's disposal against non-members.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Aug. 2 (Associated Press).—The Council of the League of Nations divided its attention today between public health and public order, taking up a plan for forming a permanent international hygienic organization and discussing ways and means for using the economic blockade with the most prompt effect in case of violation of the covenant of the League by a member country or belligerency by a non-member country.

Signor Tittoni reviewed considerations that led to the view that whereas the League could only recommend the use of military and naval forces to suppress aggression, the conomic arm is one that the members have pledged themselves in advance to use against any offender. He pointed out that a central co-ordinating authority was necessary to make the use of the economic arm prompt and effective and to insure mutual support among the members of the League in order to minimize losses and inconveniences resulting from a blockade.

Dr. Gaston de Cunha, the Brazilian representative, presented his report on the organization of an International Hygienic Bureau.

Mr. Smith died intestate, the gross value of his English property being £43,580 11s. 9d., with a net personalty of £10,573 19s. 1d.

Keep Youth Alive 24 Hours By the Use of a Pulmotor

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—After having been kept alive with a pulmotor for twenty-four hours, Robert Stansbury, 16 years old, died at the City Hospital this afternoon.

The boy underwent an operation for an ear affection yesterday. While on the operating table he ceased breathing. His heart continued to function and a pulmotor was brought.

Physicians at the hospital assert their belief that this is the longest time in which a pulmotor has been used continuously.

DECLARES SECESSION IN LOWER CALIFORNIA

Cantu Now in Open Revolt, as Mexican Federal Troops Near His Territory.

WILL REFUSE CONCILIATION

De la Huerta Envoys Confer with Him, but He Is Reported as Uncompromising.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 2.—Esteban Cantu, Governor of the northern territory of Lower California, has officially declared a revolt against the Federal Government, says a statement issued this morning by the War Department. Troops are en route to force Cantu to surrender, and fighting will probably take place at Ensenada.

The War Minister states that no fighting would be permitted near the American border in order to avoid the possibility of international trouble. It is expected that Cantu will try to force the Federal Government into difficulties with the United States. The Government will make every effort to avoid friction with the American authorities.

Press dispatches that Cantu is buying ammunition and airplanes and machine guns in the United States are not credited here. A large number of Yaqui Indians, Mexico's best fighters, are supposed to have reached Lower California, but the War Department declines further information on the ground that it would endanger military operations.

War Department statements as to the whereabouts of Villa differ from news dispatches, which state that Villa is now near Torreon. The War Department says that Villa is at Cuatrocienegas, whence he will cross the desert at a point near La Esmeralda, in the Sierra Mojada Mountains separating Coahuila from Chihuahua. The Minister has no fear that Villa will not keep his agreements, and is permitting Villa to make a long trip for personal reasons. The new Tampico strike seems to have been broken before getting a start. President De la Huerta will entertain the labor leaders at lunch this week to talk over labor troubles, and will attempt to establish a court to avoid future strikes.

Efforts Making for Peace.

MEXICALI, Lower California, Aug. 2 (Associated Press).—Envoys of the Provisional Government of Mexico held a long conference today with Governor Esteban Cantu in an effort to compose the differences that have caused Cantu to sever relations with the national authorities.

Talk of negotiations for peace between Cantu and the Government shared interest here today with the preparations of the Governor to repel an expected attack by troops of the de facto Government.

Washington Refuses Arms.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Esteban Cantu, the rebel Governor of the State of Lower California, Mexico, applied to the State Department last week through a cavilian agent for permission to import arms, ammunition and other war supplies from this country in order to equip his men for fighting the de la Huerta Government.

The State Department promptly refused the request, and made it plain that the arms embargo against all Mexican factions, including the de facto Government, was still in force.

The Mexican Embassy announced this afternoon that the Mexican Government was ready to send a strong force of men into Lower California if the rebellion of Governor Cantu continued.

It was officially admitted today that for weeks past various Mexican factions had been seeking to get sanction for arms importation into Mexico. In all instances the requests were refused.

15 PLEAD IN 'PROFITS' CASES

140 Counts Charged Against Firms—Trial Later at Canton.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Fifteen indictments containing 140 counts were returned by the Federal Grand Jury before Associate Judge Frank B. Cooper, in the United States District Court here this morning. Joseph Burdick and S. Burdick & Sons, clothing dealers of Syracuse, were reindicted on nineteen counts, with eighteen new items added, making a total of thirty-seven.

Others indicted are: Joseph Pulitzer of Binghamton, clothier; Boulevard Garage, Albany, charged with excess profits in gasoline; Edward H. Karg and Emmett Noxon, Johnstown, alleged dealing in sugar without a license; Michael J. Leo, Utica and Binghamton, dealing in women's clothing at excess profit; George E. Milligan, Albany, dealing in sugar at a price in excess of that allowed by the Government.

Still others on the list are Capal & Zarkius Sevastian of Albany, charged with dealing in sugar illegally; Isaac Fink, Watertown, excess profits in clothing; Edward F. Bryant, Syracuse, excess profits in clothing; Cottrell & Leonard, Albany, excess prices for women's clothing; Paris Suit and Cloak Company, Albany, excess clothing charges; Allen Schmidt Company, Utica, alleged excess clothing profits, and Burke Bros., Ogdensburg, alleged excess profits in shoes.

All the defendants pleaded not guilty when arraigned and were released on bail for their appearance at Canton, St. Lawrence County, on Aug. 16, when the first term of court for the trial of profiteering cases is to be held.

All the indictments handed down today were drawn in new form, the cost, net profit and selling price being given, instead of the cost and selling price only. This was to cover the point raised by defendants' attorneys in former cases that overhead charges had not been considered.

Following the arraignment, Judge Cooper adjourned the Binghamton term of court.

WARNS GRAND JURIES TO CURB SPEEDERS

Reckless Auto Drivers Menace Public, Judge McIntyre Charges.

CITES HEAVY DEATH TOLL

Finds Highway Law Hourly Broken in View of the Court House.

URGES PRISON SENTENCES

Recommends Inquisitors to Call Police Department's Attention to Peril.

Two Grand Juries impanelled in General Sessions yesterday were requested by Judge John F. McIntyre to do something toward curbing the reckless drivers of autos, whose "utter disregard of the law amounts to a menace to the public," he said. He suggested that the juries call to the attention of the Police Department the frequent violations of the speed laws, as a step toward inducing the Magistrates to jail more flagrant offenders.

"I deem it proper to call your attention to the frequent defiance of the highway law of our State," Judge McIntyre said. "Its violation is being perpetrated daily by drivers of motor vehicles. Through reckless driving, a month ago, more than 100 lives were crushed out, I am informed. People are being maimed every day, according to newspaper accounts.

"My own observations have shown that chauffeurs pass through our streets at an excessive rate of speed, thus imperiling the lives of our citizens. They pass the rear of this Court House, on Lafayette Street, at a rate of speed of between thirty and forty miles an hour. Lafayette Street is traveled much by jurors in attendance in these courts. Witnesses, litigants and attorneys are constrained to cross to the rear of this building every day. Only a short time ago one of our court officers was killed and a policeman seriously injured.

"The taxicab drivers in every part of this city give no heed to the provisions of our highway law, menacing the lives and limbs of persons daily. Something should be done to curb the reckless taxicab drivers. The law is sufficiently broad to do so if enforced. It might be well if the Grand Jury called the attention of the Police Department to the constant and frequent disregard of the speed laws. A suggestion from your body might have a wholesome effect and a recommendation from you for more severe penalties than now imposed would, no doubt, induce the Magistrates to impose prison sentences more often.

"Fines do not seem to stop reckless driving. Frequently in this country the drivers of motor vehicles are apparently under the age of twenty-one, and it would seem, too, that the examination of chauffeurs for licenses could be made more severe."

The monthly report of the National Highways Protective Society of Accidents due to vehicle traffic, issued yesterday shows that during July automobiles caused the death of seventy-two persons in the City of New York, trolleys killed thirteen, and wagons two. During the same period in the State of New York, outside of New York City, automobiles caused the death of ninety-seven, trolleys, six, and wagons, three. Twelve persons met their death at railroad crossings.

The total of 205 exceeds by 12 the previous high record of fatalities in the records of the society, according to the report, this record having been established during June of this year.

2 KILLED, 7 HURT BY AUTOS.

Aged Deaf-Mute Woman and Girl Are Victims.

Two persons were killed and seven others seriously injured yesterday by automobiles. Mrs. Emma Reed, 60 years old, of 179 Fingerboard Avenue, Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, was almost instantly killed by an automobile owned by Frank Snyder, a manufacturer, of 33 Van Name Street, Mariners' Harbor, and operated by his son, Alton. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder, who were in the machine at the time, said that Mrs. Reed, who was both deaf and dumb, stepped directly in front of their automobile while trying to avoid being struck by one coming in the opposite direction. Mrs. Reed was hurried to the Staten Island Hospital in the automobile. There an ambulance surgeon said she had been instantly killed.

Anna Hochman, 4 years old, of 121 East 110th Street, playing with other children in the street in front of her home, was knocked down by an auto truck operated by Isidore Siskind of 56 East 112th Street. Siskind stopped his machine and placed the child in the truck and hurried her to the Harlem Hospital, where Dr. Schneider pronounced her dead. Siskind was locked up on a charge of homicide.

Fireman Patrick F. Croghan, attached to Engine Company 76, while driving a tender to a fire, was forced to swing his team sharply toward the curb at Broadway and 102d Street when an automobile, driven by Frank De Causse, 37 West Forty-seventh Street, started to cross directly in front of him. The horses crashed into an electric light pole and Croghan was thrown from his seat to the street between the two horses. Other firemen rescued him from his dangerous position before he had been seriously injured by the horses.

De Causse continued up Broadway disregarding the orders of the firemen to halt. Policeman Wassman of the West 100th Street Station started in pursuit in a taxicab and overhauled him at 108th Street. A summons for violation of the motor vehicle law was served on him. Crogan was treated by an ambulance surgeon for bruises and taken to his home.

Morris Braun, a contractor, 580 Eagle Avenue, the Bronx, whose automobile struck two children at Park Avenue and 159th Street on Saturday night and hurled them over the railing to the tracks of the New York Central Railroad, causing the death of one of them, surrendered to the police of the Morrisania station last night. He said he started for a doctor, and not finding one immediately had become excited and delayed giving himself up. He was locked up charged with homicide.

MACKAY COMPANIES YIELD.

Sign Stipulation Admitting Commerce Commission's Jurisdiction.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—By an order issued today, the Interstate Commerce Commission assumed jurisdiction over the Mackay companies, known as the postal companies, and the Commercial Cable Company, and ordered them to file annual reports, beginning with 1917, and to make full statements of their books and records.

The Mackay companies had refused to make reports to the Commission or furnish their records for inspection, but after a conference with the Government officials a stipulation was signed admitting the jurisdiction of the Commission, which applies only to the lines of the companies situated within the United States.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise and Then Fall Rapidly—Polish Situation Affects Shares and Exchange.

The heavy sales and abrupt declines of stocks which occurred yesterday after an initial bulge resultant from the railroad rate increase came from causes quite apart from sentiment over prospects for the railways. There was general approval in financial quarters of the Interstate Commerce Commission's award, and the early gains of 1 to 3 points in such issues as Reading, Southern Pacific, New York Central, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio and Wabash preferred indicated the receipt of a sizable amount of buying orders. The fact that the commission had acted with such expedition after supplementary rate applications were made, following the recent wage increase, and the amount of the award itself were held to be indicative of the commission's intention to assist the carriers in all ways.

What caused stocks to break within ten minutes after the strong opening was the same economic force that carried prices down last week. Nothing had happened over the week-end to counteract the impression of slackened business in many directions and the Federal Reserve system's joint presentation of banking condition at the end of the week held out little hope of easier credit conditions for some time to come. Professional attack upon the steel, rubber, automobile, leather and other issues appeared to take advantage of the early upturn and when it became clear that bearish efforts were rampant within the market considerable long stock came out. The more active industrial shares were driven down 2 to 6 points and many of the rails were so far carried out of their course by the general decline as to leave off with losses instead of gains. The weakest period of the day was in the final business hour. Call money renewed at 8 per cent. and later receded to 7 per cent., a movement which has now become familiar without meaning anything in respect to the actual situation of demand funds at New York.

The Government's cotton crop estimate, issued yesterday afternoon, bore out expectations of an unusual improvement in July, although the figures hardly supported all private estimates of last week. July has frequently brought retrogression instead of progress for the growing plant. This time, however, the estimated condition advanced in the month from 70¾ to 74⅛, while two months ago the Federal estimate was no higher than 62¼ per cent. of normal. The crop condition expanded into acreage yields points toward an output of 12,519,000 bales, an increase of just about 1,000,000 bales from the total predicted a month ago. Shorts in the cotton market were moved to cover some of their contracts yesterday because the estimate did not approximate 13,000,000 bales, but the underlying fact of most importance was not changed by the movement, namely, that the country may look forward to a much more generous yield than seemed at all possible in May. Cash wheat suffered a fresh decline, but futures were relatively steady around the lower levels established in last week's extraordinary fall of prices.

The railroad rate increase is stirring up the usual deductions in regard to the additional burden brought by it to the cost of living. At the moment no true insight of the situation can be obtained, for the reason that the bases for argument are in a state of fluctuation. Should the price tendencies noted in wholesale markets last week be continued, and the chances are strongly in favor of the movement, it will be found later that the addition of increased freight rates to selling prices has been more than offset by the shrinkage of quotations.

Sterling exchange worked lower, London rates as well as those of Continental countries being affected by the grave situation in Poland. Doubtless the fall of stocks was also influenced in part by the possibility of allied participation against the Russian forces and by the threat of Rumania to take the field against the Russian Bolshevik. Sterling receded 1¾ cents, sight drafts closing at 3.70⅝.

Coca-Cola Company Reports.

The report of the Coca-Cola Company for the quarter ended June 30, 1920, issued yesterday, showed net income after charges but before allowances for Federal taxes amounting to $2,535,505. In the first half of the year the company reported net income amounting to $3,005,727, which, after preferred dividends, was the equivalent of $4.61 a share on the 500,000 shares of no par value common stock.

PRICE LEVEL DROPS HERE AND ABROAD

Federal Reserve Agent Believes Peak Has Been Reached, and Decline Will Continue.

JULY INDICES LEND HOPE

Diminished Excess of Exports Over Imports May Have Caused Some Decreases.

There is reason to believe that the peak of prices has been reached and that from now on commodity prices will show a steadily downward trend, according to the Federal Reserve agent at New York. The indices used by this official have displayed a further downward course during July, and while, as he says, it still is too early to say positively that a permanent price deflation has begun, there at least is room for optimism, both as regards prices here and those abroad. The bulletin, commenting on this situation, says:

"During the last thirty days the slight declines in the various price indices which were noted in last month's report have made further progress, not only in this country, but abroad as well. There has also been a perceptible lessening in the volume of credit, as reflected in the total earning assets of the Federal Reserve banks, which declined $104,770,000 from July 9 to 23, increasing their reserve ratio from 43.1 per cent. to 44.4 per cent.

"It is not improbable that the diminished excess of exports over imports in June—about $78,000,000, compared with $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 in recent months—may have had its influence in the recent tendency toward lower prices in a number of important commodities. These price declines, which have been confined to certain industries, are evidence that for the time being at least the supply of goods within those industries equals or exceeds the demand. When this equilibrium is reached such runaway prices as undersupply makes possible usually disappear rapidly.

"It is too early to feel at all sure that these price recessions mark the beginning of permanent price deflation, which all the world so earnestly desires. But the fact that the movement seems to be general throughout the allied countries, in all of which determined efforts for deflation are being made, gives reason to hope that, although further increases may yet occur in industries where there is still undersupply, nevertheless, generally speaking, the peak of prices has been reached.

"While the price recessions in certain industries have produced dullness or inactivity, general production, on the other hand, in spite of strikes and traffic troubles, has continued at a very high level, if not at the highest ever known in this country. This is reflected in the enormous volume of freight traffic, which for the last six months appears to have equaled, if not slightly exceeded, the record movements of 1917 and 1918.

"Under the influence of dearer money and of the expectation of lower commodity prices, which are just now beginning to take shape, the speculation for the rise in land, commodities and securities, which was proceeding so violently last Autumn and which continued with lessened intensity throughout the Winter, seems, in this district at least, to have come to a standstill. This, however, does not mean that there is not still carried on bank credit a large, though lessening, volume of commodities, real estate and securities, exerting a measurable influence on present credit pressure and the continued high cost of living.

"In spite of the recent movements in prices and credit, past experience indicates that additional credit will soon be required for the heavy seasonal demand of Autumn. Happily there is no longer reason for the financial apprehension with which bankers used to approach each Autumn in pre-war days. For instead of the stone wall of rigid reserves and fixed currency volume, there is now standing back of all member banks a reservoir of credit and currency whose elastic and prompt response to the requirements of the country have been thoroughly tested. The fact that for many months the Federal Reserve Bank has been exerting pressure in order gradually to reduce the volume of credit will not prevent it from extending additional credit whenever the necessities of industry, commerce and agriculture require it. But this potential elasticity should not lead to any impression that credit is likely in the near future to be easier or available in additional volume for other purposes."

$2,141,000,000 Exports Show Decline of $360,000,000 from 1919—Raw Material Exports Large.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Imports of foodstuffs into the United States during the fiscal year just ended increased by more than $680,000,000 over 1919, while exports of foodstuffs in 1920 show a decrease of more than $360,000,000, according to foreign trade figures issued today by the Department of Commerce.

Foodstuffs imported during 1920 totaled $1,513,776,309, compared with $832,422,991 in 1919. Exports of the same commodities in 1920 amounted to $2,141,193,130, as against $2,502,852,400 during 1919.

Crude materials for use in manufacturing imported in 1920 totaled $2,141,644,621, compared with $1,250,674,773 in 1919, while exports amounted to $1,968,118,442 in 1920, against $1,226,395,137 in 1919.

Exports of manufacturers ready for consumption during 1920 amounted to $2,839,999,003 and imports totaled $745,125,689.

Exports of partly manufactured goods for further use in manufacturing amounted to $991,920,623 during 1920 and imports totaled $800,713,283.

Virginia Coal Earns $790,253.

The report of the Virginia Coal and Coke Company for the quarter ended June 30, 1920, shows net earnings after deductions of charges and taxes of $790,253. This compared with $564,964 in the preceding quarter. For the half year net earnings were shown to have been $1,355,217, which was the equal of $14.93 a share earned on the $9,073,600 capital stock outstanding.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Freight Rates and Living Costs.

It is easy enough to make estimates and present percentages showing how the freight rate increase will add to the cost of living. From the present outlook, however, it is probable that deductions made on the current viewpoint will not supply serious reading for the public when the higher rates are aplied. The freight rate on a bushel of wheat from Chicago to the seaboard or on a barrel of flour from Minneapolis to New York will be a fixed unit, but the prices of these commodities are fluctuating units. The latter units are in process of falling. If the movement continues far enough, and this applies to many other products, higher freight charges will hardly figure three or six months hence in comparative living costs between the later periods and the present.

Equipment Shares Resist Pressure.

In respect to net changes, the railroad equipment stocks stood aloof from the rank and file of industrial issues yesterday. Some of them traveled over wide ranges, as American Locomotive, from 97 to 92½, but they obtained advantages in the early uprush of prices so that they were driven back through Friday's closing quotations with difficulty. Railway Steel Spring and New York Air Brake lost only a fraction on balance, and the 1 to 1½ points recession among the others made a rather favorable, if negative, comparison with steel, rubber and motor issues. The speculator has been reasoning for some time that if the railroads are to be rehabilitated properly the equipment makers must do an excellent business. The soundest argument in the world in favor of a particular group of stocks sometimes fails to find reflection, however, through a movement counter to the broad price trend.

Steel's 5 Per Cent. Dividend.

When the stock market falls into a bad period it is noticeable that comment about the industrial issues pays less attention to asset values than when the price tendency is upward. Steel common at 85¾ yesterday seemed to show that both the sellers and those who offered support through scattered buying orders were thinking more of the 5 per cent. dividend than about the book value of the stock. Last week's top price was 91.

Counting Facts Instead of Prospects.

Vanadium Corporation shares have not acted well since the semi-annual statement was issued last week, showing something more than $3 per share earned in the period. June income made a better showing than the others, which seemed to indicate that results in the Summer months would be larger than in those preceding, but traders have evidently wondered whether reports of business reaction in some manufacturing fields would upset many forecasts about earnings. Whatever the influences, Vanadium was sold heavily yesterday, declining more than 6 points net after a session of wide fluctuations.

Oil Stocks Recede Slowly.

Oil company shares of late have receded with the other industrials, but the movement, in general, has not developed many decidedly soft spots. The petroleum situation is so tense in regard to supply and demand that professional short sellers have seemed reluctant to attack the shares with as much freedom as the steel and motor issues.

Foreign Loans.

If all the foreign loans which the news dispatches have been mentioning lately were to be arranged, American bankers would have time for no other business—in fact, would be hard put to find time in which to attend to these. Of all those thus far spoken of, only the one to France seems likely to come to realization. Local bankers believe a French loan could be sold; say for around $100,000,000, but to do even this will require great effort and some luck. Further, a good many think, something of this sort is likely to happen, for France would like to borrow and it is right and proper that she should. But as for an $800,000,000 loan to Mexico, that seems a bit remote, to say the least, and even the reported desire of the Chinese Government for a "temporary advance" of $9,000,000 is said not be "on the books" for the present.

Tighter Credits.

Notwithstanding the reassuring words of the Controller of the Currency that there is upward of $750,000,000 of unused, or potential, credit at the Reserve Banks, which could be increased to $2,500,000,000, there is nothing in the situation to indicate the credit is any easier this week than it was last week, or the week before. Not every banker agrees with the Controller on credit matters, expansion, low rates and so forth, and if there has been any change at all, which is doubtful, it has been toward a pulling in, rather than toward a loosening up. Contraction, whether it pleases everybody or not, seems well on its way, and the stock market yesterday probably was discounting some of this, along with other things.

From the Railroad Viewpoint.

After one full day of deliberation on and digestion of the new railroad rate schedules as announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the consensus late yesterday among railroad men was that the commission has passed its crucial test and had produced an excellent constructive regulation, or at least a sensible, safe basis upon which the roads may rest the tariffs which will go into effect at the close of the extended period of Government guaranteed returns. To begin with, they found a great deal of satisfaction in the fact that the commission stuck close to the facts and did not go into a long discussion of the subject, and they also emphasized the fact that the ruling was unanimous. Railroad managers realize that they have a big task in front of them to prepare the new tariffs, which must be ready for Sept. 1, and every road is busy framing those tariffs. In addition, representatives of the roads are in Washington in close touch with the commission, so that when any question may arise regarding the provisions contained in the law or in the commission's rulings access may be had almost immediately to an interpretation by those who framed it or will administer it.

Bears Again Active.

While a great deal of the selling yesterday came from other than professional sources the industrial list gave evidence that the bears were growling and concerted short-selling was responsible in part for the decline. In one commission house it was asserted that the break looked as if the "big fellows" had engineered the bear drive and were holding the bag to get stocks at bargain prices before the advance began. Many, on the other hand, were more inclined to attribute the selling in large measure to the fact that many who were long on rails took profits on the theory that the good news was out and selling was in order. Also it was the opinion in some quarters that some who have held railroad stock for a long time thought they could get out on the bulge in the trading right after the opening and sent in their selling orders, which served to increase the weight of the selling appreciably.

Rail Shares Which Gained Ground.

In marked contrast to the balance of the general list there were several railroad issues which closed yesterday substantially higher than on Saturday. Among them were Louisville & Nashville, Lehigh Valley, Norfolk & Western, Rock Island 7 per cent. preferred, Illinois Central, New Haven, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Western Maryland second preferred. Of these, Rock Island, Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk & Western closed at their highs.

RESERVE BANK HERE EXPLAINS EARNINGS

Advance in Rediscount Rates Defended as Measure to Reduce Credit Volume.

TREASURY GETS $14,900,000

Profiteering Charges Challenged in Bulletin Saying People Are Residuary Legatees.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York, through the monthly bulletin issued by the Federal Reserve Agent, made a vigorous defense yesterday of its position with regard to rediscount rates and the resultant earnings of the bank, and challenged the charge that the Reserve Banks are profiteering.

The bulletin said earnings for the first half of the current year were considerably larger than for the corresponding period of last year, the figures substantiating those published in THE TIMES on July 4, which were deduced from the alterations the preceding day in the institution's surplus account. The bank paid approximately $715,000 in semi-annual dividend, added $6,200,000 to surplus, set aside an unstated sum as reserve against contingencies, which is believed to have been somewhat in excess of $2,000,000, and had remaining about $14,900,000, which will be paid over at the end of the year as a franchise tax to the Treasury Department. These earnings are equal to approximately 100 per cent. on the bank's average paid-in capital for the six months. After deducting the reserve against contingencies, the earnings would be equal to about 92 per cent. on the paid-in capital.

Earned 130 Per Cent.

For the full year 1919 the Federal Reserve Bank of New York earned slightly more than 130 per cent., of which something more than half was earned in the final six months, as in that period loans were in greater volume than in the first six months and rediscounts, after Nov. 2, were advanced over the levels at which they had stood since early in 1918.

In defending its position and its course, the bank, through the Reserve Agent's bulletin, says:

"These continued large earnings have called forth a large number of comments to the effect that the Federal Reserve banks were profiteering and that in view of their earnings they should lower their rates. One critic quite seriously pictured the Federal Reserve System as manifesting "that same thirst for power that is characteristic of a carnivorous beast when it has tasted blood for the first time" and announced that its management had "come to the conclusion that these institutions should be money-making concerns and that they should see how much profit they can show instead of being used for the purpose of rendering a service to the community." While most of the criticisms are not as fantastic as the foregoing, they evidence rather generally a lack of understanding of the policies and workings of the Federal Reserve banks. This is not unnatural, since we are still relatively unfamiliar with the operations of a bank of issue and rediscount, which are well understood in most other countries. A few words about the operations of this bank as they are reflected in its earnings may therefore be appropriate.

Provided Elastic Credit.

"The Federal Reserve banks were created to provide elastic credit and currency, which would expand or contract in accordance with the requirements of industry, commerce and agriculture. They were also expected measurably to control and regulate the volume of credit so that credit conditions might be as stable as possible. They came into existence after the European war had begun, and upon America's entrance into the war they were called on to assist in creating the immense volume of additional credit required by the financing of the war. Their effective response to the call not only made possible the prosecution of the war, but enabled manufacturers, merchants and farmers confidently to continue their affairs.

"When the peak of the Government debt was passed last Autumn and there was no necessity for further credit expansion on account of Government operations, the Federal Reserve banks took steps toward inaugurating gradual deflation. They adopted the method of bringing about a reduction of the credit volume, which had been tried and tested in other countries, i. e., increased discount rates. These were advanced, step by step, from the 4¾ per cent. rate prevailing in October to the 7 per cent. rate which was established in June. The higher rates resulted in larger earnings, which in turn raised the perfectly natural question: Are the Federal Reserve banks profiteering?

People Are Residuary Legatees.

"It is one of the ironies of the war that the one bank not organized for profit should be making larger profits than any other bank in the country. Federal Reserve banks' profits come from the loans which they make to their member banks to enable them to furnish credit to their customers. But as the Federal Reserve banks are an agency of the people to maintain an elastic credit and currency system and to steady credit, the law provides that after paying dividends of 6 per cent. to the member banks, which are their only stockholders, and after accumulating a reasonable surplus, the Federal Reserve banks should return the balance of their earnings to the people as a contingent franchise tax. Thus, the people are the residuary legatees of the Federal Reserve Bank operations; and the Treasury's use of the money thus returned is restricted to the purchase of Government bonds or placing additional gold behind the greenbacks.

"Federal Reserve Bank earnings are a reflection of the existing degree of credit and price inflation. In times when credit and prices are normal Federal Reserve Bank earnings will probably be very small. The higher discount rates, established to stimulate deflation, are at present increasing these earnings, but as the volume of credit grows less these earnings will decrease proportionately. It is not at all unlikely that if no attempt to stimulate deflation had been made and the relatively low rates prevailing last Autumn had been continued, the earnings at the lower discount rates might conceivably have equaled those at present produced by the higher rates, so fast was the general expansion and demand for credit then proceeding. But the continuance of last Autumn's rate of expansion to the present time would doubtless have resulted in far higher commodity prices and very weak financial conditions instead of the present sound banking position."

STRIKING COAL MINERS RETURNING TO WORK

Many Collieries Resume and All Are Expected to be in Operation by Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Illinois will be producing its full coal tonnage by Wednesday. Work was resumed in a large number of the mines in the State today, and reports received at the headquarters of the miners and operators indicate that practically all of the miners will be back on the job tomorrow.

The first day will be devoted to cleaning up the mines and the surplus of coal cars which accumulated during the strike will insure a record tonnage.

Frank Farrington, President of the miners, received telegrams from various parts of the State today showing that the locals are complying with his request to return to work pending negotiations.

Operators declared that 50 per cent. of the mines are already in operation.

The Republic Iron and Steel plant at East Chicago shut down today because of a shortage of coal. Five hundred men were thrown out of work, making 3,000 idle there now because of the fuel crisis. The Interstate Iron and Steel mill is operating only at reduced capacity. Nearly all East Chicago industries have been forced to lay off some men.

Three thousand mine workers of the Peoria sub-district refused to return to work. They would give no reason for disobeying orders from their officials.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 2.—Dispatches received at the national headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America from local unions in Illinois and Indiana indicate that the miners are returning to work in compliance with the order issued by John L. Lewis, International President. The majority of the men who were idle last week are at work today and the others, it is said, will be at work within the next day or two.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 2.—More coal miners were reported away from work in various parts of Iowa today than last week. Eighteen mines were reported affected. Only one mine shut down last week resumed work today, according to reports received here.

MANILA STRIKE SPREADS.

American Papers Which Oppose Independence Are Crippled.

MANILA, Aug. 2.—The strike of linotype operators, which began Friday as a protest against published assertions in the three American newspapers here that the Filipinos were not ready for independence, spread today. The entire mechanical forces and most of the Filipino members of the editorial staffs of these papers walked out.

The striking natives assert that the articles published in the American newspapers tend to belittle the Filipinos in the eyes of visiting members of the Foreign Relations Committee of the House of Representatives.

As a result of the strike, no Sunday morning issue of The Times was printed, while The Bulletin and Cable News-American appeared in abbreviated form. They were published with the assistance of American soldiers and civilians.

Beginning Tuesday, the three American journals will print one community paper, it was announced.

Solid Ground Underfoot

The first desire of every prudent investor is Financial Security—solid ground underfoot.

For 38 years the investors who have placed their confidence in the Straus Plan have known the security and satisfaction of solid ground underfoot. Not one of them has suffered a dollar's loss.

Write for current investment list of sound bonds, netting 6%, with 4% Federal Income Tax paid, in denominations of $500 and $1,000. Ask for mean unusual situations and unusual situations exist to-day. World markets are endeavoring to return to a normal peace-time basis. The soundest of investments reflect in their market prices the after-influences of the World War. The small as well as the large investor is able to make investments upon a sound basis at what are really bargain prices.

Send for Circular No. T-558 describing issues which we consider particularly attractive at this time.

AN AWAKENED AMERICAN INDUSTRY

CAPITAL for ages past has found profitable employment in ships and shipping. With modern steel steamships, modern safe-guards, and established trade-routes, the former risks of the business have been almost entirely removed. Sailing the high seas is today one of the least hazardous of transportation callings.

With the larger demands resulting from the war, American shipping is resuming its former position of leadership, and capital is today offered increased opportunity for investment in this essential industry. Bonds secured by first mortgages on modern vessels offer exceptional security to conservative investors.

Steamship bonds of responsible companies, issued in serial maturities under exacting restrictions as to amount, maintenance, creation of additional debt, insurance, etc., form a part of the varied list offered by Halsey, Stuart & Co. As with all our recommendations, such bonds are investigated from every angle prior to our own purchase and endorsement of the issue.

A representative Halsey, Stuart & Co. offering of this type is—

$4,000,000 BUILDING FOR J.P.MORGAN & CO.

Plans Filed of a 33-Story Edifice to Replace the Mills Structure.

DATE FOR START NOT FIXED

Skyscraper Will Adjoin Firm's Bank and House Their Other Enterprises.

Plans for the new Mills building, which will be erected on the site of the present structure at Broad Street and Exchange Place, were filed yesterday for J. P. Morgan & Co. by Trowbridge & Livingston, architects, whose tentative estimate of the cost is $4,000,000. The plans technically call for an alteration project, but in reality a thirty-three-story building will replace the famous office structure which for the last thirty-five years has been one of the most notable properties in the entire financial district.

No announcement was made regarding the date when the construction would be commenced. Goodhue Livingston of the firm of architects who drew the plans declared there was little likelihood that it would be undertaken until building conditions became more stabilized. There are also a number of tenants in the Mills Building whose leases have another year to run. The adjoining banking building of J. P. Morgan & Co. was not affected by the plans filed yesterday, Mr. Livingston said.

Construction details have not been settled yet, the plans being filed principally to obtain the necessary rulings from the supervising city departments in order to facilitate matters when it is decided to build.

The Morgan interests leased the Mills Building last March from the Mills estate, the transaction being considered the largest of its kind ever closed in this city. Under the terms of an eighty-four-year lease, the owners will receive a total rent of about $27,300,000. The lessees will also pay the taxes and other charges. The lease provides that the lessees must erect on the site, not later than May 1, 1928, a modern office building not less than twenty-five stories in height. An unusually interesting clause which has aroused considerable comment calls for the payment of the rent quarterly in gold.

The Mills Building site is admirably located for a huge office building improvement. The present structure is eleven stories in height and covers a plot containing about 23,000 square feet of surface area. It has a frontage of 163 feet on Broad Street, 29 feet on Wall Street and 126 feet on Exchange Place, its desirability being enhanced because of possible entrances from three streets.

The building forms the eastern and southern boundaries of the Morgan bank building, at the southeast corner of Broad and Wall Streets, which cost $1,000,000 to build. Its control by the Morgan interests precludes the possibility of the erection of any objectionable building. Another factor which is said to have entered into the decision to acquire and reimprove the Mills Building was the steadily expanding business of the Morgan subsidiary companies, which have been forced to obtain space in various neighboring properties. The newly projected building is expected to result in the grouping of all the vast Morgan enterprises under one roof.

East Cleveland, a fine residential suburb of the City of Cleveland, is practically a continuation of the larger city. Euclid Avenue, the main thoroughfare of Cleveland, passes directly through East Cleveland from West to East. It is so closely built up that no division is noticeable in passing from one city to another.

10 Million Dollars
Paid by The American Company to its Policy Holders

It is not by chance but by an experience of over twenty-five years that credit insurance has been developed into a simple, scientific and inexpensive system whereby excessive losses by bad debts are equitably distributed to the benefit and satisfaction of manufacturers and jobbers.

Among the numerous houses that have from time to time been reimbursed for losses when the unexpected came, are the following:

COTTON PRICES RISE ON FEDERAL REPORT

Sharp Advance Follows News of Condition and Crop Below Expectations.

MARKET REACTS QUICKLY

Late Rally Regains Ground Lost by Unsettling Stock Exchange Happenings.

The Government's crop report on the condition of cotton, as of July 25, came out at 74.1 per cent. of normal, which was about a point or a point and a half below the average guess, and the crop indicated by these figures was 12,519,000 bales, against a general expectation of something in excess of 13,000,000 bales, without linters. This report, showing a condition and a crop less improved than the trade had expected, and the fact that the more optimistic expectations had been pretty well "discounted," which is to say, a rather large short interest had been built up in anticipation of the 13,000,000 bale crop or more, caused a sharp rise in prices in the noon hour, and at the top quotations showed gains from Saturday's figures of 65 to 105 points.

It was the sharpest advance the market had experienced in some time, and came as very much of a surprise to many keen observers around the ring. First prices had been off 27 points for October down to 10 points for the far distant months, and for the first two hours there was little real activity. Then, on the publication of the report, the rapid and almost sensational advance occurred. But after this had run its course—and the running took only a short time—there was another reaction, and prices fell off about 50 points on the average, mainly because of the weakness in the stock market and the unsettling foreign news.

In the last hour the market steadied again, and rose from the levels at which the early afternoon reaction had placed the list, so that final figures were up 43 to 102 points net. Thus, in the afternoon hours, there was a great deal of excitement and activity, with the market covering a spread of more than 100 points for all of the active months and with May showing a range of 125 points. It was a very active afternoon, and one which may be significant of the general uncertainty and instability of commodity prices.

The rise on the Government's report apparently indicated a speculative position of far greater proportions than was suspected, and the nervousness and irregularity subsequently showed rather clearly that both the trade and the ring are none too sure of themselves. The performance augurs a condition of "nerves," and one in which almost anything may happen.

COTTON ESTIMATE RAISED.

Agricultural Department Now Forecasts Crop of 12,519,000 Bales.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Increase of more than a million bales in the prospective production of cotton over the indicated yield a month ago was forecast today by the Department of Agriculture. A total of 12,519,000 bales was estimated from the condition of the crop on July 25, while 11,450,000 bales was forecast from the condition on June 25.

Good growing weather during July caused much improvement in the prospects of the crop, the condition having advanced from 70.7 per cent. of a normal on June 25 to 74.1 per cent. on July 25. The crop's condition is seven points higher than it was a year ago and a little more than a point below the ten-year July 25 average of 75.6 per cent.

Condition of the crop by States on July 25 was:

Virginia 74, North Carolina 77, South Carolina 77, Georgia 68, Florida 64, Alabama 67, Mississippi 71, Louisiana 71, Texas 74, Arkansas 78, Tennessee 76, Missouri 81, Oklahoma 85, California 85, Arizona 85, all other States 85.

New Jersey Zinc Company Reports.

The quarterly report of the New Jersey Zinc Company for the three months ended June 30, 1920, shows net income, after Federal taxes and charges, of $2,756,577. This was equal to $6.56 a share on the $42,000,000 capital stock outstanding, compared with $7.50 a share in the first 1920 quarter. In the corresponding period last year $4.26 a share was earned. Total income for the quarter was $3,341,577, compared with $1,971,337 in 1919. After payment of interest, taxes, other charges and dividends there was a surplus of $1,076,577, compared with a surplus in the corresponding 1919 quarter of $91,337.

Doubts Chinese Loan Request.

Reports from Peking that the Chinese Government had made formal request to the members of the International Banking Consortium for a "temporary loan" of $9,000,000 could not be verified yesterday. Thomas W. Lamont of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., who recently was in China on behalf of the International Consortium, said no formal request, so far as he was aware, had been made to the bankers, and he was inclined to doubt that any would be made at this time.

France Banks Travelers' Checks.

Travelers' checks guaranteed by the Bank of France, were issued for the first time yesterday by the National City Bank as the result of an arrangement between that institution and the Compagnie Française de Tourisme (the French Government Touring Bureau). It is expected that the new checks will prove a convenience to American travelers in France, as they will be cashed anywhere in that country.

Flour Drops 50 Cents a Barrel.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 2.—Flour took a further drop of 50 cents a barrel at the principal mills here today. Quotations on family patent in 98-pound cotton sacks, carload lots, were from $12.35 to $12.75. Today's drop follows a recession of 40 cents last Saturday and compares with prices of $14.50 to $14.75 a barrel on July 24.

More Gray Goods Sales Made.

Individual sales were more numerous in this market yesterday than had been the case for quite a while, but the volume of merchandise moved was not very large. Spot business was done on 39-inch 72-76s at 20½ cents, on 39-inch 68-72s at 16¾ cents and on 38½-inch 64-60s at 16½ cents. For deliveries running through this month sales of 39-inch 80 squares were made at 23 cents. Not much was done in the other parts of the market, although August deliveries of 5 and 5.50-yard sheetings were sold at 14½ and 13½ cents, respectively.

Suspect Price Agreements.

Even though concessions are now being made here and there in the wholesale market they are not so large as the retailers think they should be. In fact, it is nettling to more than one buyer to see the unwavering manner in which prices are sustained and, in lieu of any other reason, they suspect the existence of an agreement to keep prices up. An inquiry was made along this line recently by an executive of a large retail establishment who keeps well posted on conditions in the wholesale markets. His suspicions were chiefly directed toward prices in the clothing and woolen trades.

Many Sales Being Lost.

Many sales at retail are now being lost, according to a wholesale dry goods man, because the stores cannot furnish their customers with the required articles. The wanted sizes, colors or qualities are often missing for the reason that the retailers seem determined to sell out what they have before ordering fresh supplies. "Starving stocks," this wholesaler believes, is a rather prevalent fault at present, and, in his opinion, it is a costly practice. He advised merchandise managers not to neglect one of the first principles of retailing, which is to have what is wanted when it is wanted.

What Price Guarantees Mean.

Giving price guarantees has become quite a popular practice in wholesale lines. The clothing manufacturers are using the guarantee, and the several retail furriers have also promised refunds in case there are declines. Despite the criticism leveled at these price arrangements, the general feeling is that a guarantee is not much more than a "high sounding phrase." If prices go down the manufacturers know from past experience that they will have to foot the bill. By giving guarantees, it is explained, the trade custom of making good a reduction is merely converted into a formal statement.

Platinum Goes Up Again.

Reflecting the improved demand for high priced jewelry of late, both at wholesale and retail, the price of platinum was advanced $5 an ounce in this market yesterday. "Soft" platinum is now quoted at $90 an ounce, with the "medium" and "hard" varieties of the metal held at $105 and $125 an ounce, respectively. Reports from salesmen now on the road tell of a demand that, while it cannot actually be called brisk, is better than for several months and indicative of an active Fall season. All grades of jewelry are said to be sharing in the improvement, which seems to be most marked in the case of special order work.

Bleached Cottons' Prices Revised.

The long expected downward revision in bleached cottons came yesterday, when sellers of standard lines of muslins, cambrics, longcloths, &c., reduced prices to the jobbing trade from 3 to 5 cents a yard. The new figures are guaranteed against decline until Oct. 15. In the trade the reductions were regarded as hardly more than moderate, although not many years ago cuts like those made yesterday would have wiped out most of the price. The new jobbers' price on 4-4 "Fruit of the Loom" muslin is 35 cents, net 60 days, at which a limited quantity will be sold. "Lonsdale" 4-4 muslins are now quoted at 31 cents and "Hopes" at 28 cents. "Lonsdale" cambric muslins and "Lonsdale" nainsooks are priced at 40 cents each.

Will Aid Business Materially.

The reductions that have been made in prices of silverware for Fall, in keeping with the drop in the price of the metal, are expected to increase business in that trade materially. Ever since the decline in the metal first set in, it was said yesterday, there has been a distinct unwillingness on the part of the retailers to place orders until prices on the finished wares also come down. Now, that this has happened, a general replenishment of stocks broken by the demands of the June matrimonial season, as well as by the normal course of retail business, is looked for. Road representatives of the leading houses have just left for their various territories and the advance guard of out of town buyers is expected to appear in the Maiden Lane district this week.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

GROSS-ROMARY & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Gross-Romary & Co., stock brokers, at 36 Wall Street, with branch at 500 Fifth Avenue, by these creditors: James M. Marshall, $5,000; Harry J. Susskind, $75, and Henry A. Koelsch, $150. Judge A. N. Hand has appointed Joseph M. Proskauer receiver, in $20,000 bond. It is stated that the liabilities are about $350,000 and the assets approximately $250,000. The greater part of the assets, it is alleged, are pledged as collateral with banking institutions. Preferential payments as given are an act of bankruptcy. The firm is composed of James S. Gross, Alfred J. Romary, Charle B. Gauvin and Milton Morgenroth. The partnership was formed July 1, 1918, succeeding Merwin, Gross & Co., who began business July 1, 1912. Romary has been a Stock Exchange member since July 1, 1915.

DUPONT YOUNG CORPORATION.—Judge A. N. Hand has appointed Guy A. Ham of Milton, Mass., and Lewis H. Homer of Brookline, Mass., ancillary receivers for Dupont Young Corporation, whose principal place of business is Boston, Mass., with an office in New York City at 119 Chambers Street, in $25,000 bond. It is stated that a petition in bankruptcy was filed against the corporation in Massachusetts on July 16, 1920; that the company denied its insolvency, and that the cause is still pending and undetermined in court. It is further stated that there are property and assets belonging to the company consisting of surgical dressings, drugs and hospital supplies of the value of about $30,000 at 119 Chambers Street. It is also alleged that two attachments have been issued and delivered to the Sheriff of New York County, and that levies were made by the Sheriff, one for $5,218, and the other for $5,970. Judgments are also said to have been recorded against the company since the filing of the petition in bankruptcy.

G. & M. UNDERGARMENT MFG. CO., INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against G. & M. Undergarment Manufacturing Co., Inc., 235 Mercer Street, by these creditors: Rosenthal & Kisen, $356; Ester Goldberg, $200, and Joseph Rosenberg, $1,100.

THEODORE BROUT, residing at 1,211 Wheeler Avenue, who states that he has been engaged in business as a fur dealer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $7,208 and no assets.

FOX FUR CO., INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Fox Fur Co., Inc., manufacturer of furs, at 109 West Thirty-first Street, by these creditors: R. Freedman, $500; G. Lindner, $1,000, and B. R. Jacoby, $1,000. Liabilities are said to be $60,000.

YORKE, INC., millinery, at 2,120 Broadway, has filed schedules in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $4,142 and assets of $1,882, consisting of stock, $30, and cash in hands of J. L. Lindner, $1,852, results of sale of lease, fixtures and part of stock. Among the creditors are Gage Bros., $1,225; Ellimore Young, $1,000, and George Briek, $850.

JACOB ROSEN.—Judge Knox has appointed C. Edward Benoit receiver in place of Edward Dunn for Jacob Rosen, who resides in the Bronx and is in business in Hackensack.

E. ULLMAN & SONS, INC., of Manhattan, hardware, at 49 Murray Street, has filed schedules in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $36,734 and assets of $8,000, consisting of stock, $7,500, and machinery, &c., $500. Other assets are given as of value unknown.

HEITEL & LIPSHITZ.—Judge Knox has appointed Henry K. Davis receiver for Heitel & Lipshitz, manufacturers of furs, at 15 West Twenty-sixth Street, in $25,000 bond, with authority to continue the business for five days. The liabilities are said to be about $140,000 and assets approximately $45,000.

Out of Town.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Application was made today for the dissolution of the Garden City Oil Company, 11 South La Salle Street, and appointment of a receiver, in behalf of Henry J. Mies, a relative of Frank P. Mies, Secretary, who says the company has owed him $2,000 since December, 1918. The company is capitalized at $300,000 and has assets of $350,000 and liabilities of $300,000, the bill states. Business has been suspended on account of lack of ready cash to meet obligations.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—It took but little buying today to hoist values in the wheat market. At first scattered selling on the part of commission houses led to a brief setback. Absence, however, of any important fresh liquidation made bears cautious and sentiment developed that bottom prices had been reached for at least the time being. Initial quotations which ranged from 3 cents to 5½ cents lower with December $2.06½ to $2.08 and March $2.08 to $2.08½, were followed by a rally to well above Saturday's finish.

Later some improvement in speculative demand was in evidence, but owing to a fair amount of hedging the extreme gains in price were not held. There was an unsettled close, 1½ cents to 2½ cents net higher, with December $2.13½ and March $2.15.

BUTTER—Receipts yesterday, 3,471 packages. Market was steady for fine grades of fresh creameries, with demand slightly improved. Medium qualities were in full supply and selling at irregular rates and ladles and packing stock unchanged. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 55½@56c; extras, 92 score, 55c; firsts, 90 to 91 score, 53½@54½c; 88 to 89 score, 51½@53c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 48½@50½c; lower grades, 46@48c; unsalted, higher than extras, 58½@59c; extras, 57½@58c; firsts, 53½@57c; seconds, 50@52½c; State, dairy tubs, finest, 54@54½c; good to prime, 51@53c; common to fair, 45@50c; ladles, current make, firsts, 46½@47c; seconds, 43½@44c; lower grades, 42@43c; packing stock, No. 1, 44c; No. 2, 43c; lower grades, 38@42c.

EGGS—Receipts yesterday, 15,417 cases. Very highest qualities generally were held steady, but there was a slow movement on many marks that have recently been accepted in the better classes of trade. The range of values for medium grades were without quotable change. Good value under-priced eggs held steady. White eggs were quiet. There were liberal offerings of California eggs. The finest whites were rated steady, but on the medium grades there was pressure to sell at easy prices. Values showed wide range. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 54@55c; extra firsts, 51@53c; firsts, 47@50c; seconds, 44@47c; dirties, No. 1, regular packings, 39@42c; checks, fair, to choice, dry, 35@38c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery, whites, extras, 68@70c; extra firsts, 64@67c; whites, firsts, 60@63c; gathered whites, firsts to extra firsts, 60@67c; undergrades, 50@58c; Pacific Coast, white, extras, 68@70c; extra firsts, 64@67c; whites, firsts, 60@63c; undergrades, 54@58c; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 50@63c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery, browns, extra, 58@62c; gathered graded brown and mixed, extras, 54@55c; firsts to extra firsts, 48@53c.

PROPOSALS.

STATE OF NEW YORK.
OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.
Albany, July 16th, 1920.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS:

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at his office in the Capitol at Albany, N. Y., until twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, August 17th, 1920, at which place and hour they will be publicly opened and read, for the construction of Barge Canal terminals pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 746 of the Laws of 1911, and amendatory laws, and Chapter 402 of the Laws of 1920, as follows:

TERMINAL CONTRACT NO. 71

For completing the Court Street approach to the Rochester terminal:

Contract plans, sheets 1-17, inclusive.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimates of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y., and at the canal office, Spaulding Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the City of Albany or New York, issued by a National or State bank or trust company in good credit within the State, and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The bond required for the faithful performance of each contract shall be in such sum as shall be fixed by the Superintendent of Public Works, which sum shall not be less than twenty per centum (20 per cent.) of the estimated cost of the work, according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds co-insurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be endorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

EDWARD S. WALSH,
Superintendent of Public Works.

OFFICE OF THE CONSTRUCTING QUARTERMASTER, Savanna Proving Grounds, Savanna, Illinois. Sealed proposals will be opened at this office on August 21st, 1920, at 11 A. M., for construction of approximately 17 miles of standard gauge railroad; also the building of a nitrate storage plant. Plans and specifications may be had upon application to this office or the Office First District, Construction Service, War Trades Building, Washington, D. C. Contractors submitting proposals should visit the site.

COATS and SUITS

For Your Discriminating Customer

IMPECCABLE in their tailoring and distinguished by styles that are as notable for their refinement as for their youthfulness, these suits and coats appeal strongly to the better class of trade.

NOTICE TO THE TRADE

THE fact has been called to our attention that some manufacturers, through ignorance or unscrupulousness, are using the Shelton Looms labels, which we provide free to them, upon garments made from other fabrics than those named upon the labels.

We have been and are advertising these registered trade-marks in trade papers, magazines and other mediums throughout the United States and Canada.

We will protect the use of these trade-mark labels and prosecute to the full extent of the law any firm that we find misusing them.

APARTMENT HOUSES LEASED AND SOLD

Holdings on Broadway Near 103d Street Will Be Altered at Cost of $75,000.

LEASE INVOLVES $500,000

Investors Acquire Properties in the Upper West Side and Yorkville Sections.

A big lease closed yesterday will result in the undertaking of an alteration project which will provide upper Broadway with a new restaurant and apartment building.

Irving K. Smith leased, through M. H. Tropauer, the two five-story houses at 2,686-2,688 Broadway, adjoining the corner of 103d Street. The plot is 67.10 by 107. The property was leased for a term of twenty-one years to a company which operates a chain of restaurants and is headed by S. Mishkin. Plans have been drawn for an alteration to cost approximately $75,000 and to include a restaurant on the ground floor and small apartments on the upper floors. The total rental involved is approximately $500,000.

Other Apartment House Deals.

Considerable buying interest was manifested in apartment house properties yesterday, a number of holdings of the more moderate priced kind passing into new ownership.

Frederick Oppenheimer has sold to Max Cohen, represented by Harry M. Fischer, the five-story apartment house known as the Minerva Court, at 608 West 191st Street, on a plot 50 by 100, at the southeast corner of Wadsworth Avenue.

Butler & Baldwin sold for James W. Taylor two five-story new law apartment houses, with stores, at 152 Dyckman Street and 79 Sherman Avenue, to a client for investment. The properties were held at $175,000. They cover a plot 50 by 100 each.

G. Tucti & Co. sold for John R. White to T. Lovallo the three-story flat at 532 East Eighty-sixth Street 20 by 100.

The Merit Realty Corporation sold to Morris Flots the five-story flat, 11 East 119th Street, on a plot 20 by 100. The broker was S. Fine.

J. Edgar Leaycraft & Co. sold for David Eichler to M. & N. Limondri the five-story flat at 335 East Fifty-eighth Street.

Herbert Aldhous sold to Lena Schmirtz 303 West 134th Street, a four-story flat, for the Jane M. Inness estate.

J. Krakower and L. Rapoport sold for Mary Walzman the five-story flat at 69 East 105th Street, on lot 25 by 100.

Regina Schwartz bought from Mary Walsemann the five-story flat at 69 East 105th Street, 25 by 100.11.

John H. Pierce sold for Mark Ash 225 West 135th Street, a five-story single flat 25 by 100, to Bell Murry Johnson, for investment. It was held at $27,000.

Sisca & Palladino sold for Levi S. Tenney, as trustee, to Vincent Lanza 2,203 Second Avenue, a five-story tenement, 25 by 100.

Business Buildings Sold.

The Manhattan Pie Baking Company bought from Johanna Steingester and Bertha Q. Middendorf the five-story building at 5 Cannon Street, on a lot 25 by 100. The buyers own and occupy Nos. 7 and 11, adjoining.

Joseph A. Pasquale et al of San Jose, Cal., purchased the four-story loft building at 43-45 Harrison Street from Daniel V. Harrison.

The Edgar estate sold for $25,000 the three-story loft building, 20 by 75, at 115-117 Greene Street, southwest corner of Prince Street, to James E. Ziesenitz.

Staten Island.

The Cornell Real Estate and Auction Company sold for William Bradford his residence, at the corner of Simonson Avenue and Tompkins Avenue, Clifton, Staten Island, to Mrs. Augusta Gottschaldt.

Cornelius G. Kolff sold for Minnie K. Young of Manhattan the dwelling, 23 Fairview Avenue, Hamilton Park, New Brighton, to Misses Edwards and Holcomb of Manhattan, who will take possession at the expiration of the existing lease.

Yonkers Auction Sale.

Joseph P. Day held an auction sale on Saturday, of property directly opposite the entrance to the Empire City Race Track on Yonkers Avenue. Forty-four lots and a two-family frame dwelling were disposed of for a total of $19,065. The principal offering of the day was the dwelling. This was sold with four lots, two on Yonkers Avenue and two on Huber Place. This was purchased by Katie Cavagnaro for $8,250.

Buyers in Brooklyn.

Henry Pierson & Co. sold for Robetta Douglas to a Mrs. Bender the dwelling at 149 Sterling Place.

Henry L. Nielsen offices sold the 2½-story dwelling 571 Madison Street for M. Epstein to Mr. O'Shea for occupancy. The same firm sold the two-family dwelling 291 Sherman Street for Samuel Polonsky and George M. Spole to Minerva Baulair for occupancy.

Will Build Apartment House.

J. S. Maxwell sold for the P. & R. Construction Company, Philip Krulewitch, President, to the Express Realty Company the vacant plot on the south side of 136th Street, 100 by 100 feet, 100 feet east of Riverside Drive. The buyer contemplates improving the plot with an apartment house.

Commercial Leases.

William A. White & Sons leased for the Douglas Warehouse to Irving Blank, the building at 121 Mercer Street.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co., leased the ground floor store in 741 Fifth Avenue to the Manhattan Doll Company.

Oliver Lakin leased the store at 1,673 Broadway for the Silver Holding Company to Harry Luball for a long term; also, the store at 704 Seventh Avenue for the same owner to the La Belle Perfumery Company. The same broker also sold for Simon Medlin the lease and furnishings of the private house at 101 West Forty-third Street to Mrs. Jennie Gabel.

Packers Say Wholesale Meat Drops.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The wholesale price of beef declined throughout the East an average of 10 to 15 per cent. between June 26 and July 24, the American Institute of Meat Packers announced today. The decline in the cheaper cuts was greater than in the better grades, due, the statement says, to a heavy demand for choice meats.

Shoemaker Dies of Anthrax.

Philip Klemper, 43 years old, an Austrian shoemaker of 330 East Sixty-fifth Street, who was taken to Bellevue Hospital last night suffering anthrax, died at the hospital yesterday morning. He had been ill two days. Klemper's head was swollen. He became delirious a few minutes after arriving at the hospital. The infection is believed to have been caused by a piece of sole leather.

PRIVATE HOUSE BUYERS.

East Eighty-second Street Dwelling Bought for Occupancy.

Harris Vought & Co. sold for the Rexton Realty Company the five-story dwelling, on a lot 17 by 100, at 44 East Eighty-second Street. The buyer will occupy the house, which is located midway between Madison and Park Avenues.

F. R. Wood & Co. sold the three four-story dwellings at 155 to 159 and 163 West Seventy-eighth Street.

John H. Pierce sold for Charles Lanier and Henry Closson, trustees of the estate of David Egleston, 261 West 139th Street, a four-story King Model dwelling, 19 by 100, held at $18,000, to Susan L. Fletcher of Washington, D. C., for occupancy.

The Haggstrom-Callen Company sold in conjunction with B. C. Vorzimer for William D. Kilpatrick, 145 West Sixty-first Street, a four-story dwelling to a client who will occupy.

Slawson & Hobbs sold for Patrick J. Flannery, 260 West Seventy-first Street, a three-story dwelling, 16.8 by 100, to a client for occupancy.

Simon S. Friedberg resold the three-story dwelling, 235 West 127th Street, on lot 14 by 99.11, to a client of Thomas W. McKnight.

The two three-story abutting dwellings at 303 West 138th Street and 302 West 139th Street, each 16.1 by 100, have been sold by Sarah C. Smith and others, executors, to the Tenes Company for $16,250.
